BRITISH VOICE DOUBT OF PREMIER'S FEALTY TO LEAGUE

Lloyd George Accused of Doing Lip Service, but Planning Its Death.

QUESTIONS IN THE COMMONS

Premier Charged with Seeking to Make the Allied War Council Predominant.

SLOW PROGRESS ADMITTED

But League Defenders Assert It Will Develop When All Nations Join.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—The League of Nations, according to reports which are obtaining considerable currency in London, is a foundling which some of its foster fathers, who profess to regard it with affection and proud hope of its future developments, are in reality striving to starve into a premature decease. Premier Lloyd George is particularly singled out as a politician who, while doing lip service to the League, is working against its succcess and seeking to substitute for it machinery which he himself has under his hand in the Supreme War Council of the Allies.

These reports were put in striking pictorial form yesterday by a cartoonist, who represented Lloyd George as a theatrical managers in a tall hat and fur coat talking to a child in short skirts carrying a bandbox labelled "League of Nations." Posters on the wall described the "Supreme Council's No. 1 Touring Company presenting a great farcial tragedy known as 'It May Be for Years or It May Be Forever,'" and "Enormous success at San Remo. Opening shortly at Spa." The young League of Nations' aspirant to theatrical honors was represented as saying to Lloyd George: "But you promised me a part," and Manager Lloyd George as replying: "Yes, Dearie, in the next show, but, good gracious, child, this one may run for years yet."

At first there was a tendency to regard these suggestions as developments in the Northcliffe campaign to undermine public confidence in the Prime Minister. The cartoonist whose lampoon has been described is "Poy" of The Evening News, whose pencil is used untiringly and mercilessly in the service of what Lloyd George recently spoke of as a newspaper vendetta.

Suspicions Reach Parliament.

Another of Northcliffe's papers, The London Times, had furnished the material out of which the cartoon was constructed in a leading article which suggested that Lloyd George wanted the Supreme Council to be enlarged so as to override the Council of the League and to form an arbitrary and unauthorized international Government.

The suspicions voiced by The Times soon came to be re-echoed in other quarters. Captain Wedgwood Benn, in the House of Commons yesterday, moved an adjournment of the House for "the purpose of calling attention to a matter of urgent and definite importance, namely, the failure of his Majesty's Government to withhold encouragement from the aggressive military operations in Eastern Europe and its refusal to submit these disputes to the consideration of the Council of the League of Nations under Article XI. of the covenant."

When the Speaker asked if the House approved, there were cries of "Yes!" from the front opposition bench and the labor section, but on the count being taken it was found that there was no quorum and Captain Benn's little bombshell fizzled out amid the jeers of coalition members.

Prior to this, however, Lord Robert Cecil had asked the Prime Minister whether he had any information showing that authoritative persons in this country who may be described as in the circles of the Supreme Council intended to assure a continuity of the work of the Supreme Council by making it an organ of international government by the side of the League of Nations. Bonar Law replied that the answer was in the negative, but Lord Robert pressed the point by inquiring further if Bonar Law was aware that the statement he referred to had been made in an authoritative quarter in France.

Although the Prime Minister is still out of town, recuperating at Folkestone, it was felt by his supporters that immediate steps must be taken to counteract the impression likely to be made on the public mind by the articles in the Northcliffe press, The Morning Post and other organs of the press not strongly in favor of Lloyd George.

Concern Over the Charges.

The Daily Chronicle, which is a pro-Georgian paper, today printed an article saying in part:

"An attempt is perceptible to throw doubt upon the Prime Minister's loyalty to the League of Nations. It is declared that opponents of this newborn institution announce gleefully that the Allied Supreme Council is planning infanticide. One writer, particularly representative of Mayfair wealth, rejoices in this prospect on the fantastic ground that the death of the League would save us from a huge salary list, which he falsely attributes to it.

"On the other hand, and this is the only fact that need give any serious concern, proved friends of the League like Lord Robert Cecil and Lord Eustace

Palmer Drops His Initial 'A' in Campaign for Nomination

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7. — A. Mitchell Palmer, who entered politics in Pennsylvania in the late nineties as Alexander M. Palmer, dropped the "A" from his name upon becoming a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. This appears in the campaign literature sent out by the Palmer Primary Campaign Committee.

In dropping the initial Mr. Palmer follows the precedents set by Presidents Wilson and Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland was christened Stephen Grover. He dropped the Stephen. President Wilson was known as Thomas W. Wilson while a college student, but upon being admitted to the bar became Woodrow Wilson.

It was not until the other day when Governor Sproul saluted the Attorney General, his college roommate, as Alec that it became known here that the A stood for Alexander.

INDEMNITY BONDS URGED ON ALLIES

Interparliamentary Conference Proposes Securities Based on Claims on Germany.

WILL BE URGED AT SPA

Conference Also Goes on Record as Opposing Treaty Changes—Asks for Exchange Council.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—The issuance of negotiable gold bonds with German indemnity as security was recommended by the International Parliamentary Commercial Congress, composed of members of the Parliaments of fourteen nations, in resolutions adopted at the close of its sixth annual session here today. These bonds would be allocated among the nations to whom indemnity is due, and advances upon them and their sale would be facilitated by the fourteen agreeing nations, with a request to the United States to help the nations which suffered from the war to realize upon these values.

As a corollary to this action the Congress declared itself against any changes in the reparation clauses of the Versailles Treaty.

Delegates joining in this action represent Belgium, Brazil, China, Finland, France, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, Japan, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

The action of the Congress is in the form of recommendations to the various Governments and will form the basis of the discussion at the League of Nations Financial Conference at Brussels, which is to follow the Spa meeting between the Allied and German chiefs.

The conference also recommended the establishment of an international exchange commission.

French Cheered by the Decision.

The decisions of the conference were made known at a meeting at the Sorbonne this afternoon at which Premier Millerand presided. The results were received with enthusiasm. The French believe the conference tends to assure its Spa program of no treaty revision.

For three days of its session the Congress had discussed the exchange situation and the high cost of living. Its findings in these considerations were rather academic. It was decided that the high cost of living was largely due to the depreciated money in countries with low exchange and the secretion of money in the supplying countries.

The following resolution was adopted today on the exchange problem:

"The International Parliamentary Commercial Congress invites the Governments of the Allies to set up an international committee, which will be charged with the study of the question of exchange, capital, credits, transports, provisioning and conditions of labor in all countries. It is necessary that representatives of the Allies, associated and neutral States should be represented on this committee so as to arrive at an international accord relative to the debts of the Allies and Central Powers and for the adoption of the most practical methods for remedying the existing difficulties."

It is remarked that this resolution appears to take away from the League of Nations certain of its powers and to vest them in a new body.

Among members of the Congress the largest importance attached to the recommendations made with regard to the German indemnity and its use to better the financial situation of the Allies, especially France.

Text of the Indemnity Proposal.

This resolution, after a long review of the bad economical situation, says:

"On the other hand, inasmuch as the reparation and indemnities which Germany is to pay under the terms of the Versailles treaty may serve as the base and as guarantee for international settlements of puchases made abroad by the countries which suffered war damages;

"Inasmuch as the conversion of these indemnities into the form of international money would aggravate the general inflation and in that way contribute to the increase of the heavy burden of reparations;

"Inasmuch as the same inconveniences would be produced if this conversion

STATE DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO INDORSE WILSON POLICIES

Deaf to Pleas of Lunn and Seabury—Advocate Universal Disarmament Plank.

LEAGUE CALLED INADEQUATE

Resolution Declares World Must Disarm and Turn to Industry or Starve.

FOURTEEN POINTS LAUDED

Resolutions Adopted Embody Part of the Governor's Welfare Program for Women Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 7.—At the final session of their conference today the New York State delegates to the National Democratic Convention voted to recommend to that convention the adoption of a plank in the nationl platform advocating universal disarmament as the best method of establishing universal peace and reducing the worldwide high cost of living.

The conference adjourned early this evening without making any direct pronouncement on the achievemets of President Wilson and his Administration, on the League covenant or the Peace Treaty. Governor Smith was elected Chairman of the delegation amid the only really genuine outburst of enthusiasm.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions, with the exception of legislative measures urged by Governor Smith, was made up wholly of the plea for universal disarmament and a pledge that the next Federal Administration, if Democratic, would help to speed the realization of such a world project by extending liberal aid for the industrial unbuilding of other nations that would agree to it.

The report praised President Wilson's fourteen points as embodying "the whole law and gospel of international justice," but held that the League of Nations was an inadequate vehicle for bringing about disarmament.

The resolution advocated the ininclusion in the national platform of a plank committing a Democratic national administration to extending all the aid the nation could afford to countries devastated by the war, subject, however, to the condition that no country could obtain assistance until it proved its determination to employ every dollar of its own resources in restoring industries.

"The world," the resolution continues, "must disarm or the world must starve. The cost of living must continue to increase unless the scarcity which has caused the rise can be replaced by necessities of human life. Every pair of human hands and every remaining dollar of capital in the world must be enlisted immediately and actively in productive industry—none diverted to war or preparations for war.

"Disarmament immediate, universal and complete, is the absolute essential of deliverance from the perils that overhang civilization.

"Disarmament will establish peace on foundations that cannot be easily disturbed, and it will remove practically every cause that has ever incited men to war. Without disarmament peace can never be secure or lasting."

The resolution also asserted that "it is by no means clear that a league of nations would 'produce disarmament. There can be no doubt whatever that disarmament would provide a league of nations for the purpose, at least, of establishing tribunals to hear international disputes in the hope of composing them by peaceful discussion.

"All history shows that peace can never be permanent unless it rests on justice. The whole law and gospel of international justice will be found in the conditions which President Wilson, at the close of the war, declared to be the essentials of permanent peace. No war was ever waged for any other purpose than to violate some of the principles embodied in the fourteen points, which, while the world lasts, will remain the fullest statement and most accurate definition of international moral law.

"In an unarmed world the fourteen points will enforce themselves. Freedom of the seas would never be abridged when no country could maintain a navy of overwhelming force to control or affect the operations of commerce."

No Action on Prohibition.

By its opponents the report was denounced as "an essay having no practical relation to existing conditions," and offered to enable the conference to dodge a declaration on dominant issues bound to come before the National Convention.

Despite their crushing defeat yesterday, Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady and Samuel Seabury, former Judge of the Court of Appeals, who led the battle against the unit rule, rushed into the fray today as full of fight as ever. When it came to a vote on the report of the Committee on Resolutions, however, they found themselves in such a hopeless minority that, with their handful of followers, they refrained from voting when the nays were called for.

They pleaded for some recognition of the achievements of President Wilson's administration, to the end that the country might know "that the New York Democrats realized that the White House had a Democratic occupant." They were met with the declaration that eulogy of the Wilson administration might be left in perfect safety

Ship Mutiny Lands 60 German Radicals In Soviet Russia Against Their Wills

COPENHAGEN, May 7.—The German steamer Senator Schroeder has arrived at Archangel with sixty delegates of the German Independent Socialists, who were smuggled aboard when the steamer left Cuxhaven, April 10, for Iceland, according to a message to the Politiken from Archangel.

En route the crew is reported to have overpowered the officers, placed them in irons and made for Murmansk. The steamer has been placed at the disposal of Soviet Russia.

KILL BANDIT, CATCH 1, FOIL BANK HOLD-UP

LOOT LOST AS THEY FLEE

Police Seize Their Automobile and Eight Suspects Are Afterward Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 7.—A bank bandit, identified by the St. Louis police as James Haywood, a paroled convict, was killed, and another identified as Frank Faintick, a former convict, was wounded and captured today, after they, with six other men, had held up the Drovers' National Bank, East St. Louis.

The robbery was staged at 9:30 o'clock, and was frustrated by officials of the bank, who in a revolver battle routed the bandits as they tried to escape in an automobile with the $18,811.31 they had obtained.

The bandits were compelled to abandon their automobile and loot in front of the bank and flee in different directions on foot. The shots had attracted hundreds of persons and policemen organized posses which started in pursuit.

A second battle—in which Haywood was killed and Faintick captured—occurred in National City and was participated in by policemen. Posses of the East St. Louis and National City police are seeking the other six bandits, and eight suspects have been arrested.

It was learned later that four of the robbers in their flight commandeered an automobile driven by a chauffeur for an East St. Louis automobile concern and escaped.

One man remained in the machine when it was driven up to the bank, and another stopped outside in front and acted as lookout. Six entered the bank. The leader, a young man, who held a handkerchief over the lower part of his face, ordered, "Everybody hands up."

The order was obeyed by the following: M. E. Patterson, President; W. R. Long, Assistant Cashier; Edward Eltrich, Receiving Teller; Arnold Dooley, Note Teller, and David McCann, Mail Clerk. R. L. Hargraves, a National Bank Examiner and two assistants, C. E. Reinholdt and T. W. Broughton, were in the Board of Directors' room.

"Who's the President?" the leader of the bandits demanded.

"I am," Patterson responded.

"Where is the money?"

"In the cages."

The bandits turned their attention to the cages and gathered up $18,811.31 in currency and silver which they dumped into a Government mail sack. Then they filed out backwards, threatening Long with their revolvers.

The instant the door closed behind the bandits the men in the Directors' room rushed out, seized revolvers and started shooting through the windows. The bandits were climbing into the automobile.

A shot fired by Long struck one of the bandits in the shoulder or arm and he dropped his revolver. The bandits abandoned the automobile, scattered and fled on foot. The money was left in the machine.

One of the bandits gave President Patterson the name of "Slim." Patterson said: "You fellows have been going to picture shows."

He warned Patterson, "No kidding, now. This is business."

Patterson asked him what sort of business, and he replied:

"High cost of living, Mister. Now, you cut out that chatter. I don't want to have to kill you, nor anybody else, but if I have to, I'll kill every one of you."

SAY FRENCH STRIKE WILL BE EXTENDED

Heads of the Labor Federation Announce Further Resistance to the Government.

PARIS, May 7.—The Executive Committee of the General Labor Federation announced tonight that in view of the attitude adoped by the Government against the strike movement it felt itself bound to organize and extend its resistance to the Government.

Consequently, the announcement said, the Federation was considering the entry of new industrial forces into the strike movement at an early date.

Tonight the general strike situation showed little change as regards the railroad men and the miners, but the dock men were returning to work.

The Executive Committee of the Railway Workers' Federation held a stormy meeting last night, at which, it is understood, there was strong sentiment in favor of calling off the strike if it could be done without appearing to capitulate to the Government. Miners in the northern coal fields have finally decided to strike next Monday.

There appears to be some division of council among the outlaw metal workers who have struck, as their movement so far has involved only 20,000 out of 200,000 men engaged in the various trades affected.

Detailed reports from official sources of the progress of the strike show very few strikers returning to work. At several points, particularly in Paris, however, the reports declare the strikers are tiring of the movement and that there is talk of abandoning it.

The Government announced increasing betterment in the operation of trains on all the railway lines. Passenger vessels, the reports state, are finding little difficulty in disembarking their loads.

LINK OHIO OFFICIAL WITH BOND PLOT

Investigators Learn Cleveland Man Was Intimate with Arnstein-Cohen Tools.

Ohio Politicians Tried to Halt Efforts to Find $2,000,000 Stolen Securities.

Investigation of the part played by "Nicky" Arnstein and "Nick" Cohen in the disposal of securities stolen from brokerage houses in the financial district has revealed that influential politicians in Cleveland were closely connected with confederates of Arnstein and Cohen in the disposal of upward of $2,000,000 worth of securities stolen by bands of messengers in the last year and a half. Information to that effect became public yesterday when it was learned that evidence in possession of Saul S. Myers, counsel for the surety companies in the Arnstein-Sullivan & Co. bankruptcy proceedings, and John T. Dooling, Assistant District Attorney, established that an official in Cleveland has been intimate with gamblers and brokerage houses in that city suspected of being concerned in the disposal of the securities.

Neither Mr. Myers nor Mr. Dooling would discuss the matter yesterday, but it was learned that at least one official in Cleveland was a frequenter of a gambling house kept by a man frequently named in testimony in the secret bankruptcy hearings before Commissioner Alexander Gilchrist, Jr., as to the disposal of stolen securities in Cleveland and several Canadian cities.

Cleveland Store Mentioned.

Developments at the hearings also indicated that several prominent politicians in Cleveland have made many trips to this city during the last year and a half with some of the gamblers associated with Arnstein, Cohen and other crooks in the disposal of the stolen securities. Frequent mention has been made in the testimony of a mysterious cigar store, "with two rear rooms," in Superior Avenue, Cleveland. Mr. Myers and Mr. Dooling possess certain information about this place on which they expect to develop important facts in the trail leading to the hiding places of securities.

Both Mr. Myers and Mr. Dooling have been considerably hampered during their investigation by interference by Cleveland politicians with efforts to bring before Commissioner Gilchrist certain men in that city who, they believe, can clear up many incidents in connection with the plot to dispose of stolen securities. Evidence that those politicians are placing obstacles in the path of the inquiry was developed at the beginning of the bankruptcy proceedings when an effort was made to get "Cheeks" Ginsberg to come to this city to tell what he knew about "Nicky" Arnstein's assets.

Said Lawyer Blocked Inquiry.

It was said then that information had been received that a prominent lawyer in Cleveland, who was described as being of the "inner circle" of politics in that city, had advised Ginsberg not to come here to testify, and it has since been asserted that this same lawyer, over the long-distance telephone, advised "Eddie" Winkler, one of the old Gondorf band of "wire tappers" in this city, that it would be advisable for him to ignore a subpoena served on him in the presence of Mr. Myers for his appearance as a witness in the bankruptcy proceeding.

Winkler fled the city that night. He turned up the next day in Cleveland, it is said, at the home of a woman whose name has been frequently mentioned in the proceedings. It is now believed that "Mike" Kelly, another gambler, received similar advice from the same Cleveland lawyer when he also was served with a subpoena in the bankruptcy. Bench warrants have been issued for both men, it was said, and detectives seeking them are alleged to have learned that Kelly joined Winkler in his hiding place in Cleveland and later went with him to Chicago, where they conferred with friends of Arnstein with a view to aiding the latter to keep in hiding.

It was said last night that an effort will be made to induce Mrs. Dona Arkin, a widow, 27 years old, whose name has been mentioned both by Mr. Myers and Mr. Dooling during the examination of witnesses at the secret Arnstein hearings, to come to this city from her home in Cleveland to tell what she knows about meetings of Arnstein's friends in Cleveland and in this city.

Louis Bleet, formerly in the brokerage business in this city with Philip Kastel, another witness in the bankruptcy proceedings, admitted on the witness stand before Commissioner Gilchrist that he met Mrs. Arkin on several occasions in company with Ed P. Strong, a Cleveland lawyer, at the Claridge Hotel in this city. Bleet also admitted that he knew Mrs. Arkin in Cleveland, where Bleet resided for many years before he came to this city, and that several months ago he and Miss Rida McDermott, a vaudeville actress, resided for two weeks in an apartment conducted by Mrs. Arkin in the East End of Cleveland.

Mr. Myers tried to learn from the witness the address of the apartment, but Bleet said he could not remember it except that it was somewhere between

VERA CRUZ FORCES JOIN REVOLUTION; EVACUATE CITY

State Government Moves from Cordova—Rebels Hold Guatemala Railway.

REPORT CARRANZA HAS FLED

MORE REVOLTS IN NORTH

Rebels Active at Laredo, Piedras Negras and Lampazos, and Fighting Is Expected.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The Federal garrison at Vera Cruz revolted yesterday and left the city. The State Government of Vera Cruz has been removed from Cordova to the City of Vera Cruz. It was also reported that the pan American railway from Tonala to the Guatemala border was in the hands of the revolutionists.

News of the revolt of the garrison at Vera Cruz was received through official channels, the town being immediately evacuated by the rebels, presumably because of the presence in the harbor of Mexican gunboats loyal to Carranza.

Official confirmation of a report received early in te day by rebel agents that Carranza already had left Mexico City was lacking tonight. He was said to have been accompanied by his son-in-law, General Candido Aguilar, and two battalions of troops.

The State Department today received several messages from the Embassy in Mexico City, but they were all dated Thursday. These dispatches made no mention of Carranza's intention of leaving the capital, it was said.

Other reports today, official and unofficial, credited the Mexican rebels with further bloodless successes. Information reaching the rebel agents here, they said, pointed to an early occupation of Piedras Negras, Laredo and Matamoros, the only important border ports of entry remaining in Carranza control.

Dispatches from rebel sources reported that Luis Cabrera, head of the Carranza Cabinet, was en route today by train for Piedras Negras, and that Alfonso Cabrera, brother of the Cabinet Minister, has been arrested by General Gonzales in Puebla. Alfonso Cabrera, while Governor of Puebla, was concerned in the prosecution of American Consular Agent W. O. Jenkins.

Developments along the border suggested three possible fights near United States territory. The commander of the Laredo garrison appears to have held his men in line, notwithstanding the defection of customs and immigration guards, but rebels were reported to have captured a trainload of Federal reinforcements between Lampazos and the border town.

A similar situation was presented at Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Pass. There the commanding officer was said to have disarmed his garrison, while a rebel force advancing northward was said to have reached a point only twenty-five miles south of the border. Andrew Almazan, the rebel who has been operating in Northern Tamaulipas, was reported to be preparing to attack Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, Texas.

Spokesmen of the revolutionists minimized the importance of the refusal of General Calles to accept the services of Villa and the announcement of General Pablo Gonzales that he could not support the revolution. Gonzalez, who was Obregon's opponent for the Presidency, has insisted that his break with the Administration must not be construed as indicating his support of the Obregon rebel movement. In the meantime he has occupied the capital of Puebla and has the largest single rebellious unit in the vicinity of Mexico City.

Official advices from the American Embassy at Mexico City said E. F. Greenlaw, the American, and his son, who were killed last Saturday near Mexico City, were robbed at the same time of a part of the company payroll, amounting to 4,500 pesos. Greenlaw was 63 years old and his son 32. Mrs. Greenlaw and a minor child are in Mexico City.

Laredo Customs Guards Revolt.

LAREDO, Texas, May 7.—The National Railway of Mexico, the most important line connecting Mexico City with the American border, was cut by Mexican rebels today at Lambazos, sixty miles south of the border.

Telegraph wires also were cut, and no news could be obtained of a military train carrying reinforcements numbering 400 for the garrison at Nuevo Laredo, opposite Laredo.

The troops were being rushed from Monterey to Nuevo Laredo following the mutiny of nearly one hundred mounted customs guards last night.

The Customs Guards, who also declared allegiance to the Sonora revolution, fled the city after exchanging shots with Carranza soldiers last night, and tonight were reported to be at Colombia, a border town twenty-five miles northwest of Laredo. It was reported they were adding reinforcements and equipping themselves for an attack on Neuvo Laredo. Reports that they had already demanded surrender of the city could not be confirmed.

General Reynaldo Garza, military commander at Neuvo Laredo, declared today that the municipal police and part of the customs guards, numbering 600 men, remained loyal to the Central Gov-

D'Annunzio Troops Mutiny; Kill 12, Wound 50, in Fiume

TRIESTE, May 6 (Associated Press).—A mutiny broke out in Fiume at 5 o'clock this evening, a fierce battle between the Carabineers and the Arditi developing.

Twelve men were killed and fifty others wounded in the struggle.

The troops involved are those of Gabriele d'Annunzio's forces.

ROME, May 6.—Vittorio Scialoia, Italian Foreign Minister, left today for Pallanza, on Lake Maggiore, where on Saturday he will meet Anton Trumbitch and N. P. They will take up direct negotiations looking to the settlement of the Adriatic question, and it is expected a definite agreement will soon be reached.

WITHHOLD ACTION ON MORGENTHAU

Senate Republicans Delay Confirming Him to Mexican Embassy.

WAITING ON EVENTS THERE

Report That He May Withdraw His Name Contradicted by Himself—Willing to Serve.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Mystery over the prolonged inaction of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on the nomination of Henry Morgenthau of New York to be Ambassador to Mexico was partly cleared today. Republican members of the committee have decided that the nomination shall not be confirmed, for the present at least. Their explanation of the delay is that it would be unwise to send a new Ambassador to Mexico while the country is in its present turmoil. The nomination has been before the committee for more than weeks.

Considerable criticism has been leveled at the committee for its inaction. With the country in the throes of revolution and American lives and interests endangered, the United States is without an accredited diplomatic representative in Mexico City. The response of Republican committeemen to this, however, is that the critics are persons who have property in Mexico and who would criticise anything that was done or was not done with respect to Mexican affairs.

The explanation offered for the delay is that the Republican attitude does not grow out of any personal hostility to Mr. Morgenthau, but rather from a feeling that this is a poor time to accredit any American envoy to the Mexican Government when that Government might change overnight. Some Republican Senators who are hostile to Carranza do not wish his apparently tottering régime to be bolstered up by any action of the United States which would appear to confirm the recognition heretofore accorded Carranza by this Government as the Mexican de facto ruler.

Mr. Morgenthau called yesterday on Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democratic member of the committee, and asked him what was the likelihood of committee action. Mr. Hitchcock said tonight that he explained to Mr. Morgenthau how matters stood. Mr. Hitchcock added that he got the impression that Mr. Morgenthau had been thinking of making a request that his name be withdrawn from further consideration, but had not made up his mind.

Mr. Morgenthau called also at the White House, but did not see President Wilson, and Secretary Tumulty was away. White House officials said today that as far as they knew, Mr. Morgenthau did not leave any message for the President.

Mr. Morgenthau's nomination was sent to the Senate on March 23 and was at once referred to the Foreign Relations Committee. Senator Fall of New Mexico, who is the "Mexican expert" of the committee, was then on the border investigating Mexican affairs, and Senator Lodge, Chairman of the committee, announced that action on the Morgenthau nomination would be deferred until Senator Fall's return.

Senator Fall returned to Washington some weeks ago, but the nomination has not even been formally considered. Since then has occurred the Sonora revolt, which has spread over a large part of Mexico, and Republican members of the committee decided that there was "no hurry" about sending an American envoy into the country.

Republican members of the committee disclaimed any political motive. It was said they expected to be accused of discriminating against Mr. Morgenthau because he was appointed by President Wilson, to whose Mexican policy the Republicans in the committee are hostile. But, they insisted, politics had nothing to do with it. They had merely decided to wait until the situation settled down somewhat.

The Republicans said they knew criticism had been levelled at them by Americans who had property interests in Mexico but, they added, these same interests would criticise almost anything that either Republican or Democratic Government officials did with respect to Mexico.

When asked last night about a published report that he might ask that his name might be withdrawn from consideration as Ambassador to Mexico, Henry Morgenthau said:

"There is no truth in that report. I have no intention of withdrawing."

Mr. Morgenthau went on to explain that he did not consider that he had a right to withdraw his name, since the nomination to the Ambassadorship was not of his seeking, but had been made by the President.

"And," said Mr. Morgenthau, "I am ready to render the public service which I was asked to undertake."

DUPONTS THREATEN WOOD ON DYE BILL, KENYON DECLARES

Reads Letter to Senate from Publicity Manager, Hinting Opposition to General.

BASED ON MOSES'S STAND

GENERAL RESENTS LETTER

Frelinghuysen Charges That Germans Are Striving to Defeat Protection for Dyes.

WASHINGTON, May 7 (Associated Press).—Major General Leonard Wood's Presidential candidacy was the center of a shower of fireworks in the Senate today, when Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, charged that the du Pont interests had virtually threatened to attack the Wood cause unless Senator Moses of New Hampshire, one of the General's campaign managers, desisted in his opposition to the pending bill to protect an American dyestuff industry. The du Ponts are the largest American manufacturers of dyestuffs.

Senator Kenyon read, by permission of General Wood and Senator Moses, a letter to the latter signed by Charles K. Weston, manager of the du Pont Publicity Bureau, and declared that it was "certainly in the nature of a threat."

The bill, which is described by its sponsors as framed to foster an American dyestuff industry and to prevent Germany from regaining world control of the business with its potential influence in the production of war munitions, was apparently undergoing a quiet discussion. Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, of New Jersey, had just finished telling the Senate that pro-German influences were working to defeat the bill, boasting that they had prevented the United States from entering the dyestuffs field before the war and hoped to do so again.

Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, who followed, was opposing the measure when Senator Kenyon broke in. "We have heard of the influences at work to defeat this bill," said Senator Kenyon. "Has the Senator any knowledge of the influences at work to secure its passage?

"I have in my hand a letter addressed to a certain United States Senator who is opposing this bill and is also one of the managers of the candidacy of a certain gentleman for President of the United States, which letter is certainly in the nature of a threat to the Senator in relation to that candidacy if he does not cease his opposition to this bill. That letter is from the publicity bureau of the du Pont Company at Wilmington, Del."

Text of Letter to Moses.

There was a general awakening of interest in the Chamber and a rush from the cloak rooms as Senator Kenyon read the letter, as follows:

E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co.,
Wilmington, Del., April 16, 1920.
Hon. George H. Moses,
U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C.
Dear Senator Moses:

I was among the gathering of Republicans at the Playhouse in Wilmington on the evening of April 15, and listened with great interest to your address in support of the candidacy of General Leonard Wood.

Your exposition of your candidate's attitude on national preparedness was particularly interesting, inasmuch as it showed the General to be in thorough accord with all of the principles involved in the pending legislation for the development of a self-contained coal tar chemical industry. Wilmington is interested deeply in this industry, for no community has closer contact with the vital questions of preparedness, or more intimate knowledge of the unpreparedness of the country when the late war broke.

The amendment which you have offered and your active opposition to the preparedness features of the dye bill seem to some of us to be not in accord with your candidate's position or with your fervent appeals to us to support him because of his stand for national preparedness.

Personally I want to support General Wood, but I find it difficult to reconcile the two attitudes of one of his important campaign managers—the one on the floor of the Senate and the other on the public platform—sufficiently to have full faith in his cause.

I am outlining a publicity campaign to inform the public concerning the present status of the proposed dye legislation. May I ask you to set me straight as to the apparent contradiction in your attitude toward General Wood's candidacy and your attitude on the dye bill so that I may be perfectly accurate in what I write?

Very truly yours,
CHARLES K. WESTON,
Publicity Department.

Senator Moses's amendment, referred to in the letter, would empower the Treasury Department to fix a fair selling price for dyes and would also require that a satisfactory American substitute for foreign dyes be provided if the foreign dyes are to be subjected to a prohibitive tariff.

"The letter," resumed Senator Kenyon after it had been read, "is used with the full knowledge and consent of the Senator (Mr. Moses) who resents it, and I am sure that I ought to say that the candidate for President whom the Senator is supporting, General Leonard Wood, also resents the letter. It shows the methods that are used to try to pass this bill. We have the remarkable spectacle of a United States Senator who is engaged in managing a Presidential campaign practically threatened as to what may happen to that campaign if he does not withdraw his opposition to this bill.

"I will say further that in line with the publicity campaign which the du Pont people are carrying on for this bill, there is an article in The Manufacturers' Record of April 22—and bear in mind the letter to the Senator is dated April 16—an article entitled: 'General Wood Is for Preparedness but His Chief Backer Is Strangling the Dye Bill.'

"And then follows an assault on the Senator for his opposition to the bill. So that there may be no misunderstanding and that the presentation of the letter may not be in any way considered as an attack on General Wood, let me say I am informed that he resents the letter as the Senator from New Hampshire resents it and the Senator has given me the liberty to use this remarkable letter in this debate."

Senator Moses was not in the Senate and there was no discussion of the letter after Senator Kenyon concluded except that Senator Thomas, who had been interrupted in his address opposing the measure, said that he thanked the Iowa Senator for his "contribution" in the fight against the bill.

Senator Frelinghuysen, in explaining his charge that German interests were seeking to defeat the measure, said that a German importer had declared recently that if the bill were not defeated in the Senate it would be beaten in the House because Germany was powerful enough to prevent the establishment of a dye industry in the United States before the war and would kill the industry now.

In the course of the debate Senator Frelinghuysen demanded that Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, be called to order for an "imputation against my character and reputation."

Senator King had asked if any supporters of the bill wanted to speak and Senator Lodge had suggested that a vote be taken. Mr. King objected, saying that Senator Moses, who intended to discuss the bill, had been called away.

Mr. Frelinghuysen inquired whether Senator Moses was "away on public business or on private business."

"Of course, it would be improper to say that protection of the du Pont companies here is not public business," Senator King retorted.

Senator Frelinghuysen raised a point of order and a quorum was called for to pass on it. Later Senator King announced that on reading the record of his remarks he "was inclined to think them susceptible of an interpretation which I do not at all mean," and he withdrew them, closing the incident.

When Senator Lodge asked for a vote, Senator King objected because Senator Moses was not present and the Senate adjourned without acting.

Declares Weston Letter Personal.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del, May 7.—"The E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company is not interested in any political candidate," was the official answer of the company tonight to the charge of an attempt to coerce legislators by threatening to oppose the candidacy of General Wood.

A statement issued at the company's offices here admitted that the company was interested in the passage of the Dye bill, but asserted that the letter sent to Senator Moses on which Senator Kenyon based his charge was a personal letter sent by Charles K. Weston, head of the Publicity Department, which in no way could be construed as a threat, according to the company's explanation. Senator Moses spoke in this city in favor of the candidacy of General Wood, praising him as the apostle of preparedness. Mr. Weston, who attended the meeting, wrote the letter to Senator Moses asking how he could indorse a man for President on a preparedness platform while voting against the Dye bill, which Mr. Weston termed a preparedness measure.

Mr. Weston, officials of the company declared, desired to call Senator Moses' attention to the fact that the Dye bill, if passed, would give the country a reserve of technically trained men who could be called upon in an emergency and a number of plants which could be converted into places for the manufacture of munitions, explosives and poison gas with a minimum waste of time and money.

Emphasis was placed on the assertion that Mr. Weston was preparing some publicity matter on the question and desired information.

DEMOCRATS WILL AID CAMPAIGN COST INQUIRY

To Help Obtain Sub-Committee for Borah Resolution on Expenditures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Democratic support has been promised to Senator Borah in getting a sub-committee of the Senate Elections Committee to investigate Presidential nomination campaign eexpenditures.

Senator Kenyon, a close associate of Senator Borah, and a member of the Elections Committee, today took charge of the resolution, so far as that committee is concerned. Mr. Kenyon say committee members and obtained their promises to attend a meeting early next week. Senator Dillingham, the Chairman, is expected to set the meeting for Monday or Tuesday.

Senator Borah said today he believed the way had been cleared for the adoption of his resolution and the appointment of a sub-committee with Senator Keuyon as Chairman. Senator Reed has been mentioned as a Democratic member of the sub-committee.

The introduction of the investigation resolution has called forth a flood of letters and telegrams to Senator Borah containing suggestions and "information" concerning expenditures of money and promises of patronage which the writers assert should be investigated.

HOOVER QUIZZES JOHNSON.

Challenges Senator to Tell Just Where He Stands on League.

Herbert Hoover replied yesterday to Senator Hiram W. Johnson's statement on the League of Nations and asked Senator Johnson, who was quoted as saying that he was not opposed to a "League to prevent war and reduce armament, but only to Mr. Hoover's English League," to speak plainly and tell the people just where he did stand on the League question.

"Senator Johnson," Mr. Hoover said, "is quoted as stating that he has never expressed opposition to any league to prevent war and reduce armament. This indicates a change of heart in a matter of great satisfaction. He states that he does not want an English League. None of us does. But does the Senator mean that the covenant with the Lodge reservations is an English League? This is the covenant and these are the reservations which I have supported since they were first voted by the majority of the Senate, last November. Will the Senator speak out plainly on this subject, so the people may know where he stands and what he stands for in this matter?"

LOWDEN FIGHTS THOMPSON.

Seeks to Prevent Chicago Mayor Controlling Illinois Party.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Governor Lowden will make a personal fight on the floor of the Illinois Republican State Convention at Springfield on Monday to restrain Mayor Thompson from seizing control of Illinois Republican political affairs.

He is prepared for a "no quarter" contest in the issue of Thompson vs. Lowden. Regardless of any difficulties to his own Presidential aspirations, he will make no deal that tends to compromise with the City Hall organization. He will accept, without reservation, the challenge issued by Thompson yesterday, when, as Republican National Committeeman, the Mayor announced that his policies must become the policies of Illinois Republicanism.

Johnson's California Lead 159,263.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—With California Presidential preference primary returns with only 103 of the 5,707 precincts in the State missing, delegates pledged to support Senator Hiram W. Johnson for the Presidential nomination today led the group pledged to Herbert C. Hoover by 159,263 votes. The vote was: Johnson 367,465, Hoover 208,202.

REFUSE TO INDORSE WILSON POLICIES

to the National Convention, and that New York Democrats might place themselves under suspicion of "protesting too much" by too frequent repetition.

The Committee on Resolutions, after debating the question behind closed doors, decided to recommend no action with regard to prohibition, but let the record stand as it was left by the Democratic Spring convention, which adopted a resolution recommending the repeal of the Volstead act and full power for the States to interpret and enforce the Eighteenth Amendment. A resolution committing the Democratic Party to rigid enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, which was offered by Mayor Lunn, was sidetracked.

The afternoon session of the conference was delayed in starting while some of the leading lights in the delegation conferred with Charles F. Murphy and Governor Smith. W. Bourke Cockran, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, read the report to them and received eleventh hour suggestions before submitting it to the conference.

The first business was the selection of a national committeeman. Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, who has filled that position and whose length of service on the committee is exceeded only by that of Clark Howell of Atlanta, was re-elected to that post for the sixth time and made a graceful acknowledgment of the honor amid ungrudging applause. Then Mr. Cockran was called to the platform to submit the report of the resolutions committee.

Lunn Pleads for League.

Mayor Lunn agreed that the international policy of this country must be clarified before any real settlement of the main problems of national life could be reached. "I am not willing, however, to take the position that we should undertake to dictate in the national affairs of other countries by bringing financial pressure to bear or through dictation backed by their fear of our military and naval power," he continued.

"There is not a word in this report about the League of Nations. I think we ought to express ourselves on the League covenant. It has been well said that President Wilson's Fourteen Points constitute the true moral code of international relations. They were accepted as such. When President Wilson returned to America with his treaty embodying those. America stood at the very pinnacle of moral power in the eyes of the world. I would rather preserve that sort of power for America than to secure for my country an influence due to financial or military pressure as is proposed here."

The first mention of President Wilson's name by Mayor Lunn provoked slight applause. When it recurred in the debate there was no demonstration.

"The country wants to know where the Democrats of New York State stand on the League question," added the Mayor. "Let us meet this situation in a practical way. I feel that we are trying to dodge a question which cannot be dodged. We have no machinery for exerting pressure except it be through the League of Nations of which, I am ashamed to say, we are not even members. The most practical means to bring about peace in the world and gradual disarmament is through the League.

"We should have some acknowledgment of what has been done by a great man who has almost killed himself in doing what he did for the betterment of the world. There is not a word about him. I want to see a resolution of encouragement to the great man who sits in the White House. I feel something should be said by the Democrats of New York to show that they know there is a Democratic President who has done well."

Mr. Cockran maintained there was nothing to justify the charge by Mayor Lunn that financial or any other pressure was contemplated by the report as a means to compel disarmament by other countries. He concurred in all that Mayor Lunn had said with regard to the great services President Wilson had rendered to this country and to the world "up to the time he sailed for Europe."

Dodging Issues, Says Seabury.

"But I remind Mayor Lunn that the League of Nations which he has projected is not a fact and cannot be until the membership of the United States Senate changes," added Mr. Cockran. "The world cannot wait for that."

He resented the suggestion that the report was of no practical value and merely a pious wish.

"If both parties should write this pronunciamento into their platforms the question involved would be solved, ipso facto," he insisted. "To doubt the power of this appeal would be confession that democracy is bankrupt and that the aims for which we went to war were nothing but the idle dreams of an exaggerated idealism."

Ex-Judge Seabury told the conference it was trying to run away from the issues.

"If you are opposed to the League of Nations and other policies of the Wilson Administration you should have the courage to say so and not run away," he shouted. "If what we are doing now is a demonstration of what we are going to do at San Francisco, then we will cut a sorry figure in that great national gathering of Democrats, indeed. We have got to say here and now whether we approve of the present Administration, and if we do not, to what extent we disapprove of it. We ought to say that we approve of the League of Nations and that by interpretative clauses or otherwise we ought to put it in such a form that it will be acceptable to two-thirds of the Senate. The League covenant and the treaty should be ratified."

"Wouldn't action of that sort be in direct opposition to the expressed view of President Wilson?" asked former Congressman Fitzgerald.

"I don't know that it would," said Judge Seabury. "The only point I want to make is that we should not run away. It will subject us to universal ridicule within forty-eight hours."

Judge Seabury was followed by ex-Congressman Fitzgerald of Brooklyn.

"What would be the use," he said, "of preparing resolutions such as have been urged here when it is obvious that the Democratic National Convention will adopt a plank properly eulogizing Woodrow Wilson, his Administration and his great services to mankind. May I remind the gentlemen that our unofficial Spring convention did indorse both the President and a League of Nations pact without destructive reservations. By following Judge Seabury's suggestions we would run counter to President Wilson's own wishes. Our party in this State is amply on record as standing for the achievements of the Wilson Administration. If we should feel called upon every time we say anything at all to protest our loyalty to the Administration we would soon be under suspicion on the ground that we were protesting too much."

Prohibition Motion Lost.

The report was then put to vote and adopted without audible dissent. Judge Seabury offered in the form of an amendment a resolution pledging the delegates to declare to the Democratic National Convention "that the Eighteenth Amendment should be fairly and justly enforced in the same manner as any other amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and we are opposed to any plank and platform designed to sanction the lax enforcement of that or any other law and condemn any suggestion that the amendment can be nullified by the action of any State of this Union."

The resolution was ruled out of order as an amendment by Chairman Farley, and when offered as an independent resolution it was referred to the Resolutions Committee without debate.

Attached to the resolutions report was an addendum which Mr. Cockran explained had been phrased by Governor Smith:

"We believe that the well-being, physical, moral and intellectual, of the industrial wage-earners is of supreme importance to the restoration and maintenance of prosperity. We insist that the future of the country, the health and prosperity of our people, depend upon the continuance of the education and proper physical development of our children in every part of the country.

"We, therefore, declare for a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life, including the principle of a living wage for women in industry, guaranteed and protected by law. We favor the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, prohibiting child labor, to the end that we may preserve the country's greatest asset—our children.

"We advocate the passage of national laws forbidding the employment of women or children at night in mines, factories or mercantile establishments. We stand for an eight-hour day, a forty-eight-hour week and a weekly rest of at least twenty-four hours, which should include Sunday, whenever practicable."

Governor Pleads for Harmony.

Governor Smith on his election as chairman of the delegates to the National Convention spoke the only words of a conciliatory tenor that were uttered in the course of the conference.

"Let us iron out the differences so that we can present a united front at the convention," he said in his speech upon assuming the gavel. "If it be necessary for us to meet in San Francisco, or perhaps in New York, we should be in a position to present to the convention a declaration of Democratic principles befitting the democracy of the greatest State in the Union."

There was genuine applause when the Governor said this, and more when he added that Democrats in this State could point with justified pride to more successful campaigns and more solid achievements in office than could the party in any other State.

Except for the view frequently and openly expressed by delegates after the defeat of Mayor Lunn in his fight on the unit rule that the Presidential boom of William G. McAdoo had evaporated, there was little or no discussion of candidates today.

Late tonight it was predicted, however, by a prominent Democrat, that while no official action was taken, the New York delegation in all likelihood would cast a complimentary vote for Governor Smith on early ballots in the convention.

Spokesmen for Governor James E. Cox of Ohio and Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, who sought Tammany leader Murphy in the interest of their candidates, received courteous treatment, but no real encouragement. Mr. Murphy made it known to them that "his mind was open" and would remain in that state until he got to San Francisco. No audible suggestion was made by any friend of Mr. Murphy to indicate whether the Tammany chief had any preference.

Edward H. Moore of Youngstown, National Committeeman from Ohio, who was here in the interest of Governor Cox, said he had found a friendly feeling for the Governor among the New York delegates.

"I have no doubt," he said, "that if a vote were to be taken tonight among the New York delegates, Governor Cox would receive many votes. I think it is a great mistake on the part of the Democratic delegates in this State not to declare themselves on the question of candidates. By doing so, they could settle the question right here and now of who the nominee is to be.

He said that Governor Cox already had 112 delegates pledged.

DECLARE WORLD MUST DISARM OR STARVE

Democratic State Delegates Assert All Hands Must Turn to Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 7.—There follows in part the report of the committee on resolutions of the conference of delegates to the Democratic National Conference, recommending a plank for international disarmament in the national Democratic platform:

"The Democracy of New York most earnestly and urgently represent to the Democracy of the country and the democracy of the world that unless the appalling calamities now afflicting one-half of the population of Europe be speedily ended, they must soon overtake and overwhelm the entire human family. Already these disasters are projecting sinister shadows over the entire globe. Even in this country, which escaped the direct ravages of war, conditions of life have become so difficult that a weekly wage of $40 has now but the purchasing power of $16 five years ago.

"Obviously, if the cost of living continues to advance as it has advanced during the last few months, the means of subsistence in every country will soon be unobtainable by the vast majority of its inhabitants. And the cost of living must continue to increase everywhere unless the scarcity which has caused the rise in prices can be replaced by abundance of commodities essential to support human life.

"There is but one way by which this can be effected: every pair of human hands and every remaining dollar of capital in the world must be enlisted immediately and actively in productive industry; none diverted to war or preparations for war."

"The world must disarm or the world will starve," the report continued. "Partial disarmament or future disarmament will not suffice to avert disaster. Disarmament immediate, universal and complete, is the absolute essential of deliverance from the perils that overhang civilization.

"The exhaustion caused by four years of conflict renders the recurrence of a world war during this generation exceedingly improbable, if not wholly impossible. But huge military establishments are still maintained by many great nations. Much larger armaments are projected. And these preparations for war are proving themselves to be as devastating and oppressive as war itself.

Famine and Pestilence Abroad.

"Prices, which during the war were oppressive, have been rising since the armistice steadily and ominously. Taxation, instead of being diminished, has increased. The necessaries of life are ever growing scarcer. When scarcity is aggravated it becomes famine. And pestilence always follows fast upon the heels of famine.

"Already both are ravaging countries which formerly were the fairest, the happiest and the most prosperous of the world. That these conditions, unless they be ended in the countries which they are now desolating, must be inevitably extended over all countries is apparent from the universal rise in the cost of living.

"It is because men and women everywhere throughout the world believe that they see these twin spectres of starvation and disease approaching inexorably that the whole industrial fabric from Paris to Tokio is rocking on its foundations and in imminent peril of total collapse.

"Disarmament by turning every pair of human hands and every dollar of capital remaining in the world from war and preparations for war to industry, and by arresting the diversion of men numbering many millions from the cultivation of the farm and every field of production to wasteful military occupations would immediately reverse the movement of prices from an upward to a downward course. The abundance that must ensue would undoubtedly compose the apprehensions and distrust which are causing the present unrest, and would thus become the immovable bulwark of social order.

"The urgent desirability of universal disarmament is not disputed anywhere. Its practicability is only questioned in some places. We affirm that, however impracticable disarmament might be in an imperialist political system, in a democracy it is not merely practicable; it is absolutely essential.

"If the world has, indeed, been made safe for democracy by our victory in the war, then disarmament is unavoidable. Armament and democracy are irreconcilable. Where one exists the other must perish.

"We deem it the most valuable feature of the victory achieved by justice in the late war that by reason of the democracy of America has become the agent through which universal disarmament can be effected.

Urge Aid to Europe.

"At this moment all countries lately engaged in war, no matter how widely they may be separated by distance or purposes, are a unit in declaring that unless we assist them to re-establish their industrial life they cannot hope to escape bankruptcy and ruin.

"We urge the democracy of the nation when it assembles in national convention at San Francisco to declare in its platform that a Democratic administration will willingly extend all the aid this nation can afford to countries which have been devastated by the war, subject, however, to one condition, and that is a condition which can never be waived or modified. No country can obtain our assistance until it shall have shown that it is determined to employ every dollar of its own resources in restoring its industry.

"As no European country can possibly maintain a great military establishment and at the same time revive its economic system from its own resources, election of the next President on a platform declaring that we will refuse all assistance to any nation while the smallest fraction of its own treasury is wasted in warlike enterprises or preparations would suffice of itself in the present condition of the world to assure prompt disarmment.

"If, however, any country or countries should establish great armaments and succeed in maintaining them without our aid, then this country must outarm any of them and all of them. And so long as we find it necessary to maintain an army and a navy we demand that the officers and men composing them be adequately paid. The whole course of events preceding the late war shows conclusively that when any country establishes great armaments no other country can safely remain unarmed.

"As the ability of this country to maintain the largest armament in the world is not open to doubt, it is inconceivable that any other country would risk bankrupting its own people merely to establish a military force which at the very best could secure for it but second place among the armed nations of the earth. And second is the only place that would be open to the strongest of them when we elect to take first place.

"For the first time in the history of mankind the nation capable of maintaining the greatest armaments abhors armaments and desires only that all nations join it in discarding armaments. The power it possesses to create armaments it will exercise to prevent armaments, and this it can accomplish without interference with the Governments or affairs of other nations.

Frame Offer to Disarm.

"If in the law creating the military establishment a provision were inserted directing the President to reduce our army and navy, as all other countries reduce their armaments, and to continue the reduction until there was left nowhere in the world an armed force greater than might be necessary for maintenance of domestic peace (which must be safeguarded at all times), that would be an invitation which no country in the world could disregard. The United States would then be proclaiming in unmistakable terms to all nations of the earth: 'We do not seek domination of the world, but if forced to choose between establishing domination ourselves or submitting to domination by any other power, we will not hesitate to maintain that primacy to which Almighty God has raised us. If great military forces are established anywhere we will meet them resolutely with greater forces by land and sea.'

"To such an appeal there could be but one response. All nations would immediately meet us on that plane of equality in disarmament which we ourselves are willing to accept.

"Disarmament will establish peace on foundations that cannot be easily disturbed, and it will remove practically every cause that has ever incited men to war. Without disarmament peace can never be secure or lasting. In a world where all nations are armed to the teeth, when a dispute arises between two of them, the one with the greater military force must, to obtain the benefit of its superior equipment, strike at once (as Germany did in 1914) lest discussion or negotiation might afford the other opportunity to supply its deficiency in armaments. This necessity for immediate action imposed on every armed nation by the very nature of armaments forbids discussion and thus practically precludes all possibility of peaceful adjustment."

Fourteen Points Lauded.

"With all nations unarmed, none of them could make war without preparations which would require at least three years to complete. Disputes will undoubtedly continue to arise with nations, as with individuals, but two ways are open for treatment of a dispute. One is to fight about it; the other is to talk about it. Under conditions which made fighting impossible for three years there would always be extensive discussion. To make such discussion effective would become the capital desire of civilized men everywhere. This would lead inevitably to the establishment of bodies or tribunals before which the merits of every controversy could be sifted, and the conclusion of such a tribunal would carry a moral weight which no country could disregard.

"It is by no means clear that a League of Nations would produce disarmament. There can be no doubt whatever that disarmament would produce a League of Nations, for the purpose at least of establishing tribunals to hear international disputes in the hope of composing them by peaceful discussion.

"All history shows that peace can never be permanent unless it rests on justice. The whole law and gospel of international justice will be found in the conditions which President Wilson, at the close of the war, declared to be the essentials of permanent peace. No war was ever waged for any other purpose than to violate some of the principles embodied in the fourteen points, which, while the world lasts, will remain the fullest statement and most accurate definition of international moral law.

"In an unarmed world the Fourteen Points will enforce themselves. Freedom of the seas would never be abridged when no country could maintain a navy of overwhelming force to control or affect the operations of commerce. Every people, great and small, would be free to establish the government they desire when no nation would possess a standing army by which it could challenge or disturb the right of a weaker nation to determine the political conditions of its own existence.

"We appeal to the soldiers who risked their lives that peace might be made permanent and universal; to the widows whose husbands and the fathers and mothers whose sons gave their lives for the same glorious cause; to all men of business whose enterprises are embarrassed and impeded by crushing burdens of taxation; to all men and women living by daily toil whose task of supporting families is made desperate through the ever increasing cost of living for active co-operation with the Democracy of the United States in driving from the face of the earth those militaristic armaments which are the main sources of all these evils now obstructing the progress and threatening the destruction of our civilization."

EMMA GOLDMAN 'HOMESICK.'

Deported Radical Finds Post-War Russia No Haven of Rest.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Emma Goldman, the radical leader deported to Russia with Alexander Berkman and others on the Soviet "ark" Buford, has found it difficult to acclimatize herself in the land of her birth and is "homesick" for the United States, according to a letter from her to Dr. Ben L. Reitman, long her friend, made public today. The letter was dated Moscow, March 8.

"I miss America. I lived there thirty years, you know," the letter said. "However, if I could at least hear from those dear to me I left behind it would not be so difficult."

Her lack of knowledge of the Russian language and of familiarity with "the new and strange situation" had kept her from becoming active in social work, she wrote.

"It is very difficult for one of my age to acclimatize one's self in a new country, even in the best conditions in normal times," added the letter. "But Russia, bled white by over four years of war and starved by the blockade, is not a place where one may hope to take root easily."

ASKS BRITISH DENIAL OF TURKISH TREATY

Temps Calls On Lloyd George to Say Whether Secret Protectorate Is Arranged.

COMPLAINS OF PRESSURE

Urges French Government to Find Out How Much Power Sultan Has Before Signing.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—In an article entitled "The Division of Turkey" the Temps tonight calls upon the British Government to state openly whether it has a secret treaty or agreement with the Sultan. The Temps further charges that Lloyd George brought improper pressure to bear upon the French at San Remo to get them to consent to certain clauses of the Turkish treaty. The Temps says:

"If there exists between England and the Sultan a treaty for a protectorate, either in an avowed form as in Egypt or in a camouflaged form as in Persia, one may understand the attitude of the British command. But when the Turkish papers published last Winter a secret treaty which they said was signed by the Prime Minister and the present Grand Vizier the High Commissioner of the British Government denied it. Can the reports which are now circulating also be denied? Can the Turkish delegates state that there exists no arrangements of any sort which place or promises to place their Government under the particular protection of any one power? Would it not be useful that such a declaration be made with all the necessary authority and that it should be inseparable from the future treaty? France, when she was recently accused of imperialistic plans, was not embarrassed when she denied it in the most emphatic manner. England, in her turn, might make such a denial without damaging her dignity."

The Temps says that the Turkish treaty was drafted at London at a time when France was very much occupied with German problems. It says that, on the whole, the Turkish treaty represents a diminution of French interests in the Orient, and makes it plain that this decrease operates to the benefit of England. Referring to the final shaping of the treaty, it says:

"At San Remo the deliberations relative to Turkey were alternated with conversations relative to Germany. It was a bad method and we hope we will not make the same mistake again. If the allied Governments proceed to the final business of the Turkish treaty at the same time as the hearing of the German Chancellor at Spa it will be impossible to avoid regrettable complications. Every time the British Government would object to the policy France purposed to follow toward Germany we would hear England trying to obtain supplementary advantages in the Orient. Every time France would try to make her solution prevail in the Orient we would hear it said that England would not aid to disarm Germany or to force them to pay. The two negotiations would be mutually poisoned. That is why they should be successive and not simultaneous."

The Temps then says that it is true that the Turkish delegates are at Paris, but that no one knows just what the Government they represent amounts to. It goes on to speak of the British domination at Constantinople, which is a very sore point for French diplomacy.

"Last month," says the Temps, "a very singular thing happened at Constantinople. The Government of the Sultan, wishing to send to Auzavur Pasha arms and ammunition to employ against the Nationalists, the British officer presiding over the Commission of Control was the only one consulted. He gave permission without notifying the French or Italian officials. Also without notifying the French or Italians, a British officer was permitted to establish a shop for the repair of Turkish airplanes.

"But without laying too much importance upon these incidents, there is one thing that is not explained—how can the British authorities consider, for it is their doctrine that interallied control is limited to interior organization, that only England has the right to furnish what pleases her to the Sultan's Government?"

The Temps says that there is yet work to be done on the Turkish treaty.

"We had better find out just what authority the Sultan has today," the paper says. "If his power is nil the signature of his envoys is not worth much. As far as we can find out, the Provinces of Asia Minor regard the Sultan as a prisoner of foreigners, and without openly revolting against him, refuse to recognize his decisions. If it is true that the British authorities have sent emissaries to sound Mustapha Kemal they will perhaps have accurate information. This information will be interesting for France, which cannot understand why her troops in Cilicia are the only European forces against which the Turks direct their operations. In waiting for the answer to this enigma we see in Turkish power only a fictitious power, incapable of stopping warfare in Cilicia and little qualified to sign peace at Paris."

The Temps concludes by saying that some of England's plans for slicing the Turkish cake will come back to plague her.

METHODIST CONFERENCE DIVIDES ON LEAGUE

Majority and Minority Reports Submitted on Form of Message to Congress and President.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 7.—Differences of opinion regarding the League of Nations developed at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today when the Committee on State and Church, under suspension of the rules, filed a majority and a minority report on the question of sending to President Wilson and leaders in Congress the paragraph dealing with the subject from the address of the Bishops.

The majority report recommended that the paragraph which indorsed a League of Nations and urged the President and Congress to come to some agreement be sent as contained in the address. The minority report favored asking the President to resubmit the matter to Congress with such modifications as will insure adoption in the Senate. Action by the conference was deferred until tomorrow.

A resolution was adopted commending Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts for vetoing the bill which would legalize the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent. beer. Another resolution was offered criticising Governor Phillips of Wisconsin for his statements that conditions among the laboring classes are worse and that crimes are increasing owing to prohibition.

Condolence to Samuel Gompers upon the death of Mrs. Gompers was expressed in a resolution.

POLISH FORCE MEETS STRONG RESISTANCE

Ukrainians Advancing South Toward Odessa—Fourth of Reds to be Mobilized.

WARSAW, May 6 (Associated Press.)—Bolshevist troops fighting in the defense of the city of Kiev have strengthened their resistance considerably during the last twenty-four hours. The battle for the possession of the city is still raging, according to latest dispatches.

The fighting is said to be particularly severe northwest of the city, where the Bolsheviki are using artillery stationed just behind the front line entrenchments. Other heavy guns are stationed in the bridgehead territory there and are directing a heavy fire against the attacking Polish and Ukrainian troops.

Polish gains are reported along the Dniester River, further south.

Ukrainian forces are driving southward toward Odessa and are reported to have captured the village of Kamionka.

LONDON, May 7.—Polish troops advancing on Kiev were repulsed by the Bolsheviki on the line of the Irpen River, it is announced in a Soviet Government communique, dated Thursday, received from Moscow today.

Another dispatch from Moscow today reports that 25 per cent. of the members of the Bolshevist Party are being mobilized.

Bottomley Attack Is Read and Indorsed at Saloon Meetings.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, May 7.—It is declared the attack by Mr. Bottomley in his newspaper, John Bull, on Lady Astor's divorce was inspired by the drink trade in an effort to injure the woman M. P., who is fighting for abolition of that

A curious coincidence is that The Morning Advertiser, which is owned by the saloon keepers, today reports meetings of their supporters all over the country, at which the Bottomley attack was read and indorsed.

One of the largest shareholders in John Bull is Colonel Grant Murden, who has just carried out the Canadian steel amalgamation.

BRITISH HAVE DOUBT OF FEALTY TO LEAGUE

Percy express the fear that the Supreme Council intends to perpetuate itself indefinitely and to starve the League of strength and authority, by which alone it can grapple with the tasks laid down for it in the covenant of Paris."

Predicts League Will Develop.

The Chronicle article, after remarking that Lloyd George had spoken too often and too warmly of his faith in the League of Nations for it to be necessary to say anything on the general point, continued:

"As usual, there is a real though small difference of opinion which prejudiced controversialists are trying to exaggerate. The Prime Minister's view is that the League of Nations can only attain its full stature and function powerfully when the war's settlement has been completely outlined, and when the League has embraced all the great nations. To propose to it now such tasks as the Supreme Council had to deal with at San Remo, and will have to deal with at Spa, would be to throw upon it now burdens which it has not the strength to carry and a mass of prejudice that would poison its future work.

"The present composition of the League is at once too wide and too narrow for it to take over the functions of the Supreme Council. It includes not only all the lesser Allies, but all the neutral States. It does not include the United States, Russia or Germany. There is no means of bringing immediately and loyally into comity these three vast parts of the future federation of mankind.

"Whether we like it or not, the League must be content to make slow, steady progress. Dealing already with matters of vital importance, the Russian inquiries, the financial conference, the constitution of a permanent court, the campaign against famine and disease, the administration of the Sarre and of Danzig, the system of mandates and others, there is no danger of the League dying of inanition. It will steadily gather force, and when a more normal condition of life has been restored in Europe and the round table is complete its great days will come. To speak as though they were here now is only to play the part of a quack doctor or spellbinder."

Calls It Dangerous Sham.

The Chronicle's article is from the pen of a writer who is a convinced adherent of the League as well as a supporter of Lloyd George.

Following it comes an editorial in The Evening Standard, which may be reckoned as being more strongly Lloyd Georgian than it is for the League of Nations, in which the question is put:

"Do we want a League of Nations, if no serious efforts should be put forth to make it an effective reality at the earliest possible moment? If not, we should get rid, with promptitude and decision, of the pretense that we do. A League of Nations in which no one believes, but to which lip service is paid by everybody, is simply a sham and a most dangerous sham."

The Standard oges on to say:

"The League, in fact, is fast becoming a jest and is treated by many public men as such. The matter of the Armenian mandate revealed its helplessness, but revealed no disposition to remove that impotence. There was to be a conference in connection with the League at Brussels. It is thrust out of the way by the conference of the Allies at Spa. The Prime Minister's recent speech, while highly respectful to the League, certainly did not suggest any extreme anxiety to make it a practical thing at present."

For the moment the question remains there. The League of Nations Council in England is appealing for funds to carry on publicity work, but unless and until there is created a strong public demand in all countries of the world for an active and efficient league some of its most fervent advocates are sorely afraid that idealistic conceptions of the covenant embodied in the Treaty of Versailles will received little more than lip service from adepts in practical politics.

Doubts Real Faith in Plan.

A correspondent of The Daily News writes:

"A long list of disappointments has brought what now looks like a culminating in despair of the League of Nations, on which so many looked as the of world peace have got it into their hope of perpetual peace. The present constitution of the League an dits activities up to date do not elicit faith or even hope. Rightly or wrongly, lovers heads that the allied Governments and many of our leading men do not have, if they ever did have, any real faith in the League which they have persistently damned with faint praise.

"Take the words of General Lord Rawlinson at the annual dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce. He said: 'I am much afraid that war is the law of nature. All we can hope to do with the League of Nations, &c., is to make the periods between wars as long as possible.'

"If that is all General Rawlinson hopes for, it is not what most of us hoped for from the League, and it is this lack of vision and general skepticism in high quarters that are driving people to abandon this particular method in order to seek peace in other ways."

LIBERAL FEDERATION INDORSES ASQUITH

Lloyd George's Supporters, Received with Disapproval, Quit the Convention.

END OF COALITION ASKED

English Delegates Declare Its Continuance Means a Sacrifice of Liberal Principles.

LONDON, May 7 (Associated Press.)—Resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Liberal Federation at Leamington today, declaring support for Herbert H. Asquith, and asserting that the war-time necessity of the coalition no longer exists and that its continuance is impossible except by sacrifice of Liberal principles.

These resolutions are taken in London to mean that another wedge has been driven between the Liberal Party and the coalition Government.

Six hundred delegates from all parts of England and Wales were present at the meeting, which was held primarily to discuss whether the fusion of the Liberals with the coalition should be continued. It took the character of a struggle between Premier Lloyd George and Mr. Asquith for control of the Liberal Party.

Most of the Liberal members of the Government attended with the reported intention of endeavoring to capture the conference for the coalition.

The proceedings were particularly lively. All the coalition Liberal speakers, including Dr. Christopher Addison, President of the local Government Board; Thomas J. McNamara, Minister of Labor, and other members of the Government were received with strong demonstrations of disapproval, while Sir Donald Maclean, a supporter of Mr. Asquith, was given an ovation.

Finally, the disorder became so great that Sir Gordon Hewart, Attorney General of the coalition Liberals, refused to attempt to address the meeting. He declared he recognized there was an overwhelming majority in support of the resolutions, and that the majority was anxious to vote without hearing arguments. Sir Gordon, with his followers, then left the hall amid the jubilation of those remaining and held a protest meeting outside.

After the coalitionists left the resolutions were carried with only a few present dissenting. Similar resolutions were carried by a meeting of Scotch Liberals a week ago.

It is understood the coalition Liberals will hold a mass meeting in London next week, at which the Liberal ministers who were prevented from addressing today's conference will state their views and indicate the steps they propose to take to organize special electoral machinery for the coalition Liberals.

PEACE PLAN UP MONDAY.

Hitchcock Is Expected to Make Early Reply to Knox.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Discussion of the Knox peace resolution in the Senate is scheduled to be resumed Monday. The Republican Steering Committee at a meeting today decided to call up the resolution on that day.

Senator McCumber, Republican, and author of a resolution which would simply restore the pre-war business status, expects to speak Monday on the resolution, and Senator Hitchcock will reply either on that day or early in the week to Senator Knox's speech criticising President Wilson and the peace settlement.

The Democratic opposition to Mr. Knox's resolution is so general in the Senate that it may not be necessary to hold a party caucus to determine the minority's attitude.

An amendment may be offered next week providing that the Senate approve the principle of the League of Nations as a means of preventing future wars. All amendments have been marked for defeat by the Republican majority, which is determined to adopt the resolution as it was reported from the Foreign Relations Committee.

INDEMNITY BONDS URGED ON ALLIES

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

was made by the agency of banks of emission to which directly or indirectly would be turned over as security, the titles representing German debt, it is contrary to healthy monetary policy to issue bank notes upon a guarantee note easily convertible;

"Inasmuch as in the present state of a superabundance of securities and taking into consideration the character and nature of the values to be converted, it is upon the stock market this conversion ought to take place.

"Be it resolved, that there should be no interference with the reparations stipulated by the Treaty of Versailles.

"Be it resolved that the commission on reparations be invited to proceed to the allocation of gold bonds among the countries which have suffered war damages; that the nations signing the treaty facilitate advances on these bonds as far as possible; and that nations signatories of the treaty and those not signatories which have adhered or will adhere to the League of Nations facilitate the placing and sale of these gold bonds on their respective markets."

While this may seem involved, and doubtless would prove so in operation, it is explained that bonds, being gold bonds, could be used to effect foreign payments irrespective of the exchange situation. In other words, the Frenchman wanting them would obtain an amount of these bonds in France and sell them on the British stock market and then pay with pounds sterling. The bonds being gold bonds would presumably sell for approximately the same value the world over.

Requires Fixing German Payment.

It is apparent that operation of this plan hinges upon the Spa meeting, and it would be only after that meeting had given some form of definitness to the German indebtedness under the treaty that such a plan could be put into operation.

Should it be decided, for instance, that Germany must pay 100,000,000,000 marks gold, France's share would be 55,000,000,000. The Reparations Commission would authorize the issuance of bonds for use by France, guaranteed by France's share of the reparation from Germany. There would be no issuance of bonds immediately up to the full amount due France, but for a considerable proportion.

One great advantage of the success of this system would be that the circulation of bonds secured by Germany's promise to pay would create a great many advocates of the enforcement of the financial clauses of the Versailles treaty.

The French advocates of this plan believe the American market would place good value on the proposed securities. This belief persists for two reasons: First, France feels American business men have a high opinion of Germany's power of recovery, and, in the second place, such securities would be available for business transactions between America and Germany. There is little hope that the American Government would do anything to establish a standard value for the proposed bonds.

The difference between the direct sale of German bonds by France and the sale of bonds issued through the Reparation commission, with Germany's debt to the Allies as security, is not hard to see. Leaving out technical considerations Commission, with Germany's debt sold bonds Germany turned over to her, her share of the eventual payment by Germany of these bonds would be up to France. If France sells bonds issued by the Allies' Reparations Commission back of each bond would be the Allies' obligation to collect from Germany. The adoption of the resolution was marked by a clash between the Italian and Belgian delegates when the Italian delegate objected to declaring flatly against any changes in the reparation clauses. But seeing he was in a hopeless minority the Italian member withdrew his objections.

DEMAND JURY PASS ON WOMEN'S CASES

City Federation of Women's Clubs Want This Wherever Morals Are Concerned.

Yesterday's convention of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Astor discussed charges that women do not receive justice in the Women's Court, and the suggestion that they should have the right of trial by jury where their honor is at stake rather than have their reputations hang upon the whim of one Magistrate and sometimes on the unsupported testimony of arresting policemen.

This discussion was incident to a resolution presented by Mrs. George E. Owens that Mayor Hylan be asked to establish a Court of Morals similar to one now functioning in Chicago.

Mrs. Hortense Lersner, a lawyer, who has defended many women in the Women's Court, opposed the petition for a new court because it would uselessly increase expenses while assurance of a fair trial and the arrest of the male offender would correct existing evils.

"Where a girl is arrested she should have the right to a trial by jury," said Mrs. Lersner. "In many cases the arresting officers are the only witnesses. I have sat in the court and I know what I am talking about. The policemen who make the arrest are so well versed in their story that they tell it the same, detail by detail.

"See what injustice this works and what benefits would come if these unfortunate women had the right to be heard by a jury. A woman in a divorce case, where the charge involves immorality, has the right to ask for a jury trial with twelve men to pass upon her case. In many instances her honor as well as her property rights have been thus protected.

"Now if a married woman is unjustly brought into the Women's Court and convicted her husband can obtain a divorce and she can not only be stripped of honor but must lose her dower right. The Magistrates have ignored the amendment making a man who aids in immorality a co-defendant."

Mrs. Lersner, who represented the Alumni of New York University Law School, quoted Judge Wadhams as saying: "One of the arresting officers in this case should be on trial and not this young woman," a Brooklyn high school girl who had been arrested.

Mrs. Owens thought that to take the unsupported word of any policeman was not doing justice to any criminal or offender.

"Any offender is apt to get better justice from a jury than from a Magistrate," she said. "The jury has twelve minds considering the case. Women should have the right to a jury if they want it. If two persons, a man and woman, are equally guilty of an offense they should receive equal punishment."

The resolution to petition Mayor Hylan for a Court of Morals was adopted. It had already been signed by more than a dozen women's clubs.

VIENNA, May 7.—Hearing the report that the American relief mission and Red Cross shortly would suspend their Budapest work, 20,000 children and women assembled before the headquarters of the American mission, Burgomaster Body imploring Commissioner Grant Smith that the Americans continue their work. The Commissioner promised to notify and petition the American relief and Red Cross services.

Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the Child Welfare Department at Washington, who has arrived in Vienna after examining conditions in Central Europe, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that it was impossible to measure the injury done to the growing generation by the six war years, and that, according to statistical estimates, the reduction in the number of children in Central Europe would be measured by millions. In the present emergency, she said, was the cheering fact that not only Americans, but English, Swiss, Swedes, Norwegians and Dutch, were equally devoted to the alleviation of the appalling conditions of child distress. JEWISH FUND GAINS $600,000 IN A DAY

Non-Sectarian Appeal for Aid to War Sufferers Brings Hearty Response.

TRADE SECTIONS REPORT

Cotton Goods Industry Leads Contributors to $7,500,000 Campaign with $302,829.

More than $600,000 was added yesterday to the total contributions thus far received toward the $7,500,000 sought as New York's quota of a giant fund for the relief of Jewish war sufferers in Central and Eastern Europe. A feature of the day's reports that cheered workers gathered at the daily afternoon meeting at the Hotel Biltmore was that a large proportion of the subscriptions came from non-Jews. Because 6,000,000 people in the stricken districts are facing famine, disease and death the appeal for the first time is made regardless of race or creed, and the fact that so many non-Jews sent their checks to Paul Bareald, treasurer, at 389 Fifth Avenue, was regarded as evidence that the justice of the wider appeal was recognized.

Many trade sections reported their contributions yesterday, the Cotton Goods Trade Committee advising that $75,000 of the total thus far obtained by that committee had been subscribed by non-Jews.

Among the large contributions yesterday were these:

Cotton goods trade	$302,829
Clothing industry	183,000
Shirts and blouses	88,675
Cloaks and suits	167,000
Dress industry	50,000
Women's woolens	54,015
Jewelry industry	29,625
New York Fruit Exchange	15,000
Restaurants	15,500
Laundry	10,000
Mortimer Schiff	25,000
Cornelius N. Bliss	2,000
Lucius N. Littauer	1,000
Bead industry	1,505
Y. W. H. A. clubs	1,000
Deborah Benevolent Society	1,000
Carpets and rugs	2,400
Cotton garment manufacturers	8,000
Women's neckwear	4,655

Cornelius N. Bliss., Jr., of the American Red Cross, sent a letter to Mr. Lamport, who presided yesterday afternoon, with his check for $2,000, that said:

"I am very glad to hand you herewith my check for $2,000 for the New York Non-Sectarian Fund for relief of the sufferers from famine, disease and destitution in the war-ridden countries. I have heard recently very distressing reports from those who have just returned from abroad and I wish that this contribution could be very much larger."

There will be no meeting at the Biltmore today or tomorrow.

VERA CRUZ FORCES JOIN REVOLUTION

ernment. He said forces at his command were ample to defend the city, and that a request for reinforcements from Monterey had been made in order that pursuit of the defecting customs guards and other rebels in this section could be taken up immediately. The whereabouts of the Monterey troops was unknown tonight. They were said to be under command of General Carlos Ozuna.

The Mexican Consulate today announced a temporary suspension of viséing American passports and border permits. The border here, the announcement said, would probably be closed several days, or "until normal conditions are restored."

Northern Army Starts for Capital.

JUAREZ, Mexico, May 7.—One thousand revolutionary troops already have started on their march from here to Mexico City, and 50[illegible] more will depart this afternoon, according to information given out at military headquarters here at noon.

The troops will march first to Torreon, Coahuila, and thence to the national capital.

As an agent of reconstruction rather than as a fighting machine, the army under General P. Elias Calles, which is to be massed here within eight days, will make its triumphal sweep to Mexico City, according to General F. R. Serrano, rebel Chief of Staff, who arrived here today.

"Our chief work will be to rebuild what Carranza's troops have destroyed," he explained. "We do not expect serious opposition from the garrisons on the way tot the capital."

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, May 7.—When General P. Elias Calles, commander of troops in northern Sonora, leaves Agua Prieta Monday for Juarez, where he will take command of revolutionary troops for a concentrated drive into the Torreon region, General Francisco R. Manzo, now stationed at Hermosillo, will be ordered to Auga Prieta to take command of the garrison here, which will be used as a concentration and supply depot, it was announced at military headquarters today.

Five hundred additional troops are expected to arrive in Agua Prieta from inland points in Sonora by next Monday or Tuesday, it was announced.

General Calles and his military staff, which has been stationed here, will give an entertainment and dance in Agua Prieta Saturday night for Americans in Douglas, Ariz. General Calles said Sonora has nothing but friendliness for Americans and declared it would be the policy of the revolutionary forces in no way to invite criticism by the American Government or its citizens.

Five hundred Sonora troops which left Agua Prieta today for Pulpito Pass are expected to reach the Chihuahua State line by tomorrow night, where they will join 2,000 revolutionary troops which left here yesterday.

EL PASO, Texas, May 7.—Mexican revolutionary agents here made public today some of the incidents of parleys between envoys of Francisco Villa, the bandit, and rebel leaders.

Villa, they said, offered to join the revolution with what forces he could muster, but the offer was refused. He was reported to have asked that after the revolution he be allowed to go to Sonora or another western State to settle down.

Fear of complications with the United States Government led to refusing Villa's aid, it was said. Negotiations were said to be under way looking to the elimination of Villa from Mexican politics by offering him a ranch in northern Mexico with the proviso that he must not leave certain well defined limits.

"No Ice Today—
And I Won't Need Any More This Summer!"

"What's that, Ma'am? No ice?"

"None at all. I'll need only air and water—no ice, no chemicals, no machinery—no ice bills!

"I've bought a Thermonor."

It would give the ice man quite a jolt, with his big prices and little pieces, if more housewives and summer campers were to see our Thermonor.

We are demonstrating it here, and we open it up every few minutes, to show how cold it is inside. And still it stays cold!

The Thermonor works on a principle old as the hills—the principle of evaporation used for ages in Egypt and the desert lands—and at last cleverly applied for practical household use.

Soak the Thermonor in Water For 3 Minutes Every 3 Days

That's the only care it needs! It's porous and absorbs no odors. It's low-priced and has no "upkeep." For camps and summer homes, where keeping food and baby's milk cold is an everlasting problem. At last—

50 COLLEGE FLIERS CONTEST IN THE AIR

Yale Wins First Intercollegiate Aviation Derby, Defeating Eight Other Teams.

3 HURT IN TRIVIAL ACCIDENTS

Plane Wrecked in Tail Spin as Engine Stopped—Army Officers Praise Careful Flying.

Fifty college students who had qualified as army aviators during the war yesterday flew in the first series of contests and races held at Mitchel Field, near Garden City, L. I., by the Intercollegiate Flying Association, with the co-operation of the Army Air Service and the American Flying Club. Nine institutions were represented by fliers who are now in the aviation officers' reserve corps.

The participants gave the spectators thrills aplenty in their proficiency contests and exhibitions of stunt flying. There was only one crash, but the fliers were not seriously injured. The accident occurred in the alert contest, when a plane piloted by William G. Nowell, an undergraduate at Lehigh University, fell to the ground from a height of thirty feet, turning completely over.

Nowell and Martin L. Bachman, his mechanician, were caught in the wreckage and spectators thought both had been killed. An army ambulance was rushed out, and the surgeon found Nowell unconscious. Bachman escaped with a few scratches. Bachman said the engine missed fire and that the plane spun while he was trying to make a quick landing.

The only other accident of the day occurred when Corporal Clarence L. Hotopp of the 5th Aero Squadron suffered a fracture of an arm, caused by a whirling propeller. His shoulder was torn and his face slightly cut.

Yale, with a total of nine points, captured first place in the field day, with Williams second and Columbia and Princeton tied for third place. The opening event was a 25-mile race, which was won by G. W. Horne of Yale, who covered the distance in sixteen minutes. J. M. Learsch of the University of Pennsylvania arrived back ten seconds later, followed by Lewis Dusser, who represented Pittsburgh.

The acrobatic flying contest, which caused uneasiness among the spectators as they watched the youthful fliers executing Immelmann turns, falling leaf and other aerial hair raisers, was won by S. M. Kirkland, a Columbia student. Sumner Sewell of Yale was second and Samuel Paul of Pennsylvania was third. M. H. Pyne of Princeton, J. F. Keller of Pittsburgh and Robert Perry of Williams were the winners in the third event a contest for landing on the mark.

The alert competition made a hit with the spectators. The pilots were "asleep" on cots, which were placed on the field. At a given signal they jumped up, dressed in their flying togs and ran to get the planes up. R. H. Perry, a Williams student, took first honors, his time being 83 seconds. J. Manchester of Wesleyan and Sumner Sewell of Yale were the other two winners, getting their planes into the air only a few seconds behind Perry.

The success of the meet was discussed by Colonel Gerald C. Brant, Department Air Service officer, who pointed out that few of the participants had flown a plane since they left the service. He said that the college men had shown the results of their careful training in the air service.

Colonel Brant said he would recommend to the War Department that similar contests be held several times a year as an incentive to the reserve fliers to keep up their interest in flying. Laurence La Tourette Briggs, President of the American Flying Club, praised the nine colleges in the meet. They were Yale, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Cornell, Columbia, Williams, Wesleyan and Princeton.

Although the event was not on the program, an airplane carrying four passengers, piloted by Clarence Coombs, climbed to a height of 16,500 feet in an hour. The best previous record, according to aviators at the field, was 14,000 feet, made by the same pilot last week.

Allow Bell Extensions in Canada.

OTTAWA, May 7.—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada has received permission from the Railway Commission of the House of Commons to increase its capital stock from $30,000,000 to $75,000,000, it was announced today. An abnormal increase in the demand for telephones and the prospect of even larger business during the next five or ten years were the main reasons for the increase, according to C. F. Sise, Vice President and General Manager, who said the company expected to expend $50,000,000 in extending and improving its service.

Ninetieth and One Hundredth Street in the East End. He also said he knew that Mrs. Arkin on various occasions stopped at the Winton Hotel in Cleveland, the hostelry in which Eugene F. McGee testified at the hearings he met "Nicky" Arnstein last February when Arnstein first thought he would surrender and face the indictment lodged against him in General Sessions in connection with the thefts of securities from the financial district.

Mr. Myers said yesterday he had learned that Mortimer Bernstein, who was expected to prove an important "link" in the disposal of securities obtained from Arnstein and Cohen, died on April 11 last in the Lenox Hill Hospital, Lexington Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street. He said examination of the books of the Post-Graduate Hospital revealed that Bernstein had been a patient at that institution at different times from Sept. 6 to Nov. 5.

Mr. Myers said that the revelation that Bernstein, known as Morty Burns, was a patient in the hospital in the latter part of September, confirmed the statement of Joe Gluck, leader of a band of dishonest messengers who confessed to turning over to Arnstein and Cohen approximately $600,000 worth of stolen securities, that he visited the hospital with Cohen in the latter part of September to turn over to Bernstein about $16,000 worth of securities, which had been stolen the day before.

Mr. Myers admitted that although the death of Bernstein was a serious handicap to the search for stolen securities, detectives have developed other information regarding Bernstein's connection with the various bond plots which is expected to produce valuable results. Mr. Myers said a false impression had been created that surety companies in this city were forced to stand all losses through thefts of securities in the financial district. He said the companies suffered less than half of the losses; that brokerage houses suffered the remainder. He said that in many instances the brokerage houses were insured only to the extent of a part of their losses, while in others the brokerage houses were not insured.

The confession of David W. Sullivan, head of Sullivan & Co., brokers, who is now under $50,000 bail for receiving stolen securities from Arnstein and Cohen, resulted, Mr. Myers said, in the tracing of approximately $600,000 worth of stolen securities in banks in Washington and Philadelphia, where Sullivan had placed them between Oct. 15 and Nov. 18, 1919, as collateral for loans. He said that every security delivered to Sullivan by Arnstein and Cohen was accounted for, but that only a few of them had been recovered thus far, because the banks which accepted them from Sullivan have instituted proceedings in the civil courts in an effort to recover the money they advanced on them, the total of which amounts to $250,000. Five of the banks holding the securities, he said, are in Washington, while the sixth bank, the Franklin Trust Company of Philadelphia, has about $125,000 of the stolen securities.

Sullivan said he gave to Arnstein and Cohen about $125,000 of the money he received from the banks on he securities, and that all the money had been used in meeting obligations to the brokerage house. Mr. Myers intimated that neither he nor Mr. Dooling are satisfied with Sullivan's statement regarding that phase of the case.

Because of the pressure of other business in connection with the bankruptcy investigation Mr. Myers did not confront "Big Bill" Furey with James Kean and "Joe" Gluck in the Federal Court yesterday. When he was on the witness stand several days ago Furey demanded that Kean be forced to repeat certain statements in connection with the $5,000,000 bond plot in his presence. Mr. Myers said he expects to bring the three men together before Commissioner Gilchrist this morning, when both he and Assistant District Attorney Dooling will question the three men about certain details of the plot not heretofore made clear.

MAYOR DEFENDS NEW POLICE BOAT HYLAN

Information regarding the new police boat, the John F. Hylan, was given at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate, when the Police Commissioner obtained leave to transfer $10,000 from his department to the Department of Plant and Structures for repairs to the boat.

"Is that a pleasure yacht or a seagoing tug?" inquired the Mayor of Commissioner Grover A. Whalen.

"It's a sea-going tug," replied the Commissioner, producing a photograph of it.

"Show the picture to the members of the board," commanded the Mayor. "I want the people to know that it is not a pleasure yacht. I just want to nail a few cheap lies. We don't have much time for pleasure riding. It's a seagoing tug that can be used for taking garbage to sea in case of emergency."

"The boat is valued at $450,000, and we got it for the price of the repairs, $10,000," explained Commissioner Whalen.

Annual Re-grouping of Higher Priced Men's Suits in which we gather together all of our incomplete lines (in the present case amounting to 384 garments) that were REGULARLY PRICED UP TO $75

Now here's where our method of merchandising stands out. It is a rule in the clothing business to keep higher priced suits for end-of-season sales. But, as we see it, it is not only a fogey rule, but a foolish one. In the first place, our stocks must be complete at all times and if certain lines begin to be broken into (that is, if this style is missing or that size gone) we deem it necessary to clear them out forthwith, not to "salt them away" until the season is over in the hope that in the interval many garments may be sold at regular prices. Secondly, if this principle applies to lower priced suits it must also apply to the higher priced ones. Here, then, is the first chance you've had this year to get something really fine for very little money—very little, indeed!

COUNT LOSS AS WAR WASTE

Advisory Committee to Shipping Board Submits Proposal as to $3,000,000,000 in Ships.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Through its special committee the group of American business men asked by the Shipping Board to advise general terms upon which the board's ships should be disposed of made its report today. The committee recommends that the ships be sold at the present price of construction instead of at the pre-war price. Special attention is centred upon a recommendation that the vessels be disposed of only to responsible bidders.

The report was made through the Chairman of the committee, Eugene Meyer, Jr., who is also Chairman of the War Finance Corporation. Among its recommendations are:

"First—As the ships were built as a war measure and in a period of abnormal and excessive cost due to war conditions and to the fact that the industry had to be built up as a substantially new industry in this country, the abnormal costs should be absorbed as war waste, and the prices should be fixed upon the basis of present prices for reproduction, considering both foreign and domestic production costs.

"Second—The prices should be determined in a manner to assure stability, either by fixing prices for ships of given types and tonnage, which could be maintained over a period sufficiently long to give buyers the assurance that after they have contracted for purchases of ships they will not be placed at a disadvantage by subsequent reduction in prices, or by fixing prices with definite protection to buyers over a definite period, such protection to consist of an arrangement under careful safeguards for price readjustment should it subsequently prove necessary or desirable for the Shipping Board to reduce prices.

"Terms: Ten (10) per cent. cash, payable on delivery of the ship, with payments at the rate of 5 per cent. semi-annually for three years, making a total of 40 per cent. to be paid in by the end of the third year, the balance, or 60 per cent., to be payable in twelve yearly installments of 5 per cent. each."

The report says these terms have been arrived at with a view to making it possible under present financial conditions for buyers to arrange the necessary financing, and the committee recommends that purchasers be required to render audited accounts of operations and earnings on these ships, as the Shipping Board may direct.

Out of the earnings, after providing for interest, taxes and current payments on account of principal, the report says an adequate return on actual capital invested should be allowed to the purchasers at a rate to be fixed by the Board, while any surplus net earnings should be applied to additional payments of the installments of principal.

The committee would consider it preferable to have the anticipation of such installments, if any, applicable to the last installments due, but feels it may be advisable to have this in part applied to installments falling due in a period of possible business depression.

"Title should remain in the United States Government," adds the report, "with proper protection to it by purchaser's bond, or otherwise." It also proposes that a discount of 5 per cent. for cash payment in full on the delivery of the ship be allowed. Where cash is not paid in full, the committee suggests the buyer have the right to a cash discount of 2½ per cent. in case of full payment at any time within five years.

In case of default of principal or interest, the Government would have the right immediately to repossess any ships sold under a contract. The committee "ventures to emphasize the import of responsibility" of the purchasers, because it feels that, in a considerable degree, methods which restrict sales to responsible parties will give greater confidence to the class of buyers who desire to go into the shipping business in a substantial and permanent manner.

"Parties making purchase contracts should be protected against unequal competition from operating contracts upon unduly easy terms in connection with ships still unsold," the report holds, adding that "the Shipping board should keep itself prepared to recommend to Congress such legislation as may prove necessary from time to time to maintain American shipping on a sound internationally competitive basis."

In conclusion the report says: "It would seem proper, in view of the fact that the ships constitute a capital asset of the United States Government, that the funds received on account of repayment of principal should be applied to the redemption at market prices of Liberty Loan bonds or Victory Loan notes," and it urges that any proposal of legislation to Congress shall include a recommendation to this effect.

MERCHANTS, DEFIED, GATHER TRUCKS

Owners and Drivers' Unions Join in Refusing Aid in Transportation Fight.

FEDERAL INQUIRIES BEGIN

Tracing Interference with Food—Public Rights Committee to Hasten Independent Hauling.

The truckmen's unions and the truck owners yesterday aligned themselves squarely against the Committee for the Protection of Public Rights in the Transportation of Goods, in the fight to resume the free movement of merchandise, which has been interrupted by strikes of transportation workers and boycotts by sympathetic unions.

Abandoning all hope of a compromise with the truckmen which would insure the movement of goods without discrimination and regardless of industrial disputes at unloading points, the merchants' committee started gathering a fleet of trucks to be used in an independent trucking service under the committee's supervision. About 150 trucks have already been assured and, according to J. J. Lincoln, traffic manager of the Merchants' Association, they will be working in about a week.

Mr. Lincoln said that the committee hoped to have enough trucks to clear the piers within forty-eight hours from the time they were put into operation. In the meantime independent truckmen are being hired to move goods which the union drivers have refused to handle.

"We are going to break up this interference with transportation even if we have to go to the extent of deunionization," said Mr. Lincoln.

While the opposing forces were lining up for a finish fight the Government took a hand in the situation and started an investigation of the loss of food directly due to industrial troubles, with a view to beginning prosecution under the Lever act of persons responsible for the tieup. Special investigators were put to work, and, in addition, the Government's "Flying Squadron" of investigators is conducting an independent inquiry.

Unions' Agents Take Action.

Agents from sixteen teamsters' locals, whose membership, they say, totaled 44,000 union men, met yesterday at 218 West Fifty-eighth Street and passed resolutions announcing their willingness "to accept the challenge of the Merchants' Association." Edward McCaffrey of the Transportation Trades Council presided. The resolutions said:

"Whereas, the Merchants' Association and the New York State Chamber of Commerce have in a statement in the daily press sent out an ultimatum to the teamsters' and chauffeurs' unions of New York City to the effect that it was the intention of the Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce to create an organization whose avowed purpose was to fight the teamsters and chauffeurs of New York City, and,

"Whereas, in their statements to the daily press the bodies did not make plain the true facts of the tsrike on the four coastwise lines, and that these four lines do not handle more than 3 per cent. of the transportation of the Port of New York, and,

"Whereas, it is a deliberate misstatement of the true facts, whose only motive can be to create a false public opinion to the detriment of our organizations, and,

"Whereas, we can show our members handle 95 per cent. of the commodities necessary for the sustenance of the public welfare, and that we can show that much of these commodities are transported by our members from points as far distant as 100 miles from New York City,

"Therefore, be it resolved, we go on record as favoring any legitimate move toward a conference with the end in view of an amicable settlement of the coastwise strike.

"Be it further resolved, we are willing to co-operate in such an undertaking, but reserve the right of trade unionists to accept the challenge of the Merchants' Association on behalf of our 44,000 members in New York City if an amicable settlement cannot be reached."

Say Strike May Be Forced.

Union leaders asserted that if the merchants carried out their plan for an independent trucking company and attempted to haul goods with nonunion men, a general strike of the truckmen might be forced. They said the sentiment for a strike was general among the locals.

The truck owners made it plain yesterday that they would not attempt to force the union drivers to deliver goods to places where strikes were in progress. Their general attitude was that if they insisted upon the action demanded by the merchants they would be tying up all the city's trucking. At present, they asserted, only about 5 per cent. of transportation is affected by the strike of the four coastwise lines.

Twenty-seven truck owners met at the Merchants' Association offices in the Woolworth Building and told the committee that they could not comply with the committee's ultimatum. Similar statements were made by officials of other trucking corporations, among them James J. Riordan of the United States Trucking Corporation, the biggest concern of its kind in the world. Mr. Riordan issued a statement in which he said:

"The United States Trucking Corporation, like all other concerns in the trucking business, is a service corporation. If strikes, embargoes, &c., at terminals or docks make it impossible for us to move goods our equipment remains idle, and instead of making a profit we suffer a great loss. It should be clear, therefore, that this corporation or any other trucking concern is most earnestly concerned in the avoidance or limitation of strikes, embargoes and other traffic disturbances."

Mr. Riordan denied as untrue an implication that the trucking concerns of this city are directly or indirectly responsible for the continuance of labor tieups at certain coastwise shipping lines. He said further:

"Nowhere is stress given to the fact that only four coastwise shipping lines out of the vast transportation facilities centring in New York are now tied up by industrial disputes. It is doubtful whether these lines involve 5 per cent. of the freight moving in and out of New York City. By attending to our trucking business and concerning ourselves equally in giving the best possible service to our customers and fair treatment to our employes we are able to attend to our part of the 95 per cent. of the city's freight, which is not affected by the coastwise troubles.

Gain Would Be Doubtful.

"If we were to adopt the contrary policy of making it our business to interfere in an industrial dispute that is not ours we would seriously endanger our part of the 95 per cent. of the city's freight for a doubtful gain benefiting less than 5 per cent. of the volume.

"It is true that all of our workers are unionized. We have found over a long experience that this arrangement is the only one that assures continued good service in this particular industry.

"The public should make a distinction between trucking unions and trucking concerns—our own, for example, representing an investment of several millions of dollars.

"Traffic conditions in and about New York City are most certainly open to improvement. We take the liberty of expressing the belief that improvements will come not by formula or redundant resolution, but rather by patient, painstaking study that gives due regard to the inherent difficulties in this and all other human undertakings. We also wish to take this opportunity of saying that the United States Trucking Corporation stands ready to work at all times with the Merchants' Association and similar organizations and with organized labor in working for the improvement of the movement of freight in and about New York City."

Mr. Riordan said that his company had about 150 trucks in service to relieve the tieup caused by the "outlaw" railroad strike. Many of the trucks have been bringing in meat for the big packers, he said. Others have been sent to points in New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania to transport raw materials to keep factories running.

Suggests Adjustment with Union.

A. M. Becker, Secretary of the New York Team Owners' Association, said last night that he believed the action of the Merchants' Association and the other organizations associated with it in the transportation fight would "only make matters worse."

"If these organizations try to form trucking companies they will find it impossible to get enough men to drive the trucks," he said. "The trucking companies even now are having trouble in finding men. The merchants' plan is theoretical rather than practical. The most logical thing they can do is to appoint a committee and adjust this matter with the union."

Special Federal investigators are taking testimony at the Federal Building with regard to the waste of perishable foodstuffs. Several fish merchants testified yesterday that barrels of fish had to be thrown away because union truckmen would not handle them.

It was learned yesterday that the Merchants' Association had sent a copy of its resolutions announcing its intention of breaking the transportation tie-up to United States District Attorney Caffey. Proceedings under the Lever act for interference with transportation as a result of industrial disputes are being considered, it is said.

J. J. Price of the Government's "flying squadron" said that members of the squad were making an investigation on the water front of the reported waste in foodstuffs. He said that if direct evidence against any person or persons could be found prosecutions would be started under the Lever act. Mr. Price said that the "squadron's" inquiry was separate from the other Federal investigation.

Flour Shortage Reported.

A serious shortage of flour as a result of the railroad tieup was reported yesterday. E. G. Broenniman, President of the Broenniman Company, flour dealers on the Produce Exchange, said that if transportation conditions did not improve by the end of next week the city would face a flour famine.

John Wade of the Zabriskie Company, also of the Produce Exchange, said that about 10 per cent. of the flour was moving. "There is plenty of flour in transit from the mills," Mr. Wade said, "but most of it is tied up in Jersey City and in Buffalo. If we could only get the flour that is now standing in New Jersey over to this side of the river, we could unload it, no matter where the cars are placed.

"Bakers and grocers are pleading with us to help them out. We are doing all we can and the railroads are trying to do their part, but they are up against a hard proposition. This firm got several carloads through this week. That is an improvement, but the store in the city is being used up so fast that conditions will be very serious if the transportation situation does not improve by next week."

Flour dealers said that usually the city has about a month's supply here, but that by far the greater part of the normal supply had been consumed. The normal daily consumption was estimated by Mr. Wade at 30,000 barrels.

RICHMOND TRACTION INJUNCTIONS ISSUED

Interference with Eight-Cent Fare Barred—Midland Rise Held Up.

PUBLIC CROWDS TO BUSES

B. R. T. Receiver Refuses to Meet Union Committee and Raps Mayor Hylan.

Two injunctions came out of the Staten Island trolley muddle yesterday, one issued by Federal Judge Chatfield in Brooklyn, restraining any interference with the operation of the lines of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company at an 8-cent fare, and the other, issued by Justice Lydon of the Supreme Court, restraining Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon from considering application which may be made by the Staten Island Midland Railway Company for permission to increase the fare.

The Midland Company suspended operation on the ground that it was losing much money at the 5-cent fare rate, and Jacob A. Brenner, receiver of the company, stated on Thursday that he would make no effort to operate the lines until he saw how the lines of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company fared at the three-cent increase. The injunction in the case of this company was in the form of an alternative writ of prohibition and is returnable before Justice Whittaker on Tuesday.

Late last night it was said that Captain John J. Kuhn, receiver of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company, would ask the courts to restrain the buses from operating in competition with the trolley cars. If this is done the action will follow the lines of those taken by the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, where a decision favorable to the company is pending on appeal, and the action of Job E. Hedges of the New York Railways Company.

All talk as to the probability of the employes of the company resuming their strike because of the increased fare was disposed of last night at a meeting of about 250 motormen, conductors and machinists, where it was voted to make a contract with the receiver for one year. Details of this agreement were settled in the afternoon at a conference between a committee of the employes and Captain Kuhn at the latter's office in Manhattan.

Wage Agreement Approved.

Under the terms of this agreement the motormen, conductors and machinists are to receive, for a ten-hour day, 50 cents an hour for the first three months from May 5 and 55 cents for the remaining nine months, with time and a half for overtime. There is also a tentative arragement by which the men are to receive still more pay within the contract time if the earnings of the company are sufficient to warrant it.

While these proceedings were going on Staten Islanders continued their protest against the 8-cent fare. The cars of the Richmond Light and Railroad Company ran comparatively empty while the buses, operated under the supervision of the city, ran at a 5-cent fare. It was the general opinion that unless the company could carry at the increased rate its pre-strike traffic it would not be able to pay the increased wages of its employes and would have to go out of business again.

Nobody seemed to know whether the injunction against interfering with the car service included the competition of the buses, and when a delegation of citizens appeared in the afternoon before the Board of Estimate to discuss the situation there was some doubt as to whether the matter could be talked about without committing a contempt of court. The delegation was introduced by John E. Bowe, Commissioner of Public Work of Richmond County, who was acting in place of Calvin D. Van Name, the Borough President. He explained that the delegation wanted to state the action taken at a mass meeting of Staten Islanders last Wednesday night.

Controller Craig said that the order restraining interference with Captain Kuhn had been served upon him, and suggested that it be read before any action was taken. The order, he thought, was so broad "that we can't even think about it, let alone hear the complaint of citizens." The order was sent for, but the board declined to wait, and told the delegation to go ahead. Mayor Hylan said he was willing to risk going to jail in order to give citizens the right to speak ther minds.

Want Franchises Forfeited.

Thereupon F. A Verdon, Chairman of the delegation, stated that all but nine of the 500 persons at the mass meeting voted in favor of adopting the report of Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, to the effect that the franchises of the trolley companies be declared forfeited; that the city build a power and lighting plant on Staten Island, and that more buses be operated. He also said that the people were boycotting the cars, and that if the company would use the money paid to high-priced lawyers it would have money enough to pay good wages.

Francis Lehman, who was among those who spoke, said that the resumption of the trolley service was without meaning.

"There are only about six persons riding in each car," said Mr. Lehman, "and if the company were unable to pay its men with crowded cars at a five-cent fare, how can it be done with an eight-cent fare and few passengers?"

Mayor Hylan charged Public Service Commissioner Nixon with acting solely in the interest of the corporations. Controller Craig expressed an opinion that the board was violating Judge Chatfield's injunction against interference with Receiver Kuhn, and referred to a case in Ohio where it was held that anything in the nature of resistance or tending to it was a violation of the order.

F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, said that the board had a right to supply the people of the island with transportation and that Commissioner Nixon had no power to increase the fare. He was ready, he said, to offer a resolution authorizing Mr. Whalen to send all of the vehicles available to Staten Island for the use of the people.

Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien was asked if such a resolution would be a violation of Judge Chatfield's order, and when he replied that the question would have to be considered he was directed by the Mayor to consider it immediately.

"I don't care," said Mr. LaGuardia, "how bold a Public Service Commissioner may be or how daring a judge may be, he would not dare to punish the Board of Estimate for contempt for acting in a crisis. I am willing to face jail, if necessary."

Says Passengers Balk at Fare.

The report of Commissioner Whalen stated that many passengers had refused to pay the eight-cent fare, and added:

"If these lines carry as many passengers as last year, 9,623,672, the increased revenue will be $240,000 at the strip ticket rate, or $288,000 at the eight-cent rate, and the increase in the pay of the men will be only $60,000."

Mr. Whalen said that the action of the company in increasing the rate added to the grounds on which the forfeiture of the company's franchises could be claimed, because the contract with the city stipulated for a five-cent fare. He also called attention to the hearing before the Public Service Commission on the question of a possible breakdown of the lighting and power plant of the company, which would leave Richmond Borough in darkness. He said that the hearing had been adjourned for two months without any action being taken.

Dr. Louis A. Dreyfus, President of the Staten Island Civic League, issued a statement during the day in favor of the increased fare. He said that he had called a meeting of the league for May 17 for a discussion of the question of transportation.

After telling Mayor Hylan that the threatened strike of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America was an attempt to force "closed shop" conditions and suggesting that the Mayor refrain from encouraging such a strike, Receiver Lindley M. Garrison of the B. R. T. refused last night the request of a committee of the Amalgamated Association for a meeting with him today.

Garrison Replies to Men.

Mr. Garrison said the committee sought to confer with him on matters which had not been brought to his attention officially. The letter asking for the interview today was signed by Edwin L. Smith, Chairman, who said that the committee desired to talk to him about their charges that inspectors, revenue men and starters were seeking to form a co-operative brotherhood union, and also to talk about their demand for free transportation for employes of the road. Receiver Garrison said in his reply:

"In respect to the matter of charges against employes, nothing further can be done until the charges are filed. As yet none have been received. In regard to free transportation, as I told you yesterday, this matter has not been submitted to me for consideration, and until it has been, I, of course, cannot act upon it. I note that you suggest a meeting on Saturday morning in respect to these two matters, but such a meeting would be utterly useless, since I can do nothing in respect of charges until they are filed, and can do nothing in respect to the matter of free transportation until I have received the papers in connection therewith."

In his reply to the letter of Mayor Hylan, asking the receiver to "adjust conditions in such a way that the traveling public would not be inconvenienced," Mr. Garrison in part wrote:

"I do not know who called upon you and what representations they made to you which induced you to write me. The matter in controversy was fully considered at a meeting between the committee and myself yesterday. I have had nothing whatever to do with organizing or fostering any labor organizations among the employes, and even the committee does not claim otherwise. I have stated frequently, and still maintain the same attitude, that, so far as the management is concerned, the employes may join whatever organization they please, the only restriction being that such organization shall not be anti-social in its objects.

"In respect of the complaint regarding the conduct of employes, I stated to the committee that upon charges being filed there would be open, free and impartial hearings, and that any employe guilty of improper conduct would be properly and promptly disciplined.

"If the committee intend to bring about a strike unless they can procure a 'closed shop,' the resulting inconvenience to the traveling public will be laid at the door of the committee and not that of the management. I hope that they cannot induce you to encourage them in this respect."

Gas Company Pleads Poverty.

Terence Farley, counsel of the Public Service Commission, applied to Justice Fawcett in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday for an order compelling the Kings County Lighting Company to supply the people of the 30th Ward with gas. Counsel of the company replied that under the 80-cent gas rate the company did not earn enough to pay operating charges, that it had no money, and that it could borrow none to extend its service. The matter was adjourned until Monday.

COLBY WANTS GIBSON AS HIS ASSISTANT

Minister to Poland Said to Have Been Offered Post, but Has Not Replied.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The post of Assistant Secretary of State is said to have been offered to Hugh S. Gibson, now Minister to Poland. Mr. Gibson, who is home on leave, has been drafted by Secretary Colby temporarily to carry on the affairs of the Assistant Secretary's office and has been there a week or ten days.

Secretary Colby has received no answer from Mr. Gibson, who is enthusiastic over his assignment to Poland and may prefer to remain in Warsaw.

Frank L. Polk, Under Secretary of State, resigned some time ago and it is supposed that he will leave the department June 12.

William Phillips, former Assistant Secretary, became Minister to the Netherlands several months ago. Lester H. Woolsey, Solicitor of the Department, resigned to join ex-Secretary Lansing in a law firm.

Secretary Colby still has as his second assistant the veteran Alva A. Adee, and as Third Assistant Secretary Breckenridge Long. Mr. Long is a candidate for the Senatorial nomination in Missouri, and, if successful, will leave the department to make the campaign.

If Mr. Gibson becomes Assistant Secretary his appointment would be in line with the policy begun by Root, suspended by Bryan, and revived by Lansing, to fill State Department and diplomatic posts with men trained in that service. Mr. Gibson has been in the diplomatic service twelve years. He came into much prominence when he sought to save the life of Edith Cavell, who was executed by the Germans. Mr. Gibson was then Secretary to the legation at Brussels.

Mr. Gibson was appointed Secretary of the Legation at Tegucigalpa in July, 1906. He was later Second Secretary at London, confidential clerk to the Secretary of State, Secretary at Havana, Secretary at Brussels, and again Secretary at London. He was assigned to the State Department in February, 1917, and was attached to the Balfour and Belgian missions when they visited this country.

He received his present appointment to Poland last year.

The Gillette Big Fellow

THE BIG FELLOW is a new Gillette. Bigger in handle and head.

For the bigger man who is seen today all over America.

When the men of this country went to war, the Gillette Safety Razor went with them.

In the hands of four million red-blooded Americans, it met the severest test that a razor was ever put to.

Out of that experience we have built the new Gillette Big Fellow—a razor for the army of peace.

The razor is new, but the Gillette principle is built into it.

No Stropping—No Honing—has stood for a saving of time and effort to millions of men the world over for sixteen years.

Each two-edged, keen Gillette Blade gives many velvet-smooth shaves—then you simply throw it away and put in a new one.

In these days of hustle and go a man's time is worth more than the cost of the keenest steel.

Men, put one of those tried Gillette Blades in the new Big Fellow and enjoy the cleanest, smoothest, most satisfying shave you ever had in your life.

There are more than a quarter of a million Gillette dealers in this country. Ask one of them to show you the Big Fellow.

VICE INQUIRY BRINGS BIG POLICE SHIFT

Thirty-four Policemen Transferred from Inspector Henry's Old District.

INVESTIGATION GOES ON

Grand Jury Hears Broker's Lawyer—Canon W. S. Chase Reports "Joker" in Boxing Bill.

The March Grand Jury, which indicted ex-Third Deputy Police Commissioner Augustus Drum Porter, Inspector Dominick Henry and others, continued to hear testimony involving Inspector Henry and other members of the Police Department yesterday.

At the same time, it was learned that Police Commissioner Enright had transferred to other parts of the city a large number of the policemen who were on duty in the Fourth Inspection District while it was under Inspector Henry. Twenty of the policemen were transferred from the West Forty-seventh Street Station, eight from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, and six from the West 100th Street Station. The shakeup in the West Forty-seventh Street Station was the most complete since Commissioner Waldo, tired of the problems which confronted him in that precinct, transferred every policeman from duty there, supplanting them with the newest of his "rookie" policemen to make a complete new start.

Mayer L. Halff, lawyer for Block, Maloney & Co., went before the jury to explain the stock transactions of Inspector Henry, which resulted in a debt of $12,000 of Inspector Henry to the firm. The brokers wrote off the $12,000 as a loss. After appearing before the Grand Jury, Mr. Halff explained this by saying that at the time, Inspector Henry had convinced them that he had no way of raising money to meet all his losses, and the firm took what he could pay and accepted a net loss of $12,000.

Later, he said, after Inspector Henry had come into considerable money, through the death of an aunt, the firm reopened his account, without any settlement of this debt.

Mr. Halff said that he was anxious to have it understood that this was an ordinary commercial transaction and that the brokers were not making a present of $12,000 to Inspector Henry. He said that the firm had no interests which Inspector Henry could protect.

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith said that the account had been explained and that he was satisfied that it was perfectly proper. Mr. Smith also placed before the Grand Jury Inspector Henry's account with the Harriman National Bank, showing that he had made some large deposits during the period that he was in charge of the Fourth Inspection District.

The trial of Inspector Henry on the charge of neglect of duty, in permitting seventy-three alleged disorderly resorts to run in his district, is set to begin on Monday. Inspector Henry has promised through his lawyer to prove that no disorderly resorts existed in his district while he was in charge of it and that the part of the city policed by him was cleaner while he was Inspector than ever before.

Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the International Reform Bureau, called on Assistant District Attorney Smith yesterday and asked him to investigate the origin of the Walker Boxing bill, which is now awaiting the signature of Governor Smith.

Canon Chase said that he had discovered that the bill had a "joker" in it, which was designed to make prize-fighting a private monopoly in the State and to revive prize-fighting in its most brutal form. The "joker," he said, was Section 21 of the bill, which reads:

"The weights and classes of boxers and the rules and regulations of boxing shall be the same as the weights and classes and rules and regulations adopted by the Army, Navy and Civilian Board of Boxing Control, Inc., and the International Sporting Club of Greater New York, Inc."

Canon Chase said thot this title was deceptive, giving the impression that army and navy regulations would be followed, whereas the organization named in the bill was composed of private individuals who had no official connection with the Army and Navy.

Canon Chase said that he wanted the Grand Jury to investigate the charge that a conspiracy had been formed to put the bill through under false covers, and that leading figures in the conspiracy were English backers of Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight. Mr. Smith said that he would present the matter to the Grand Jury later.

4,500 RUBBER WORKERS OUT

Quit at Bristol on Wage Dispute and Plant Closes.

BRISTOL, R. I., May 7.—Dissatisfaction over a schedule of increased wages which went into effect at the plant of the National India Rubber Company today caused a strike that grew to include most of the 4,500 employes. The management estimated that about 500 hands remained at work.

The employes formulated no demands, but complained that individual increases amounted only to 4 per cent., while they had expected more.

After a conference between the factory management and some of the workers, the entire plant was closed at noon with the announcement that the closing was for an indefinite period.

And the Other Presidential Candidates Is Clearly Shown In "The Digest's" Mammoth Poll
Of 11,000,000 Voters

There are from fifty to sixty thousand votes being received daily in THE LITERARY DIGEST'S great presidential poll of 11,000,000 voters. As the vote grows and all sections of the country begin to be represented, a number of editors comment on the really popular expression of opinion which these ballots represent. The Troy Record makes the interesting suggestion that by means of such polls "it may be possible for the people to shake themselves free from paid publicity and artificially stimulated candidacies and indicate the men they want to that class of representatives who really want to know." In trade and labor circles, in political clubs, in fact wherever men and women congregate throughout the country, THE LITERARY DIGEST poll is arousing the most intense interest, as is evidenced by our daily mail.

More than 700,000 votes are tabulated and shown in THE LITERARY DIGEST for May 8th. When it is remembered that eleven million voters, almost two-thirds of the vote cast in the last presidential election, are being canvassed some idea of the magnitude of the enterprise will be gained. Every ballot is mailed in an envelop, and delivered through the U. S. Post-office personally to the voter addrest. Return postage on the ballot is prepaid, and the voter has only to check or write the name of his or her party and the first and second choice for Presidential candidates. Thus every vote cast is absolutely a secret ballot.

If you are not following this unique poll through the pages of THE DIGEST weekly, begin to do so this week. Other important articles in this number of THE DIGEST are:

LUSITANIA SINKING OBSERVED IN CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Stires Preaches Sermon on Fifth Anniversary of the Event.

NO 'HYMN OF HATE,' HE SAYS

Sons of Revolution Not Represented, as They Wish to Discourage Discord.

Yesterday, which was the fifth anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania, was a fitting day to remind England that today our dead and her dead lie in the deep sea with their arms about each other, according to the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. This was one of the lessons Dr. Stires drew in a sermon delivered in his church held under the auspices of twenty-two patriotic societies of this city yesterday afternoon to commemorate that event.

Dr. Stires pointed out a reason for reminding England of this fact was that an act of the last few months toward her had not yet been apologized for. He did not mention what this was, but some of his hearers construed that the rector meant the recognition of "the Irish Republic."

Some comment was caused that the Sons of the Revolution took no official part in the memorial service. Asked about this last evening at his home in the Devon Hotel, 70 West Fifty-fifth Street, Robert Olyphant, banker, who is President of that organization, said:

"After careful consideration the Board of Managers of the Sons of the Revolution decided they did not care officially to participate in a Lusitania memorial service, as they did not wish to perpetuate the doctrine of hatred. We did not ask any of our members, however, not to attend. Several of the other leading patriotic societies took the same action, I understand."

The service was largely attended by prominent men and women. Among those present was Major Gen. Sir Charles Townshend of the British Army. Others were Major Creighton Webb, Major Louis Livingston Seaman, and Colonel Coggswell. A detachment of soldiers from the United States Infantry, Fort Jay, Governors Island, in charge of Chaplain Edmund Banks Smith, marched in procession about the church before the service carrying the flags of the Allies.

In the chancel with Dr. Stires were Canon Lampen who today will sail for England; Rev. Dr. Anson P. Atterbury, Presbyterian, and the Rev. Dr. Floyd S. Leach, assistant to Dr. Stires. James B. Townsend of the American Rights League arranged for the service. He was chief usher, and the others were Frederick Delano Weeks, Dr. Edward Hageman Hall, Edward de Peyster Livingston and Arthur F. Schermerhorn.

The organizations participating were: American Defense Society, Alliance Francaise, American Rights League, Colonial Dames State of New York, Colonial Order of Acorn, Daughters of the Cincinnati, Daughters of the Revolution, Huguenot Society of America, Long Island Historical Society, Military Order of Foreign Wars, Military Order Loyal Legion of the United States, National Security League, New York Historical Society, New York State Society of the Cincinnati, National Society of the United States Daughters of 1812, New York County Andrew Jackson Chapter, St. Andrew's Society, St. George's Society, St. Nicholas Society, Sons of the American Revolution, the Pilgrims, Veteran Corps of Artillery and Military Society War of 1812. Several women's clubs also participated.

Dr. Stires stated that his audience was not present to sing a "Hymn of Hate." Rather was it the duty of America to learn certain lessons from the Lusitania tragedy, Dr. Stires declared. One of these was that law must be respected. Another lesson was the words of Charles Frohman that death was the greatest adventure of life.

DEAD MAN'S TIRES STOLEN.

Two Arrests Made After George Weaver's Car Had Been Stripped.

Rudolph Wagner, of 1,222 Simpson Street, the Bronx, and Andrew Paschovsky, of 284 Avenue A, Manhattan, were arrested yesterday at the order of Coroner George Engle of Bronxville on the charge of stealing the tires from the automobile of George H. Weaver, Vice President of the Remington Typewriter Company, after he met his death in an automobile on the White Road last Sunday morning.

The two prisoners, who were driving a motor truck, discovered the accident and reported it to the police. When it was learned that the tires and a gold watch and chain belonging to the dead man had been stolen, the truckmen were watched. According to the police, the tires were found at Paschovsky's room yesterday.

Queens Tunnel Formally Opened.

The tunnel under the East River at the foot of Sixtieth Street, which will be used by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, was opened yesterday with formal proceedings. Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney, accompanied by members of his staff, and led by girls in costumes singing patriotic airs, marched through the tunnel to Queens and back again to Manhattan.

"Five Thousand Dollars Damages!"

The foreman of the jury says four words—and those four words cost you a year's income.

Whether it was your fault or not, the court has decided, "Five Thousand Dollars."

Now who is going to pay? You? Or the American Mutual?

A little foresight on your part right now may save you thousands of dollars. Let us tell you about the American Mutual; for the American Mutual offers you not only complete liability protection, prompt settlement of claims, and freedom from annoyance, but also a remarkable record of cash-saving due to the efficient working of the Mutual system.

For the past 33 years the American Mutual has returned to its policyholders never less than 30% of their premiums each year.

30% of your Automobile Insurance premium! How much is that in dollars and cents? Isn't it worth tearing off the coupon in the corner?

Save Money—Get Automobile Insurance by Mail

The American Mutual sells automobile insurance by mail. The savings come back to you in the form of dividends. It does business by mail, administers its affairs economically, and is thus able to save money each year for the benefit of its policyholders.

Because it has never failed to give the Utmost Protection at the Lowest Cost, it is today not only the oldest, but the largest and strongest Mutual Liability Insurance Company in America.

Fill out and send us the coupon—right now. It is for our information only, and it obligates you in no way. We will at once send you our booklet "Less 30%," which tells you exactly how we can serve you with our nationwide protection, and at the same time save you money.

We can tell you in dollars and cents what the cost of your automobile insurance should be. Then you can prove to yourself how the American Mutual can save you money.

No agent will visit you. The information will be sent you by mail. The facts and figures will convince you, as they have convinced thousands of other auto owners. If you are already insured, it will mean money in your pocket. If you are not insured, it will mean not only money saving, but peace of mind, and protection when you need it most.

The accident may come when you expect it least—but you can protect yourself in time—if you send the coupon today.

HOW
The Curtis Publishing Company addresses 810,000 pieces of mail matter daily

NINE wonderful Belknap Duplex Machines form the backbone of the Curtis Publishing Company's addressing department.

Daily they make child's play of the job of moving a mountain of mail on its way to all parts of the globe.

How they do it?—is to tell the story of the largest publisher's circulation department in the world—too much for a small advertisement.

Briefly, however, here is what one No. 5 Belknap Duplex machine will accomplish in one operation at a continuous speed of 7,500 per hour:—

1. Address and list names on mailer strip
2. Print and cut proof of stencils in strips at any desired lengths for binding
3. Automatically pick out the expiring stencils and file them in separate drawers
4. Count and register the number of subscriptions, automatically skipping and not counting postal divisions

In point of speed, versatility, and human cunning, the Belknap Duplex machine is undoubtedly pre-eminent among addressing contrivances.

But the important fact from your standpoint is that there are other remarkable Belknap Addressing machines as admirably suited to other businesses, as the Belknap Duplex is suited to the vast addressing needs of the Curtis Publishing Company.

There is a Belknap System of Addressing for your business. What is more, you are paying for it in leaks and losses due to old-fashioned methods if you are not using one.

Why not have it? With a typewriter and a stenographer to operate it you are half equipped for a Belknap System of Addressing.

The famous Belknap stencil which is the very heart of the efficiency and economy of every Belknap System is cut on your regular office typewriter; your stenographer cuts it exactly as if she were addressing an envelope.

Once made, your addressing problem is entirely a question of how many stencils you need, what you want to print with them, and how often. There is a Belknap machine which answers that problem for every business—large or small.

Phone Gramercy 6363, or write today for a Belknap Service Expert to call and discuss your Addressing problems. Send for descriptive book—yours for the asking.

CARRANZA'S APPEAL.

In his manifesto to the people of Mexico President CARRANZA declared that, "independently of the constitutional measures" at his command, he "would invoke all other measures "which public convenience and patriotism may advise" to prevent the success of the military leaders who had defied his authority and called upon him to surrender his office; and there follows a conclusion, or prediction, that they "would continue to "cause bloodshed by dispute among "themselves." Whatever mistakes of policy the civilian President may have committed, and however wrong-headed he may appear in his controversies with the United States, it is impossible not to respect him for his resolute stand against the Generals who have deserted him. After seven years of leadership and almost three years as President under the Constitution, he sturdily affirms that he will not yield to them, and that he will remain in power to turn over his office to "whomever shall be legally designated to succeed him." If he is to go down, it will be with colors flying.

But will CARRANZA be able to escape the fate of other Mexican Presidents who have appealed to the people to support them against the plots and violence of military chiefs in similar crises? Most of these ill-starred rulers were soldier dictators and fell or perished by the sword. Like MADERO, CARRANZA is not a man on horseback, but he is made of sterner stuff than the amiable visionary who was murdered by the associates of HUERTA. CARRANZA can maintain himself in power only by confronting his enemies with loyal troops and inspiring them with his ideals or pandering to their greed. He must know that most of the men wearing the Federal uniform are impervious to ideals. It is a vain cry when he exhorts "the people" to "determine that those "who yesterday pretended to be their "defenders shall not be permitted, "with the aid of firearms, to dictate "their new leaders." The issue between CARRANZA on the one side and the insurgents headed by OBREGON on the other must be decided by firearms. It is the Mexican way.

The theorist and reformer of Coahuila will prove himself a truly great Mexican if he prevails in the contest. A campaign chest full of pesos would help him mightily. Has he sufficient resources? Mexicans are seldom for the under dog. Let a leader experience failing fortunes or defeat and his followers begin to abandon him. The prestige of CARRANZA is tarnished. The stars in their courses do not seem to be fighting for him. Desertions from his ranks are reported every day. Mexicans are not celebrated for fidelity to a losing cause. When the troops of CARRANZA and of FRANCISCO VILLA were battling on the border the side temporarily successful attracted recruits in droves. After VILLA suffered disaster at Celaya—he had been at the meridian of his fame—so many of his soldiers went over to OBREGON that VILLA's descent to obscurity was rapid. In battle with ANGELES both OBREGON and BLANCO were so roughly used that they retreated precipitately, leaving thousands of their men in the camp of ANGELES. A Mexican officer reproached for deserting from MADERO to FELIX DIAZ unblushingly retorted: "How can "one be a patriot if he is on the los"ing side?" President CARRANZA's manifesto of appeal to his people is a curious and, in some parts, a pathetic document. His enemies will regard it as a swan song, and his friends will cynically ask whether he has the money to pay his troops handsomely and can still offer "inducements" to Generals who have not gone over to the insurgents. Time will tell, and probably the time will be brief.

THE NEW RAILWAY POLICY.

The appointment of a railway President as an Interstate Commerce Commissioner has a significance apart from the personality of the Commissioner. It is nothing less than an acknowledgment of past oppression of the railways in the interest of shippers and politicians. Also, it is an augury of greater regard for the interests of the railways as the interests of the country, including the shippers. In the generation since the enactment of the interstate commerce law no railway man of first calibre has hitherto been appointed, and there has seemed ground for the belief that charges against the railways by those who had personal grievances against them were welcomed by the officials who now have come to see that it is as much their duty to protect the railways as to prosecute their managers or reduce their rates. While railway men and financiers have been excluded from the Commission, State regulators have been appointed, and their point of view has been even more anti-railway than that of the Federal Commissioners, even down to the current time.

The Carolina, Clinchfield & Ohio Railway is not of the first rank, and President POTTER is not a national figure. If he were, probably he could not be got for a position of such responsibility and little reward financially, but of great opportunity. As a brakeman and a telegrapher he necessarily absorbed labor's point of view, and that is an additional attraction so long as it is not pressed contrary to general interests. His road is a coal carrier and more important in its connections than in its mileage. The politics of the new Commissioner is mentioned in connection with the balance of the parties within the Commission. As politics should have nothing to do with railway management, the requirement of the law is of scant propriety, and its satisfaction is all that it is worth while to mention.

The time is ripe for a new departure which shall emphasize the business side of regulation rather than the judicial. The Commission has sought heretofore to make itself a court and to decide rate questions as matter of ethics and morality, naming rates which "ought" to be paid permanently rather than rates required by economics and subject to alteration with economic conditions. On that idea it took months for decisions which competent regulators of long experience might have decided in weeks, or often in days. Business men are accustomed to make large decisions promptly and to change errors as promptly. It has taken thirty years to change the policy of the Commission, and it has received a new lease of life after what it may be hoped will be an adequate education through bitter experience.

MR. HEALY'S CURIOUS TALK.

In his remarks to the Railroad Labor Board Mr. TIMOTHY HEALY, President of the Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen and Oilers, an amiable and alert labor leader, deservedly rich in friends in this city and elsewhere, made some queer charges. He said that the "crusade" of "a high Government official," evidently the Attorney General, against radicals, was "undoubtedly for the purpose of aid"ing in the campaign of certain em"ployers of the country to secure "laws establishing involuntary serv"itude." Such an assertion requires no answer. Mr. HEALY also communicated the singular discovery that "many honest and sincere people "have listened to the poisoned tongue "and read the output of poison pens "until they believe that labor is dis"loyal." He had actually been instructed to submit to the board proof of what not a single soul, so far as we know, has ever doubted—the loyalty of the railroad men in the war. The faithful and fruitful service, the absolute loyalty, not only of the railroad men, but of all organized labor in the war, was admired and praised throughout the country. It is an undeniable and undenied fact.

One cannot help feeling that Mr. HEALY, like so much of the rest of the world, feels something of that extreme irritability and exacerbation of the nerves so widespread in the war and since the armistice. He seems obsessed with the notion that the Government's proper measures of self-protection and self-defense against Communists, I. W. W.'s and Bolsheviki are really directed against organized labor. This notion is the more extraordinary because these men are not only public enemies, but enemies of the labor organizations, which they are seeking to disrupt or control. It is for the interest of Mr. HEALY and his union and of all honest and patriotic unions that these men should be checked, yet he blames the Government for acting in its own interest and that of the unions, an interest which is one with that of all loyal Americans. And hear this passage:

> Government officials who are seeking to discredit labor by concocting conspiracies made it appear that the wage workers are a band of murderers and government-destroyers. If the Government officials and Congress had given as much attention to limiting the profits of the profiteers as they did to pounding and hounding the wage earner, the cost of living would have been decreased to figures within reason. But they are with the profiteers and, in order to hide that fact, they direct all their energy in attacking any one who works for wages.

This is slashing rhetoric, but how strange it looks coming from Mr. HEALY! It sounds too much like the rhetoric of the radical agitators and disturbers who are seeking to break up the labor unions as well as the Government. Mr. HEALY knows by experience, as we all know, how great the power of organized labor has been and is. He knows how often, cleverly led, it has forced its will upon legislators and the Federal Government. Even giving men in Federal office no higher motive than the practical one of votes, he knows how susceptible politicians are to the demands of labor. He knows that the last thing that they are likely to do is to invite unnecessary trouble with these powerful associations. One can only attribute the tone of his remarks to the inflammatory germ that infects the world. Not otherwise can his singularly rash charges against the Government be explained. Not otherwise would he seem unconsciously to be taking the part of the most dangerous foes of democracy and of organized labor.

THE BUILDING CRISIS.

The complexity of the housing problem no less than its vital importance is indicated in the make-up of the Conference Committee which Mayor HYLAN has appointed. It includes prominent officials of the city, leaders of organized labor, representatives of institutions that have large sums of money to invest in mortgages, building contractors, dealers in building materials, real estate operators, architects and a miscellaneous group designated "citizens" who are representative of various related activities, as, for example, the railways, which are at present prevented by the shortage of cars from delivering the wherewithal for new homes. Any project which depends upon the co-operation of such widely varied factors has a future that is at best problematical; yet unless definite results are achieved, and speedily, these interests themselves will suffer no less than the rest of the community.

The most disquieting feature of the present situation is the facility with which it has slipped from the public consciousness. The new rent laws have protected unhappy individuals from the onslaught of the gouging landlord, and the victims' ululations are stilled. Apparently few observe that the process, necessary though it was, has tended powerfully to discourage intending builders and to frighten away capital from the mortgage market. There has been considerable refurbishing of small houses in neglected quarters of the city, considerable new construction of small suburban homes; yet it is manifest now, as always, that no permanent relief can come except by the building of apartment houses on the largest possible scale, both in the decaying districts of Manhattan and in the near suburbs, and of this kind of building we have as yet not even the promise. Meantime the city continues to grow.

In his letter to the members of his committee Mayor HYLAN says that it is "a patriotic and civic duty" to solve the housing problem. That is an undisputed thing which falls upon the ear in the accustomed solemn way. Far differently falls a neighboring sentence. "Lack of housing is as dan"gerous to the community at large as "lack of food and clothing, and is the "leaven for the fermentation of un"rest." Discontent is the mother of all radical propaganda, and few things give discontent a more plausible warrant than the failure of a community to meet the few basic needs of life.

Difficult as the problem is, it is far from impossible. There is no need to work or to wait for lower prices of material and labor. For many years the demand for housing will so far outrun the supply that a fair return upon the builder's outlay is assured. And the new rent laws do not apply to houses built hereafter. Any violent reduction in prices would carry with it serious effects; the important thing is to stabilize them. It is only necessary, in short, to restore confidence in the present and trust in the future.

HOMES FOR ART.

Among the new plans for art buildings that are taking practical shape the question of a home for the fine arts still awaits solution. The National Academy Association, a federation of some ten or a dozen societies, including the National Academy of Design, the National Sculpture Society and the American Institute of Architects, has been working it out for at least fifteen years, and, under the spur of that stimulating fire in Fifty-seventh Street which deprived the societies of an exhibition gallery, there is some chance of successful issue.

Before the promise is fulfilled it is interesting to review the arguments brought forward in 1896 by J. G. BROWN, one of the clearest thinkers among the Academicians of his time. The problem then, as now, was the "new Academy building." Mr. BROWN was in favor of the site at 109th and 110th Streets on Cathedral Parkway, opposite the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, covering fourteen city lots, with an uninterrupted north light for four blocks. The ground at the time could have been bought for $225,000. The argument raised against the suggestion was the remoteness of the site. This Mr. BROWN met by calling attention to the cable or underground trolley line that would be running within the year from the Thirty-fourth Street Ferry to Forty-second Street and up Broadway to the very door of the proposed Academy, adding: "In about three years or less "the whole city will have the cable or "underground trolley running, and, "with the transfer system and rapid "transit in sight, space will be anni"hilated, there will be no up or down "town, and the site will be in the "geographical centre of the city."

Mr. BROWN was of the stuff from which town planners are made. He could foresee the relation of coming events to the social and business fabric of the city, and men of his peculiar genius should be included in any committee concerned with the erection of an important building. Temporary inconvenience should be overlooked in favor of permanent advantage. How little temporary inconvenience is permitted to interfere with the plans of those who wish to visit an art exhibition is very clearly shown by the illuminating figures of attendance at the present exhibition of the National Academy of Design in the Brooklyn Museum, a port in a storm, and a port about as difficult of access under existing conditions as could be imagined. Yet in the course of four weeks the attendance has amounted to nearly 62,000. The drawing power of an exhibition of exceptional importance given under favorable conditions will be shown by the figures of the forthcoming celebration at the Metropolitan Museum.

Certainly we need a commodious and conveniently situated building for the exhibition of current art, and, in spite of real estate conditions, this is the time to secure it.

THE MOST UNKINDEST CUT.

A few days ago admirers of finesse and the artistic method of giving happy dispatch to treaties were saddened by the suggestion that Senator LODGE, three times Chairman of the Republican National Convention, and a most alert, capable and successful Chairman, would not preside over this year's Republican Witenagemote at Chicago. He has been too Laodicean about the Treaty. Though it had been slain, largely on account of his artistic processes of indirection, he was not acceptable to the palpitating and ardent friends of cruder and less polished methods. He must yield to Governor MORROW of Kentucky.

Now our persuasive and pervasive young friend, Chairman HAYS, goes to Washington and feels that he can gain political sanctity only from the straitest sect of Republican irreconcilables. He seeks wisdom in regard to the platform and organization of the Chicago Convention from Mr. BORAH, Mr. MCCORMICK, Mr. BRANDEGEE. He carefully avoids Mr. LODGE. Such is the penalty of over-refinement. Such is the fate of High Art in politics. From Mr. HAYS, at least, indeed from any citizen of Indiana, so gloriously and impartially divided between literature and politics, might have been expected a more delicate feeling for aesthetics.

BEER IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Has Governor CALVIN COOLIDGE no regard for the most sacred traditions of American politics? He has vetoed the bill which would have allowed, or which professed to allow, the manufacture and sale of 2.75 beer in Massachusetts, on the ground that it was hypocritical, "a legislative deception." What is going to become of legislation, and of legislators, if hypocrisy and deception go out of fashion? Fortunately there seems no danger of any such revolution; but the Governor's action is at least interesting by way of variation.

"We have had too much legisla"tion by clamor, by tumult, by pres"sure," says the Governor. So we have; and the prohibition laws certainly belong to the class of "legislation by pressure." But they are laws, and there are legal ways of changing them. Aside from the impossible task of repealing the amendment, the Congressional power of definition of intoxicating liquor offers all the opportunity that could be wanted; and there is some chance that the Supreme Court may decide that "concurrent power" means what it says. But until the Supreme Court decides the meaning of that phrase State laws are futile. Says the Governor:

> If this act were placed upon the statute books of this Commonwealth today, it would provide no beer for the people. No one would dare act upon it, or if any one did, he would certainly be charged with crime. It is better to proceed with candor. Wait until the Supreme Court of the United States talks.

It may be doubted if the people of Massachusetts want beer; from the hard cider of the Pilgrim Fathers down to the lamented Ward Eight and other potencies of recent history, the taste of Massachusetts has required stronger incitement. Whatever may be said for or against her, she is no 2.75 Commonwealth.

But, of course, the law was never intended to get beer for the people. It was intended to get votes for the legislators. It had exactly the same purpose as the numerous declarations of Congress, State Legislatures, party conventions and Boards of Aldermen in favor of the Irish Republic. It was intended to meet the demand without getting into trouble. The men who voted for the so strangely popular 2.75 beer did not think it would get drinks for Massachusetts any more than the Congressmen think their resolutions and memorials will get freedom for Ireland; but there are supposed to be votes in both enterprises.

So long as the Bottomleys have less influence in England than their counterparts have in this country, we are in no danger of having to make good our pronouncements on the subject of Irish freedom. So long as the Volstead act is unaffected by a decision of the Supreme Court, no one can legally make beer. A little deception will do the legislators no harm, and may act as a pacifier on some of their constituents. So, despite the veto, agitation for 2.75 beer continues in Massachusetts. Ephraim is joined to his idols. Governor COOLIDGE proved last Autumn that the juncture was not so complete as the average politician is inclined to think; but it would be too optimistic to expect much support for his present stand against hypocrisy. P. T. BARNUM, who knew his fellow-citizens, said that they liked to be humbugged; and some young men from Massachusetts have lately assured us that BARNUM was right.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Concerning Psychics and Psychism.

It is a curious and rather pathetic fact that a very considerable number of people are flattered and pleased when somebody assures them that they have "strong psychic powers." The fact is curious because even a little study of the persons who possess the powers thus commonly described would convince almost anybody that to be numbered among them is not a compliment, and the fact is pathetic because the same study reveals that the so-called psychics are marked, not by superiority to their fellows, but by a very distinct and easily measurable inferiority to them.

The characteristic mark of those who in popular language are psychics is their inability to distinguish between the subjective and the objective—an inability than which no mental abnormality should be viewed with more apprehension either by the sufferers from it or by those who are interested in their welfare. That is because insane asylums are filled with men and women the great majority of whom show just this symptom, and they are where they are, and will remain there, because of the condition that produces it.

To have one's ears or eyes play tricks with one is the common mortal lot, and in itself it means nothing alarming, but the situation changes most seriously when auditory or optical illusions, instead of being recognized for what they are—for subjective phenomena, due to sensory disturbances of one sort or another—are projected outward into space and accepted as the voices or epiphanies of immaterial visitants. These exteriorizations of inner reactions are all, or nearly all, there is to what passes as psychism in this troubled day, and goes far toward explaining the marvels alike of pretentious mediumship and of the humble ouija board.

Variation in One Direction.

Of "psychics" there are three kinds—the honestly self-deceived, the habitual and conscious swindlers, and those who supplement a real neurosis with fraud as occasion arises to exploit or to astonish the credulous. The honest psychic, as the word "psychic" is used by those with no knowledge of scientific psychiatry, is a man or woman in a state of nervous disequilibration so grave as to believe sincerely in the reality of his or her illusions. These psychics are comparatively rare—outside of madhouses. The habitual and conscious swindlers include a majority of the professional, commercial, fee-taking mediums and all the varieties of diviners, crystal-gazers, palmists and fortunetellers. They have been exposed a thousand thousand times, but go on doing business just the same. The mixed type are well described in BROWNING'S "Mr. Sludge, the Medium," and their portrait does not need to be drawn again.

Next to invariably, the ascription of "psychic powers" to a person in what may be called private life is the merest nonsense, done with an ulterior purpose, and the object of the charge—for it is a charge—should answer it with ridicule, kind or unkind, according to circumstances and the motive of the accuser. Normality of mind and nerve, fortunately, is still the general rule, though scientific knowledge of psychiatry does not abound, and is least prevalent concerning both the real and the false psychism.

Why She Took the Cash.

Of several attempts to explain why a desire to transfer $18,500 from one bank to another led to the taking of that amount in cash out of the first bank and so resulted in its loss on the way, quite the most plausible has been suggested by a woman who is herself a bank depositor and therefore has a double key to the mystery of her unfortunate sister's financial operations.

According to this authority, the woman who had the $18,500 on deposit probably knew well enough the dangers incidental to carrying it through the street in a handbag, and was not less well aware that she could effect the change in perfect safety by drawing a check in favor of the second bank. And she did not prefer risk to security. She simply was reluctant to let the first bank know that she had determined to put her money in another bank.

For taking out the cash she might have been credited with having any one of a dozen reasons, none of them implying a waning of favor for an institution from whose officials and employés she presumably had received courtesies and services.

This feeling is comprehensible even to a man, but very few men, if any, would have allowed a fear of that kind to determine their action, when to do so meant taking an obvious risk of considerable seriousness, besides quite a lot of needless trouble.

Living Cost Low in the Army.

There is a lot of reason for thought in General WOOD's statement that "we still are able to feed a man in the army for 49 cents a day, and to give him a good ration, too." As the General says, the difference between 49 cents and what almost everybody out of the army is paying for a day's food is full of suggestion. His own conclusion is that "there is something wrong somewhere," and he holds it evident that "prices are being juggled."

The inclination to agree with the General, in this matter at least, will be next to unanimous. Still, though army rations unquestionably deserve the characterization of "good," they are the subject of no end of soldierly criticism, and somehow they fail to content either the heart of the sentimentalist or the eye of the aesthete. They include a rather ghastly amount of "canned stuff," which may be deserving of respect, but never gets love, and then the monotony, and the awful wholesomeness, of army fare!

The man who pays more than 49 cents a day for his food gets at least part of the excess money's worth in variety and excitement. Both are costly, always, but what would life be without them?

COLLEGE RESEARCH.

Its Bearing on the Money Now Asked For.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Friends of the colleges of the country are indebted to Dr. Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation for calling attention to the matter of research work. The fact that he has been misunderstood, at least in part, does not affect the importance of the question he has raised. Large sums are being asked and are imperatively needed today in support of our educational institutions, on which the life of the country depends. It is of prime importance that the interest and the confidence of the public in them be established.

The great universities must conduct work of every kind and offer every facility for research and instruction in all things knowable. The smaller colleges, however, are nearer the people and are more likely to be affected by public opinion. They are sure to be disturbed when question as to their efficiency is raised. The girls' colleges, in particular, despite their rapid growth and splendid service, are still somewhat on trial. Professors in them are not yet accepted as a class by the world as of quite the same grade as the men. Exceptional women there are, of course; but we are not looking for a second Maria Mitchell or Mme. Curie, and the best that professors and teachers can do today is to teach, especially in view of the H. C. L. and the strain of the drives.

Dr. Pritchett has done a service by crowding upon the country the question, What is research work for, anyway? The sufficient answer is not found in the market-place, much as can be seen there of the addition to the wealth of the world that has come from the scientific laboratory. That does not meet possible criticism.

We must take our stand inside the college. The fact is that a definite work is to be done in a limited time. There has to be a system with daily tasks and prescribed duties. This cannot be escaped, but it has obvious limitations. It is human for both teacher and student to drop into routine and be content to go around with the wheel.

Interests outside that routine are indispensable for both; therefore athletics, games, debates and the like for the student and literature, music, conferences and research for the teacher. The well-stocked library, kept up to date, and the well-equipped laboratory are alike necessary if the Faculty is to be kept fresh, not to say human, as in the finest way most of them are.

Our girls are the best asset of the nation, and their teachers must be worthy of them. They must command respect intellectually no less than for high character. They must inspire as well as teach. I know a Professor of Chemistry in a girls' college who was recently offered a salary of $5,000 if she would enter the employ of a great chemical company—more than twice the sum she was receiving from the college. Her answer to the college was, "No! I shall stay if you will only enlarge my laboratory." And that was promptly done.

As the maxim for the teacher is, "Always know more than you are required to teach," so research stands for the challenge of the open door. Teaching is not an adequate instrument of scholarship. The professor in any science in any college stands today on the shore of the great ocean of knowledge as truly as Sir Isaac Newton did, and must take cognizance of the Beyond.

Lincoln said the problem of democracy is to create a government strong enough to protect the State, but not so strong as to take away the liberties of the citizens. So the duty of the college is to get all the teaching possible out of its Faculty without quenching their enthusiasm or preventing their search for new knowledge that will bring honor to themselves and give power and dignity to their office.

This surely is not to be done by closing the door to research or by parsimonious equipment of the laboratories. Our colleges, even those for girls, ought to be supplied freely and generously with the aid they are asking.

Team Owners and the Strike.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article in today's TIMES gives one the impression that the team owners are responsible for the interference with business by reason of their alleged inability to move merchandise. We are practically in the same position with regard to the unions as are the railroads; we have no power to force our men to go to piers where nonunion men are employed. If the combined power of the merchants' associations could be used to break the "outlaw" strike on the railroads, the deadlock on the steamship piers would be in a fair way of being solved and the conditions at railroad piers restored to normal.

In the speeches of the merchants' representatives no mention is made of the tremendous efforts that are being made by the team owners to serve the merchants under the most trying conditions ever encountered. The railroads with 10 per cent. of men at work (not 90 per cent. as advertised) hold our loads in line forty-eight hours and more, reaching the limit of human endurance. This statement of fact surely does not indicate that the team owners are blockading the "processes of business" but rather that they are co-operating with the merchants. We should not be censured for avoiding action that might precipitate another strike that would continue the steamship conditions and stop the entire outflow by the railroads.

THE CHANGING CLOUDS.

Across the infinite azure sky
The wind-blown white clouds lightly roll,
And take the shapes of earth that lie
Outstretched beneath from pole to pole.

They mock old continents that pass
In ever-changing forms of land,
Like shadows in a magic glass
Held in some great Enchanter's hand.

The Wheeler of the Winds of Time,
That ceaseless blow the plastic mold,
Reshapes in solitude sublime
New vessels from the things of old.

The Urn of Water, Vase of Fire—
America and Afric—change;
And Asia, of the world's desire
Is lighted with a light more strange.

I see blown Europe's altering coast,
Her islands fading; bold expanse
Of cape and headland—all are lost,
Smoothed out by whirling winds of chance.

And where her tidal seas had lain,
Or winding rivers took their way,
Lo, mountains stretch, and wooded plain,
And sand-strewn deserts hold their sway!

ART MUSEUM HAS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Throng Attends Opening of Metropolitan's Celebration and Views Its Treasures.

LOANS FROM COLLECTORS

Great Display of Paintings of Masters, the Decorative Arts and Egyptian Jewelry.

Crowds of people, members and guests of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, many of them distinguished as artists, collectors and in other fields, attended the opening of the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Museum yesterday, and visited its many collections, all of them enriched for the occasion with additional articles from the Museum's storerooms and by loans from collectors of different lines of art in New York City.

There was no special celebration, as the anniversary exercises are to take place at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 18, in the lecture hall of the Museum, with many speakers, and the unveiling of tablets to the memory of the founders and benefactors of the Museum. President Robert W. de Forest of the Museum, Director Edward Robinson and Secretary Henry W. Kent spent much of the afternoon in the main entrance hall of the Museum and greeted guests informally.

Flowers and plants filled the corners of this entrance, the more formal decorations being by McKim, Mead & White, the architects, their contribution to the celebration. Emblems in medallions surrounding the hall were those of cities and countries from which the Museum collections have come. Directly opposite the entrance were the medallions of the United States and France, and between them the coat of arms of the City of New York. Four heads representing Painting, Sculpture, Architecture and Decorative Arts on the central piers are the work of Ezra Winter, late of the American Academy at Rome. In the southern end of the hall has been placed a large Roman sarcophagus, the first gift ever received by the Museum, presented in 1870 by Abdo Debbas, United States Consul at Tarsus.

New Room of Egyptian Jewelry.

One special feature of the anniversary celebration is the opening of a new room of Egyptian jewelry, where treasures which the Museum has previously been unable to exhibit are shown, with loans of unusual interest. Great numbers of beautiful bead necklaces worn by the Egyptian grand dames of centuries ago are contained in the collection.

Loans and additions to the collections have been so skillfully interspersed in the different departments to which they belong that on the surface there is apparently no change from the everyday appearance of the Museum, and it would be difficult among the many beautiful things to discover the new ones but for a small book which the Museum has brought out, a "Fiftieth Anniversary Exhibition" catalogue, which lists all the loans and special features. It sells for 10 cents and the public, which will be admitted this morning, after an exclusion of two weeks, while the preparations for the celebration were going on, will find it useful.

Historically, the interesting feature of the fiftieth anniversary celebration is to be found in what is known as the Recent Accessions Room of the Museum just back of the main hall, at the right of the grand staircase, where is shown a quantity of data, papers and pictures, arranged in chronological order, illustrating the growth of the Museum from its small beginning to its immense proportions as one of the great museums of the world.

Admission to the anniversary exercises on the 18th is by card. The address at the unveiling of the tablets will be made by Elihu Root, First Vice President of the Museum.

Art From Private Collections.

In the galleries are many treasures from private collections, appropriately arranged in the departments to which they belong with related objects already in the possession of the Museum. It was an admirable idea to show them in this logical and modest way as contributions to a total effect which must not be disturbed by the displacement of individual items.

The Marquand Gallery, situated at the head of the main stairway, is treated in a more general way than the other galleries with examples of different schools and countries, an introductory collection showing the standard of art we may expect as we go further. Here, among the special features, are Bassano's "Portrait of a Man," lent by George and Florence Blumenthal; Bellini's "Bacchanal," lent by Carl W. Hamilton; a portrait by Titian and one by Bartolommeo Veneto, lent by Henry Goldman; Vermeer's "Lady with a Lute," lent by Mrs. Henry E. Huntington; Holbein's "Lady Guildford," lent by William K. Vanderbilt; Mr. Goldman's Holbein, and Michael Friedsam's "The Smoking Party," by Adrian Brouwer.

Gallery 34 normally is devoted to Flemish and German paintings of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and this arrangement is not interrupted by the introduction of paintings by Gerard David, Hans Memling, Martin Schongauer, and Roger van der Weyden, lent by Michael Dreicer, and the "Leonello d'Este," by Roger van der Weyden, lent by Mr. Friedsam.

Italian paintings fill Galleries 30, 31 and 33, and beautiful examples of the different periods from the thirteenth century down to the sixteenth century are lent by Miss Bliss, Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Goldman, Mr. Willys, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn, George and Florence Blumenthal, and Dan Fellowes Platt.

The Spanish paintings are in Gallery 28 with a Goya lent by J. Horace Harding and a "Portrait of a Girl" by Velasquez, lent by Mr. Willys. The Dutch paintings are in Gallery 26 with Mr. Goldman's Frans Hals Rembrandt's "Philemon and Baucis" lent by Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn and "The Savant," "Saskia," and "Hendrickje Stoffels," by Rembrandt, lent by Mrs. Henry E. Huntington, a group that nobly supplements the Altman Rembrandts and recalls Mr. Blodgett's plea, made nearly fifty years ago, for making the Dutch and Flemish schools strong in the Museum.

In Gallery 20 a radical change has been made, French paintings having been substituted for the American pictures formerly hung there. The special features in this gallery are particularly enticing, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Bertron having lent their Fragonards, a "Fête Champêtre" by Watteau and one by Pater, portraits by Perroneau, Nattier, Greuze, and Maurice Quentin de la Tour, and Mr. Bache his "Le Billet-Doux," by Fragonard, with an anonymous loan of a glorious Poussin and Adolph Lewisohn's Daumier, "The Drinkers."

Modern French Paintings.

Modern French paintings fill Gallery 21. There are examples of Monet, Manet, Cezanne, Corot, Degas, Gauguin, Pissarro, Renoir, Redon, Rousseau and Van Gogh, lent by Mrs. Eugene Meyer, John Quinn, George F. Baker, Miss Bliss, Adolph Lewisohn and William Church Osborn. Turner's "Rockets and Blue Lights" is in Gallery 24 with English Paintings of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and is lent by Charles M. Schwab. Drawings are in Gallery 25.

Four adjacent galleries are set aside for early American paintings, beginning with Gallery 16, where the Vanderbilt collection formerly hung. Mrs. George H. Clements lends the portraits of Epes Sargent, Jr., and his wife by Copley to this section.

American silver is shown in the two long balconies, and the Museum collection is supplemented by loans from R. T. Haines Halsey, A. T. Clearwater and Luke Vincent Lockwood.

In the many galleries given over to the decorative arts from the Far Eastern and Near Eastern countries, France of the eighteenth century, Flanders and Italy of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, we again have the echo of an early ideal. During the first years in the Central Park building the hope of exhibiting an adequate collection of "objects belonging to industrial art" was held against desperate odds.

The loans in this section are too many to be even enumerated. Among the collectors who have sent objects of great importance are Harry Payne Whitney, Jules S. Bache, Mrs. George T. Bliss, Mrs. Albert Blum, Lewis L. Clarke, Mrs. W. P. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. F. Gray Griswold, Edward S. Harkness, the Misses Hewitt, Mortimer L. Schiff, Mrs. Charles Wimpfheimer, George and Florence Blumenthal, Mrs. William Salomon, Michael Dreicer, Arthur Lehman, Frederic B. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Robert W. de Forest, Henry Goldman, Thomas F. Ryan, Antoine Juste, Samuel T. Peters, S. K. de Forest, Mrs. William H. Moore, Mrs. F. F. Thompson, William H. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Jr., Grenville L. Winthrop, Marsden J. Perry, Miss Miles Carpenter, Mrs. Harry Markoe, Mrs. De Witt Clinton Cohen, Miss Marion Hague, Mrs. William Bayard Cutting, Mrs. Harris Fahnestock, Mrs. George T. Whelan, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. F. E. Webb, Mrs. Richard Gambril 2d, Mrs. Clarence C. Pell and the Redmond family.

The collection in the Print Galleries, a department that has been in existence only three years, is enriched by loans made by Mortimer L. Schiff, Robert Hartshorne, W. Augustus White, W. B. Osgood Field, Howard Mansfield, H. H. Benedict, C. W. Davison, H. McM. Painter, Felix Warburg, C. B. Eddy, and P. J. Sachs.

The famous collection of Egyptian art on the lower floor is enriched by the loan of a large group of jewelry and other articles of adornment from Mr. and Mrs. Goddard De Bois, and a gold pectoral lent by Mrs. Joseph McKee Cook. In the five galleries devoted to arms and armor are important loans made by C. O. v. Kienbusch, Edward H. Litchfield, Philip Rhinelander, 2d, Alexander McMillan Welch, Theodore Offerman, George Leary, Jr., William B. Osgood Field, Alphonse Jongers, Sumner Healy, Copley Amory, Jr., and George C. Stone.

SAYS JOBS END RADICALISM.

Steel Company President Asserts Unsteady Work Causes Unrest.

Free use of a cool head and a warm heart was the best check to industrial unrest, Whyting Williams, President of the Hydraulic Steel Corporation, told members of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce at their luncheon at the Commodore yesterday. To gather first-hand information concerning the labor situation, Mr. Williams spent several months last year as an unskilled laborer in steel mills, coal mines, shipyards and railroad shops. Unsteady employment and poorly chosen "middlemen" of industry—foremen, shop police and paymasters, the immediate superiors of the laborers—were the chief causes for dissatisfaction, he said.

The majority are not Bolsheviki or anarchists or even Socialists yet, Mr. Williams said, but he added that, "if they do become any of these things it will be largely the fault of us white-collared chaps."

"There should not be any danger in this situation," he went on, "for you can't get men to turn Bolsheviki when they have jobs. We must acknowledge that no one can get the best of our energies or our initiative by the use of the crow-bar. Our best efforts are opened up, not by force, but by the key of faith."

BRITISH DRAPERS ARRIVE.

Delegation of Tradesmen to Tour America.

The delegation of the Drapers' Chamber of Commerce of the United Kingdom, which is to spend the next month and a half seeing trade and industrial conditions in this country arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Celtic. The twenty-one British tradesmen were welcomed at the pier by Lew Hahn, Executive Secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, a representative of Secretary Joshua W. Alexander of the Department of Commerce, and a delegation of trade organizations.

The party is headed by F. W. Cook, Chairman of the Drapers' Chamber of Commerce. The delegation will stay at the Waldorf-Astoria for six days, then will go to Boston, thence to Washington and from there across the continent, stopping at all the large cities. They will return through Canada.

Charles Thomas Coleing of Coleing & Sons, Ltd., of London, spokesman for the party, said that prices in England have not reached the peak and a further upward movement could be expected.

One thing that would keep prices up, he said, was that to replace goods now being sold would cost more now than did the goods that are being sold. In England, he said, there is the same reckless spending of money as in the United States.

THREATEN FALL OF NITTI.

Catholic Party Against Premier, Charging Leniency to Reds.

ROME, May 7.—Opinion in parliamentary circles is that Premier Nitti is running the risk of being overthrown.

This is said to be due to the decision of the Catholic party to vote against the Premier, members of the party considering that he showed weakness in his lenient attitude toward the Socialists during the Red disturbances in northern Italy. The leader of the Catholic party said today:

"If no agreement is reached before a vote is taken in the Chamber of Deputies, Nitti's fall is certain. In fact, all the Socialist Deputies, numbering 156, despite Nitti's favoritism toward them, must vote against him as a matter of principle."

Attempts to bring about a vote which might result in the fall of Premier Nitti's Cabinet were made by the opposition in the Chamber of Deputies today. The Premier frustrated them by declaring that he would not consider such a vote as implying lack of confidence in the Government.

He said he wished to prove that he did not desire to escape a real vote on the Ministry's policy and proposed a vote later.

PLATT ON RESERVE BOARD.

Republican Representative Accepts Post and Will Leave Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The nomination of Edmund Platt, of Poughkeepsie, Republican Representative from the 26th New York district for membership on the Federal Reserve Board, was sent to the Senate today. It was announced that he would accept. Mr. Platt will resign from Congress and his place as Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency be taken by Representative L. T. McFadden of Pennsylvania.

James H. Hughes and Martin F. Farry, both of Wilmington, Del., were nominated today by President Wilson to be District Attorney and Marshal, respectively, for the District of Delaware.

SELLS MEN'S SUITS AT COST.

Topeka Dealer Starts Move to Cut Makers' Prices.

TOPEKA, May 7.—An old established Topeka clothing store today advertised that all men's suits for twenty-four days would be sold without profit to the store. E. T. Haskney, State Fair Price Commissioner, will audit the store's books to ascertain whether the suits are sold at cost.

"Let retail clothiers take a definite stand against aviating prices," said the proprietor, "and manufacturers will be forced to reflect."

C. R. HENDRIX, SUED FOR $100,000, WEDS

Broker Marries Miss Eugenie Terry in Spite of Actress's Breach of Promise Action.

FEW AT HOME CEREMONY

Wealthy Bridegroom Says He Could Have Settled with "Dresden China Girl," but He Refused.

Miss Eugenie Terry, daughter of Mrs. John D. Terry of 300 Central Park West, and Clifford R. Hendrix were married last evening at 5 o'clock at the hime of the bride's mother. The ceremony was held as originally planned, in spite of the $100,000 breach of promise suit brought against the bridegroom on Thursday by Maud L. Ceballos, an actress, and just as Mr. Hendrix said it would be.

A few relatives and close friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. George C. Richmon of St. Louis, an old friend of the bride's family. Miss Vera Tompkins and Miss Francena Tracy attended the bride.

Shortly after the ceremony Mr. Hendrix and his bride left on a motoring trip, and on their return they will reside at Larchmont.

The bride is the daughter of the late Major Terry, a veteran of the civil war, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. She has lived with her mother and brother, Frederick Terry, at the Central Park address.

Mr. Hendrix, who is 38, is a wealthy member of the New York Stock Exchange and a son of the late Joseph Hendrix, formerly Postmaster of Brooklyn, who left a fortune to his son. He was an officer in the navy during the war and belongs to the New York Yacht, Automobile and Larchmont Yacht Clubs. His home has been at 14 East Fifty-sixth Street.

Maud L. Ceballos is better known under the stage name of Mona Desmond, and was called the "Dresden China Girl" when she was a Weber & Fields celebrity. In her suit for damages she alleges that Mr. Hendrix promised on Aug. 10 last at Larchmont to marry her. She gave up her theatrical career in reliance on his promises, she said, and has since been "supported wholly or in great measure by him." She says he told her on Feb. 29 last that he wouldn't carry out his plan to marry her.

Mr. Hendrix before the wedding declared that the suit was like many others that are brought prior to a man's marriage, which are usually fixed by a settlement. "I could have settled this case," he said, "but I declined to do so. Miss Terry has known of it all along, and it is with her full knowledge and approval that I have refused to settle."

Investment Bankers at Hot Springs.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 7.—The Board of Governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America are holding their thirty-fourth meeting at the Greenbriar today and tomorrow. The opening business session was held this morning, presided over by George W. Hodges of New York, President of the association.

An eighteen-hole medal play tournament is being arranged for Saturday. Clarkson Potter of Washington and Thomas N. Dysart of St. Louis are the committee. Among the New York members attending the meeting are Homer D. F. Peebe, Richard L. Morris and Allen G. Hoyt.

J. STEVENS ULMAN, POLICE DEPUTY, DIES

Special Commissioner Succumbs to Tumor of Chest After Operation in February.

FRIEND OF THE POLICEMAN

Leather Exporter Founded Co-operative Stores Where Force Could Supply Needs Below Current Prices.

Julien Stevens Ulman, Special Deputy Police Commissioner and President of the F. Blumenthal Company, leather exporters at 27 Cedar Street, died yesterday afternoon of a tumor of the chest at his residence, 24 East Eighty-first Street. For several months he had been suffering from the ailment and on Feb. 28 an operation was performed at the Post-Graduate Hospital by Dr. John F. Erdmann.

Mr. Ulman was born in this city fifty-four years ago, the son of S. B. and Joanna Bache Ulman. He attended the Charlier Institute and gained his business training in the office of Speyer & Co. After six years with the banking house he entered the leather trade, becoming later a partner in F. Blumenthal & Co., which was a development of an old German concern at Frankfort, founded in 1715. On the incorporation of the firm in 1910 he was made Vice President and afterward President. He was also President of the Amalgamated Leather Companies, the Transocean Products Corporation, the Fashion Publicity Company and a Director in the Manila Railway Company.

Soon after Mr. Ulman entered upon his duties last November as Special Deputy Police Commissioner he established and superintended a chain of co-operative stores where policemen could buy necessities below the current retail prices. He stated that he hoped to develop this enterprise far enough to enable "the cop's dollar" to regain the power it had before the war. The requirement that a policeman must buy his own uniform was another old custom the Special Deputy proposed to do away with.

In one of the Liberty Loan drives he subscribed heavily through the police division, and announced that he would buy a thousand-dollar bond from any policeman who stopped him on the street and asked for a subscription.

In 1901 Mr. Ulman was married at Short Hills, N. J., to Miss Gertrude Oldfield Barclay, who survives him with four children.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Bartholomew's Church.

SAYS FAITH CURED TWO.

Vicar at Trinity Chapel Tells of Healer Hickson's Work.

The five days' healing mission conducted by James Moore Hickson, a layman of the Church of England, came to a close yesterday in Trinity Episcopal Chapel, Twenty-fifth Street, west of Broadway, when 1,400 afflicted men, women and children were treated. Many came in wheel chairs.

The Rev. Joseph Wilson Sutton, vicar of the chapel, stated last evening that a woman was instantaneously cured of lameness while Mr. Hickson had his hand on her head and was praying over her. Mr. Sutton said that she hobbled up using two crutches, but that she walked from the church without using either crutch. Mr. Sutton did not know her name, as no effort was made to take the names of those who came to the church. The vicar said also that a young man had been cured of orthopaedic trouble. Mr. Sutton said the young man had been helped the day before and went to his doctor to report. The young man announced yesterday that his doctor had pronounced him almost completely well.

Bishop Arthur S. Lloyd stood the entire morning next to Mr. Hickson and blessed each person as they left the healer. Next week Mr. Hickson will conduct healing missions in two Episcopal churches in Brooklyn.

ROYALTY THANKS 'BILL' NYE.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—King Albert of Belgium has sent an autographed photograph to J. M. ("Bill") Nye, who, representing the State Department, accompanied the Belgian royal party on a tour of the United States last October.

The autographed inscription reads: "To Mr. Nye, in memory of a wonderful time in America and with grateful thanks for all his affectionate care. Oct. 2-31, 1919. ALBERT."

SIR ROBERT BORDEN HERE.

With Lady Borden He Returns from South Much Improved in Health.

Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, and Lady Borden arrived in New York yesterday from the South, where they spent several months for the benefit of their health. George W. Yates, the Prime Minister's confidential secretary, and J. W. Pugsley of the Canadian Department of Railways, accompanied them.

Sir Robert stated that his protracted sojourns in the Southern States had done much to restore his normal health. He declined to make any statement on public affairs. He will return to Canada shortly.

EX-JUDGE R. B. COWING DIES IN HIS 80TH YEAR

Presided in General Sessions Court for 28 Years and Heard 35,000 Criminal Trials.

Ex-Judge Rufus B. Cowing, who for twenty-eight years presided on the bench of General Sessions, died early yesterday morning at his home, 302 Central Park West. He was born in 1840 at Jamestown, N. Y., but since 1850 his home had been in this city. He was educated at Dartmouth College and the Harvard Law School, graduating from the latter in 1865.

In 1876 he was elected Alderman at Large, and the following year was chosen for General Sessions by the Republicans, and obtained a plurality of 22,000. Thereafter, until the Autumn of 1906, he was the candidate of both the Democratic and Republican Parties, and in 1891 polled 272,000 votes out of a total of 280,000 cast.

In national and State elections Judge Cowing was always a Republican, but in city politics he remained independent. During his term as Alderman he was the Republican member appointed to investigate the Tweed ring. He was at one time Vice President of the Union League Club and had served as Chairman of its Executive Committee.

In an interview with a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES in 1905 Judge Cowing stated that more than 35,000 criminal cases had been tried before him, and that nevertheless he still firmly believed that "there is in every man more to praise than to blame."

Funeral services will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the First Baptist Church, Broadway and Seventy-ninth Street.

'UNCLE JOE' CANNON MARKS 84TH BIRTHDAY

Oldest Member of House in Years and Service Is Showered with Congratulations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Representative Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois celebrated his 84th birthday today. He has served longer in the House than any other member. The House gave Mr. Cannon an ovation when he stepped into the chamber this morning, wearing a red carnation and the smile of perennial youth.

Mr. Mondell called the attention of members to the fact that Mr. Cannon was 84 and expressed the hope that he would long retain the "mental alertness, physical vigor and kindly philosophy with which he this day is so richly endowed."

"Uncle Joe" received many telegrams congratulating him on his birthday.

From Chauncey M. Depew came this message:

"I beckon you on to the eighty-sixth milestone which I am holding for you. It is a beautiful journey and glorious position."

Mr. Cannon began to celebrate late last night. He attended a dinner to eighty members of Congress given at the Army and Navy Club by Representative McKinley of Illinois. He ate his breakfast alone this morning in the House restaurant, but was the guest of honor at luncheon when the seven oldest members in Congress were guests of Senator Page, all those attending having been born in 1843 or earlier. Those present were:

Joseph G. Cannon, born May 7, 1836; General Isaac R. Sherwood of Ohio, born Aug. 13, 1836; Representative Charles M. Stedman of North Carolina, born Jan. 29 1841; Representative William S. Greene of Massachusetts born April 28, 1841; Senator Carroll S. Page of Vermont, born Jan. 1, 1843; Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont, born Dec. 12, 1843, and Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, born Feb. 2, 1843.

Vice President Marshall, who is 66 years old, was toastmaster.

Born.

MAXWELL
is built of special steels

There are few "stock" steels in a Maxwell. Nearly all the steels are special, made to Maxwell's own formulae, and developed in the Maxwell laboratories.
All the experience gained from the building of nearly 400,000 Maxwells, and the study of their use in nearly every country of the world, has been put into these special steels.
They made it possible to build the Maxwell lighter in weight and to increase its strength.
Superfluous pounds thus eliminated from the chassis have resulted in increased ability in performance.
At the same time more endurance has been developed.
Thus it becomes obvious why Maxwell has climbed very rapidly into favor the world over.
Nearly 400,000 are now in use; and 100,000 more are being built this year.

NAME A COMMITTEE ON GRAIN MARKET

Conferees with Barnes at Chicago Take Steps Toward Reopening Exchanges.

TO CONTROL FUTURE TRADES

General Body Will Have Representatives from Exchanges and All Bodies Dealing in Grain.

CHICAGO, May 7.—A committee of forty-seven, representing all branches of grain production and marketing, will be appointed to plan the handling of the wheat crop and take action on opening grain exchanges for future trading in wheat after May 31, when the Wheat Guaranty act expires, according to a decision made today at a meeting of Board of Trade representatives, grain dealers, millers, elevator men and bankers, called by Julius H. Barnes, the Federal Wheat Director.

At the same time a committee of sixteen will be appointed by the eight Exchanges where trades in futures have been handled (Chicago, Duluth, Minneapolis, Omaha, Toledo, Milwaukee, Kansas City and St. Louis) to make recommendations on the resumption of future trading in wheat. This committee will consider suggestions from all elements concerned and report its recommendations to the general committee.

A committee composed of Fred B. Wells of Minneapolis; O. M. Mitchell of New York, H. N. Sager of Chicago, F. J. Lingham of Lockport, N. Y., and P. E. Goodrich, of Winchester, Ind., was chosen to arrange for the organization of the General Committee, of which they will be members, with Mr. Wells as Chairman.

The general body will be composed of three representatives from each of the following groups: Millers, County Grain Dealers, Farmers' Elevators, Terminal Elevators, Farmers' Organizations (Producers), exporters, flour handlers, bakers and carriers, and one representative from each of the fifteen exchanges in th country.

TO HANDLE EDWARDS MONEY

J. W. R. Besson Appointed Treasurer of Campaign Committee.

J. W. R. Besson, a lawyer of Hoboken, N. J., was named yesterday as Treasurer of the Campaign Committee organized here to work for the nomination of Governor Edwards of New Jersey at the Democratic National Convention. Mr. Besson was formerly Judge of the New Jersey District Court for Hudson County, and is a lifelong friend of Governor Edwards.

At the Governor's newly established headquarters in the Manhattan Hotel it was explained yesterday by Walker W. Vick, his campaign manager, that the Governor had not modified his views regarding personal liberty, but he believes that the questions of economy and the conservative administration of the nation's business are of unsurpassed importance at this time.

CANDIDATE HAS BUSY DAY.

General Wood Sees Many Visitors—Leaves for West Tonight.

Major Gen. Leonard Wood, who came to New York to confer with his Eastern campaign managers, put in a busy day yesterday meeting visitors at the Harvard Club, where he is staying. To-day, besides reviewing the police parade, General Wood will take part in the dedication of a monument to Chief of Police John McCullagh.

He had breakfast with his son, Leonard Wood, Jr., who came from Cuba to see his father, and he had luncheon at the Union League Club with Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., former treasurer of the Republican National Committee. Among the General's callers at the Harvard Club were two former Rough Riders, Captain Hallett Alsop Borrowe and Captain Arthur Cosby.

General Wood will return to Chicago tonight. Later he will tour West Virginia and may make a few pre-primary speeches in Vermont.

Wood's Indiana Lead is 5,729.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 7.—Revised complete but unofficial returns from every precinct in the State-wide primary last Tuesday, tabulated here this afternoon, show that General Wood ran 5,729 votes ahead of Senator Johnson in the Republican Presidential preference contest. The vote was: Wood, 85,677; Johnson, 79,948; Lowden, 39,527, and Harding, 20,865.

JOHNSON STATES REFUSAL.

Makes Formal Announcement on the Vice Presidency.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Senator Johnson of California has supplemented the authorized statement of two weeks ago by one of his campaign managers, Representative Nolan of California, that in no circumstances would he accept a nomination for the Vice Presidency by making a formal and direct statement to that effect himself. Senator Johnson has issued the following:

"Under no circumstances will I accept the Republican nomination for the Vice Presidency. It is amusing to me that the men who are suggesting me now for Vice President are those who are most horrified at the thought of my nomination for the Presidency."

MAYOR TO LEAD POLICE.

Hylan and Enright Will March in Annual Parade Today.

Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright will lead the annual parade of the Police Department today. The parade will start at 11:30 A. M. at the Battery and the route will be up Broadway to Eleventh Street, to Greenwich Avenue, to Seventh Avenue, to Fortieth Street, to Fifth Avenue and down Fifth Avenue to the Worth monument in Madison Square, where a reviewing stand has been built, and where the parade will disband.

The uniformed force will be in command of Chief Inspector John Daly, and the parade will be made up of seven foot regiments of regular policemen, a mounted regiment, the honor battalion, a machine gun company, a motorcycle division, a bicycle division, two regiments of police reserves and special reserve detachments, including an aviation division, the Wanamaker Battalion, the women's division, a motorcycle and bicycle division and a mounted squad.

The parade will be in honor of John McCullagh, first Chief of Police of Greater New York. A memorial service for Mr. McCullagh will be held in Woodlawn Cemetery, at which Colonel Walter Scott and Job E. Hedges will speak. Medals will be awarded to Acting Detective Sergeant Joseph A. Walsh, Patrolman Harry Cohen, Patrolman John J. Walsh, Patrolman James J. Deveny, Patrolman George S. Lane, Patrolman John J. Wimmer and Patrolman John F. Monahan.

SAY HUGE PROFITS RAISE LIVING COST

Rail Unions Present Data to Labor Board, Accusing Capital of Profiteering.

NOT DUE TO HIGHER WAGES

Where Pay Rose Only 15% Some Retail Prices Went Up 300%, They Assert.

MASS OF FIGURES SHOWN

Former Secretary of War Labor Board Asserts That Congress Must Take Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Profiteering engaged in on a gigantic scale, both during the war and since the armistice, should be blamed for the high cost of living, and not any increase of wages to workmen, was the assertion made today to the Railroad Labor Board by W. Jett Lauck, former Secretary of the War Labor Board, who appeared in behalf of the seventeen railway brotherhoods and unions. "No sane man can fail to realize," he said, "that the present situation is the gravest since 1860 and in the light of the evidence no unprejudiced citizen can fail to place the blame upon the capitalists and financiers who have seized upon the suffering and sacrifice of a nation at war as a means of aggrandizement such as the world has never known before.

"Probably the most aggravating factor in the situation from the labor standpoint is that the same powerful interests which are so manifestly exploiting the needs of the public and the toil of the workers have embarked upon a deliberate campaign of propaganda and misrepresentation to fasten upon labor the responsibility for high prices; in other words, to play off the two sets of victims, the public and the workers, against each other.

"It cannot be denied that this effort, plain to the worker whose struggle to maintain his family in decency is daily becoming more precarious, is fanning the flames of discontent and making the United States a fertile field for the propagandists of violent economic revolution.

"It is our purpose with cold facts to expose the misrepresentation heaped upon railroad employes, and other classes of American workers."

Mr. Lauck said he had made an exhaustive study, which proved:

That the combined corporations of the country earned in net profits approximately $4,800,000,000 more per year during the three war years, 1916-17-18, than during the three-year pre-war period.

That this excess of profit over and above the profits of the pre-war years constituted a profiteering tax of $240 per year per family of five throughout the nation.

That in the iron, steel and coal industries $2,000,000,000 of net profit in excess of the pre-war average was exacted during the three war years, constituting virtually a levy of $20 upon every man, woman and child in the United States.

That 2,030 corporations earned in net profits more than 100 per cent. per year on their capital stock during the three war years.

That 5,724 corporations showed net profits of more than 50 per cent. and that 20,000 earned from 20 to 50 per cent.

That the average profits during the three war years of all corporations in the United States with net incomes of $1,000,000 or more approximated 24 per cent. per year on their capital.

That these increased profits are not due to increased production, showing that this great group of corporations, controlling products essential to daily life, made profits sufficient to replace the entire value of their capital stock within a period of slightly more than four years.

That the disclosures do not reveal completely the extent of corporate profiteering, since corporations have been and are utilizing various devices to conceal the full measure of their earnings, such as excessive deductions for depreciation, payment of astoundingly excessive salaries and grossly fictitious royalties and rents.

That for the four years, 1916-17-18-19, corporate profits, not inclusive of royalties, rents, excessive salaries, stock, stock dividends or any other form of compensation, cost each family of five in the United States a total of $1,500.

During this same period the average income of these families totalled for the four years less than $7,300, so that the toll exacted as profits by corporations constitute more than one-fifth of the family income.

That instead of labor costs being the initial force in creating increasing costs of living, wage increases have lagged behind price increases; that prices were pushed up by factors over which workers had no control; that labor, as a class, is now worse off than it was before the war; that in the distribution of the income of the country labor is receiving a smaller proportion than it did before the war, while capital, in the form of profits, interest and rent, is receiving a very much larger proportion; that capital is "profiteering on such a scale as to menace the future of the country."

That since the cessation of the demand for war supplies, industries engaged in the production of clothing, food, household supplies and other staple necessities of life have exploited the public to an extent even greater than during the years 1916-17-18.

Flat failure of the Government departments against profiteering was indicated by Mr. Lauck. He asserted that the increase in labor cost of sugar production was less than 15 per cent. of the increase paid by the consumer. In the case of copper, he said, capital received more than two and one-half times per pound over what labor received. In the shoe industry the profit items amounted in 1917 to approximately three-fifths of the total prices and more than five times the total labor costs. With respect to coal, increases in the retail price of the bituminous product have been four times as great as the increase in labor cost.

Selecting a representative group of 205 corporations engaged in widely diversified lines of industry in the United States, Mr. Lauck alleged that the average percentage of net income on the capital stock of these concerns increased from 8.7 in 1912-13-14 to 23.9 per cent. in 1916-17-18.

In copper mining, according to tables presented by Mr. Lauck, the increase was from 19.7 to 54; in miscellaneous mineral mining from 7.7 to 13.6, in iron and steel manufacturing from 6.1 to 26.9, in railroad equipment from 7.3 to 17.7, in general metal products from 11.8 to 31.1, in textile manufacturing from 8.9 to 22.6, in clothing and dry goods production from 6.2 to 13.8, in meat packing from 14.4 to 36.9, in sugar producing and refining from 6.51 to 19.1, in miscellaneous food products from 6.9 to 13.6, in coal and coke production from 7.6 to 15.2, in petroleum production from 18.7 to 39.8, in building materials from 5.7 to 15.6, and in mercantile establishments from 13.9 to 21.3.

Mr. Lauck recommended that either the cost price of all commodities should be marked when leaving the industry, or Congress should control industries as the railroads were controlled during the war.

Action by Congress must come, he said, unless the force of public opinion should reduce prices to their proper levels.

Harding Asks Law to Govern Collection of Bank Checks

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Congress was asked today by Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board to settle the controversy between Reserve banks and State banks as to par collection of bank checks.

In a letter to Chairman Platt of the House Banking Committee Governor Harding asked for legislation which either would compel the universal adoption of par clearance or would authorize both members and non-members of the Reserve system to charge collection fees.

The present law, Governor Harding said, was inadequate and had caused difficulty because Reserve banks had been obliged to adopt drastic methods to make collections of checks drawn upon non-member banks opposing par exchange.

'PRICES JUGGLED,' WOOD TELLS CLUB

Soldier Is Well Fed in Army on 49 Cents a Day, General Points Out.

ASKS JUSTICE FOR LABOR

Declares Women Will Exert Tremendous Influence for Good in Politics.

Attacking the high cost of living Major Gen. Leonard Wood, Republican Presidential aspirant, in a speech yesterday at the Four-by-Four Club, 120 West Twenty-third Street, declared there was no question that profiteering in the sale of foodstuffs was general in some parts of the country and that the laws to curb profiteers either were ineffective or were not properly enforced. He wanted to know how it was that a man could be well fed in the army on 49 cents a day, while in civil life the cost is far greater.

"The cost of living is going up," declared General Wood. "The people are keenly interested in finding who is keeping us out of potatoes, sugar and other necessities of life. We are still able to feed a man in the army for 49 cents a day very well. When you compare this with what the man on the outside has to pay for food for his family, you can understand that there is something wrong somewhere. It is evident, I think, that prices are being juggled."

General Wood was enthusiastically received by the 200 or so people who crowded into the small club rooms. He decided to make a speech at the last minute while here, after Herbert L. Satterlee, Chairman of the Greater New York General Wood Campaign Committee, had reminded him that many of his friends had been disappointed when he canceled his date to speak in Carnegie Hall several weeks ago to return to active work in the army during the railroad strike. He spoke on a variety of subjects, but his remarks concerning the high cost of living received the most attention.

Wants Law and Order.

"We do not want Executives overriding Congress or Congress overriding Executives," declared General Wood at one point. "We need team work. We want to get back to a Government based on law and order as soon as possible. We must come to a peace standard as soon as possible. Cut every unnecessary expense. Eliminate every unnecessary employe. Bring Government expenses down to the last degree. Spread the war burden over a longer period of years. The heavy excess profit taxes and the other war taxes are killing American business when we want to extend it. We want to give our labor the fullest employment, the best possible wage."

Taking up the question of a military policy, General Wood declared that Theodore Roosevelt's injunction to "speak softly but carry a big stick," was still worth considering. He said it was necessary for America to protect her citizens, whether they lived in China, Mexico or anywhere else.

"Our military policy depends on our foreign policy," he said. "If we have an aggressive foreign policy we need a big military establishment. We believe in international fair dealing. We want a good and efficient army. Not a big army, but one large enough for the peace needs of the nation and a small training force. We want a good navy, but not the biggest navy in the world. The army I recommended was a very small one; 225,000 is the maximum, 200,000 would be sufficient. We want some kind of a training system. I think we can safely depend upon the recommendations of the ex-service men, especially the men of the American Legion. We can safely trust those men to build up a sound military policy. I am strongly opposed to militarism, but what we do need is a good efficient army of 200,000 men."

Urges Square Deal For Labor.

Labor, General Wood declared, should receive a square deal. Women, he said, are going to strengthen the country's political life and are going to bring the human element into the relations between capital and labor.

"Labor," he said, "represents a great bulk of the American people. We all have sympathy for labor. It makes up our population. What is the square deal? It means an opportunity to work. The Government should give its citizens an opportunity to work. The Government should give its citizens an opportunity to work, save, raise families and educate their children. We do not want an autocracy of either wealth or labor, but a real democracy of both. We want to establish a normal relationship between capital and labor. Absolute honesty on the part of labor means a full day's work for a good day's wage. Honesty on the part of capital means a liberal wage. You cannot legislate the Golden Rule into the hearts of men. No man is fit to lead in war, in the church or anywhere who has not this spirit in his heart.

"I have had a great deal of experience with labor disturbances in this country in the last year, and I have found that 95 per cent. of American labor is as square as a die and wants to run straight. There is no question about it, but it must have American leadership. Wherever you find radicalism you find alien leadership. American labor must have American leadership. This does not mean men and women born in America, but men and women who have adopted our standards and are living up to our ideals.

"When our immigration comes here we must take better care of it. We do not want the immigrants to be influenced by the dialect press. We should take hold of the immigrants and instruct them as to our form of government. Find out their previous training."

Deplores Lowered Production.

General Wood declared that production in the United States had diminished 30 per cent. and that this was partly responsible for the high cost of food. He said the League of Nations should be thoroughly Americanized. The country, he said, wanted to live at peace with all other countries. America, he said, should be kept "a long way first," not only in material wealth but in a sense of fair play, international good faith and helpfulness. Radicals and un-American men and women, he said, are dangerous.

"The most dangerous man in public life today," he said, "is the man who is trying to advance himself by playing one religious or radical group against another."

GERMAN SOCIALISTS FIND THEORIES FAIL

National Conference Faces Fact That 'Socialization' Schemes Are Impossible.

MUELLER HAS TO EXPLAIN

Gulf Between Moderates and Radicals Also Appears as Party Prepares for Election.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 7.—Germany's general election campaign has really begun in earnest with the National Conference of the Majority Socialists, whose proceedings were just concluded in Berlin. An illuminating debate lasting two days proved three things which will exercise an important influence on the immediate political future and also, perhaps, on the country's fate.

The conference has shown that the abyss between the Moderate and Extreme Socialists is unbridgable, that the weakness of the former section is increasing and that bankruptcy looms ahead of any form of practical socialism.

Though only the Majority Socialists attended the conference, not even the absence of their open opponent obviated the disunity inside the party itself. Critic after critic complained of the coalition Government's failure to fulfill the promised socialization. They blamed the apathy of the Majority Socialists, and such exponents of political gospel as Schneidemann and Müller were at pains to persuade their disillusioned followers that the theories which they have spent a lifetime in advancing will not really stand the test of practical application.

"We have the most democratic constitution in the world," said Chancellor Müller, "but that doesn't mean we can carry out Socialism. We lack the necessities of production which would enable us to take our place in the markets of the world. Even if we obtained an absolute majority in Germany, our economic development toward Socialism would still have to be slow."

So slow is it, in fact, that the Government has not even made any effort to nationalize the mines in accordance with the promise now over a year old.

The best motto which the Majority Socialists have placed on their electoral banners is a negative one, coming in effect to this: To defend the Republic of Germany against attack from both Right and Left.

While they will of course seek to gain an absolute majority at the elections, their principal spokesmen all gave veiled hints that this was a Utopian hope with no chance of fulfillment. As a matter of fact it is generally expected that their support will be considerably reduced. In the present National Assembly they number 163 but they have lost ground steadily since the last election and here in Berlin it is estimated that at least half of their supporters have gone over to the Independents since the Kapp putsch.

During the conference discussion on this subject, strong attacks were made upon former War Minister Noske. The fallen leader entered the lists in defense of his policy but found a very hostile audience and little credence for his argument that the militarist rebellion was only the sequence to the Communists' example who showed the way.

One delegate from Breslau who denied that any real chance in the composition of the army has even yet been effected asserted that 70 per cent. of the higher leaders of the army were members of the nobility and of the others 90 per cent. were monarchists, with soldiers who are as wax in the hands of their leaders. Under the Noske régime, said the speaker, from Kiel every man man of republican feeling in the navy was thrown out, while another representative declared that "the freebooters of reaction remain" in the army. After the Kapp business one or two formations were demobilized, not because they took part in the reactionary movement but because they consisted wholly of Socialists. Said another critic:

"Nothing has been done. Let us rather have a coalition with the Independents than the present state of affairs. The workers have a feeling that you are simply trying to make them drunk with words. The present Government has no more power over the military than the former. All Noske's errors are being repeated, and a new military putsch is threatening."

Replying to Noske's emphasis of the Communist danger, one speaker declared that it was not from the Left, but from the Right that the danger threatened. The effort to create a real republican army had failed, the reactionist army was still growing, the Kapp fiasco had changed nothing.

While Noske could not do other than admit his own failure to reform the army, he tried to show that nobody else could do any better, and certainly he produced one or two convincing, and at the same time rather startling, arguments from the point of view of those not only in Germany, but outside it, who want to see militarism rooted out.

"Up to the time of the revolution," said Noske, "the officers were all of one mold and constituted a sort of Hohenzollern Guard. Any artificial attempt to form a Republican Officers' Corps is bound to fail because you lack the material. Reform of army is more difficult than ever. What Republican will undertake to shoulder a rifle for twelve years?"

Naturally, the Independents and Communists and other extremists are delighted at the position of weakness and confusion which the very opening days of the election campaign have disclosed. Says Die Freiheit, organ of the Independents:

"The fight will be against the Noske policy, which still obtains and has already done so much harm to the German proletariat both at home and abroad. We go into the struggle as leaders of the revolutionary proletariat."

So far, therefore, the electoral omens are not promising for Germany or for the world, for they indicate that while the existing moderate coalition Government is the only possible one under present conditions, it is fighting for its life against extremists on both sides and is fighting a losing battle at that.

ANARCHISTS BATTLE WITH ITALIAN POLICE

Two Killed, 30 Wounded in Leghorn—Peasant Strikers More Violent.

ROME, May 6.—Anarchists have gained the upper hand in several districts in Italy and disorders have occurred, especially in Leghorn, where the extremists invaded the Chamber of Labor and committed acts of violence. Police and military forces were compelled to interfere and in the mêlée two persons were killed and more than thirty wounded.

Railwaymen have refused to allow a train to leave Bologna until 300 carabineers on their way to Viareggio were taken from the cars.

The strike of peasants in the lower districts of the province of Verona is becoming grave, owing to the violent measures taken by strikers. Peasants who refuse to join in the strike are reported to have been shot and strikers are accused of starving cattle and threatening death to proprietors. Six thousand strikers are alleged to have invaded fields, setting fire to standing crops and spreading terror among the inhabitants, who are already suffering from lack of food.

Japan Accepts the Chinese Consortium; First Loan Is Expected to Be $50,000,000

WASHINGTON, May 7 (Associated Press).—Japan has withdrawn all objections to the Chinese consortium and has prepared a communication accepting the terms as agreed upon by the United States, Great Britain and France, the State Department was informed today by the American Embassy at Tokio.

The acceptance of the agreement by Japan ends a two years' effort by the State Department to provide for the financing of China by representative groups of bankers in each of the four countries. Japan has contended that Manchuria and Mongolia should be excluded from the operation of the consortium, claiming predominant rights in that territory because of proximity. The United States refused to agree to this exclusion.

Japan will have the right to object to loans for any work which she feels will jeopardize her national life or vitally affect her sovereignty. Under this head, it is said, may be included the construction of railroads in certain sections of China, particularly Manchuria.

The amount to be lent under the consortium has not been estimated, but the advance soon of $50,000,000 for railroad and other construction and betterment is expected. Under the terms all loans made by the banking groups, which in the United States include thirty-seven banks in all parts of the country, must be approved by the State Department. The same procedure will be followed in the other countries.

Thomas W. Lamont, representing the AAmerican group of bankers, is now in the Orient in the interest of the plan. He discussed the matter in Japan with bankers and Government officials and subsequently announced that there was a better understanding of the plan in Japan. Breckenridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State, has conducted all of the negotiations on the subject for the United States.

REPORTS SULTAN MOVED TO BRUSA

Moscow Wireless Saying British Have Transferred Ruler Denied in Press Dispatch.

CABINET'S HOLD UNCERTAIN

Signing of the Peace Treaty Expected to Create Greater Difficulties for Grand Vizier.

LONDON, May 7.—A Moscow wireless message today declares that the British Government has removed the Sultan of Turkey to Brusa, the ancient Turkish capital, south of Constantinople, across the Sea of Marmora and about twenty miles inland from the coast of that sea.

Special quarters have been taken for the Sultan there, the message asserts.

A dispatch to The Standard says the report that the Sultan has been removed from Constantinople is untrue.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 6 (Associated Press.)—Colonel Jafar Tayar, Turkish Commandant at Adrianople, addressing a large crowd yesterday at Rodosto, on the Sea of Marmora, won great applause when he declared that Thrace would not submit to Greek occupation.

Many reports are in circulation of a disagreement between the Sultan and Grand Vizier Damad Ferid Pasha, because of the failure of the latter to make effective military resistance to the Nationalists in Anatolia. The resignation of the Cabinet would not cause any surprise here, as it is becoming more apparent daily that if the Turks sign the Peace Treaty as framed the Government would have great difficulty in facing public disapproval.

PARIS, May 7.—The Peace Treaty with Turkey will be handed to the Ottoman delegation on Tuesday next, May 11. The ceremony will take place in the clock room at the Foreign Office, the scene of notable plenary sessions of the Peace Conference.

HOLLAND PROPOSES LEAGUE TO CATCH REDS

Would Co-operate with Other Nations in Running Down Lenin Agents in Europe.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—The Netherlands has just put forward a proposal to organize an International European League of Detectives for the purpose of dealing with political and other criminals. England is said to have met the proposal enthusiastically. The organization is expected to assume important proportions in the near future, although there is already much collaboration here with various countries tracing and arresting political criminals.

The consensus of opinion here is that the danger of communism and revolution have greatly decreased since a few months ago, not only in Holland, but in the surrounding countries. The Netherlands can be said to have scored a victory with a splendid organization against revolutionary and Bolshevist propaganda, and the news from Moscow stating that the Amsterdam Third Internationale had been abandoned registers a defeat for Lenin, who chose small neutral countries with many frontiers as centres for Bolshevist world propaganda.

A few months ago when this happened the danger reached the apex, although the work was so underground few Hollanders realized the serious danger menacing them. Since then the Government has been untiring in its efforts, leaving no stone unturned to keep out foreign revolutionary elements and fighting the already existing danger. Lenin undoubtedly placed great hopes of success on the plans in Holland as an intellectual centre, and the intricate network of propaganda for international communication already exists.

The failure of the dockers-transporters strike, which was kept going mainly by Communist leaders who endeavored to give the strike as international a character as possible by cutting off ports, was another defeat. The strikers had funds enough for only ten weeks, after which they were obliged to give up. The Dutch socialists and Communists have always responded to the political pulse of their German comrades, following closely in their footsteps.

Many people see, however, a fresh danger in the new anti-revolutionary laws just introduced in Holland, maintaining it will be impossible to enforce the laws or prosecute those breaking them, and that the new laws will only tend to unite the Socialists and Communists in a war against the Government.

LIECHTENSTEIN ANGRY; WOULD DETHRONE RULER

People of Tiny Country Exasperated Because Wealthy Prince Leaves Them to Starve.

GENEVA, May 7.—Inhabitants of the tiny principality of Liechtenstein, situated between the former Austrian Crown Land of Vorarlberg and the Swiss Cantons of St. Gallen and Graubunden, are indignant over the conduct of Prince John, their ruler, and there is evidence of a movement to bring about his dethronement, according to advices received here.

Complaint is made that the Prince, although a reputed multi-millionaire, has done nothing since the armistice to assist his people, and has been living in Vienna. Liechtenstein has been suffering a shortage of food, and has several times been forced to appeal to Switzerland for aid.

Appointment by the Prince of a personal friend, Dr. Peer, as Governor of the principality, has increased the bitter feeling of the people, and a revolution is possible. Liechtenstein wants to become a Swiss Canton, but the Swiss Government is opposed to the policy of expansion.

NO YIELDING AT SPA, FRENCH INSIST

Press and Official Demand That Conference Enforce, Not Revise, the Treaty.

TARDIEU EXPOSES LAXNESS

Proposed to Limit Discussion So That Germans May Not Gain Any Advantages.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 7.—Preparing in advance to checkmake the efforts the Germans will make at Spa to ameliorate the treaty provisions, the French Government officials and French publicists are bending every effort to show allied and German statesmen that the conference is to enforce the Treaty of Versailles and not to revise it—to call Germany to terms rather than to release her from any obligations.

The French approach the Spa conference with the idea that it will be primarily a fight between French and German interests—that any concession made to Germany would be at French expense and, conversely, any additional insurance of fulfillment of the treaty by Germany would be to the benefit of France. And so the French are very anxious to limit by hard and fast lines the program of the Spa meeting in order that the Germans may not by any means be able to force consideration of their plans for treaty revision.

André Tardieu, who was a member of the French Peace Commission, in an article entitled "The Risk of Spa," which will appear in L'Illustration tomorrow, bitterly arraigns the allied Governments for not enforcing the treaty in the four months it has been in effect. He says that if the Spa meeting is for the purpose of enforcing the treaty it is a good step taken rather tardily. If it is for any other purpose, he says, it is peril to France.

Complains of Nonenforcement.

History will recall with astonishment, says Tardieu, that for the first four months after the treaty came into effect nothing was done to enforce it. He recalls that on March 10 Germany should have handed over all munitions in excess of treaty allowances, should have disarmed the Rhine fortresses, should have suppressed the military schools, should have handed over 13,000 cannon. On April 10 she should have reduced her army to 200,000 men. He says the Supreme Council has been meeting and meeting, and that all it has done in the matter of disarming Germany has been to make concessions.

As for reparations, Tardieu says that nothing has been done. Before April 10 he says Germany should have issued bonds for 20,000,000,000 marks-gold. She should have further issued 40,000,000,000 marks for the purpose of negotiating the German debt. However, says Tardieu, as in the matter of disarmament, the allied Governments have done nothing in the matter of reparation.

"This abstention from the enforcement of the treaty, which appears systematic," he says, "increases all the time because each time the Allies act it is to cede. In February it was an economic memorandum which M. Millerand succeeded in modifying. In April it was the press campaign for the fixation of a lump sum for the German debt which would constitute both a revision of the treaty and sacrifice of the rights of France. A little later, with the same disdain of the treaty, it was an authorization accorded to Germany to present herself at Spa to discuss means of payment and to make propositions which she lost the right to formulate on March 10. Where will this path lead us?

"Neither the Commission on Reparations nor the Supreme Council can flatter itself that it has convinced the Government of Berlin that the treaty must be enforced. As for the canon, as for the effectives, not one act, not one word, not one summons to Germany to fulfill her precise engagement—a policy of silence, inaction and wavering. If the conference at Spa has for its purpose to prepare to act or to pronounce the word that we have waited for for four months, it comes rather late. If without pronouncing this word it starts direct conversations with Germany it will be perilous. In other words, the danger of the Spa meeting is that it will result not only in Germany's doing nothing to fulfill the treaty, but in the Allies doing nothing to force Germany to fulfill.

"For four months we have been talking with Germany and among the Allies as if the treaty did not exist. We seem to forget the Germans had signed a treaty, but nothing has been accomplished nor attempted either by Allies together or by any Allies separately to compel a practical fulfillment of the treaty."

The Matin today published an article by Franklin Bouillon saying that France must not consent to the fixing of a lump sum to be paid by Germany unless her allies guarantee to enforce the payment. There is the chief point of French argument. The main idea is to make sure that Germany will pay—not only this year and next year as she is able, but that she be constrained to pay ten years, twelve years, fifteen years from now, when she will have recovered her national prosperity and resumed the full measure of her national pride.

Figaro today puts this aptly:

"Scarcely three weeks separate us from the Spa conference. During this interval the Allies must put themselves carefully in accord on a program of discussion. Whether it is a question of indemnity or the disagreement of Germany, it is France who is most interested. Above all others she is interested in indemnities to be paid and above all others she is in danger from the German military power. We have then at Spa the right and duty to propose the solutions.

"The German Government places great hopes in the Spa negotiations. For the first time a representative of the Reichstag will take his place by the side of the allied chiefs and discuss with them. Berlin hopes in this discussion to open the breach in the Treaty of Versailles."

URGES REVISION OF TREATY

Germany to Ask Postponement of Conference, but Allies Oppose Delay.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 6.—German economic experts, financiers, merchants and captains of industry are exceedingly pessimistic regarding the results of the Spa Conference, May 25, mainly because French statesmen, they assert, refuse to see or are unable to comprehend the fundamental difficulties which are crushing the life out of German industry and enterprise.

Such an expert as the economist A. Walter Rathenau declares that he is dumb with despair at the "appalling ignorance with which the world's business is managed in the most critical time of the globe's history," and because, as Rathenau told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, there is danger of spoiling by pessimism what little chance there may be for Germany at Spa.

In 1871 the chief of the banking firm of Bleichroeder, old Baron Bleichroeder, now dead, acted as principal adviser to Kaiser Wilhelm I. and Bismarck at Versailles. What was more natural than that his brother, new chief of the firm, should be asked to attend the Spa conference. The old gentleman excused himself on account of age and infirmity while his junior partners, Von Schwabach and Hermann Waldeman Schröder, pleaded other reasons for not accepting the invitation. Schröder had previously attended conferences at Spa and Versailles and his experience with the French there taught him not to entertain any more optimistic hopes of the present conference, as he told the correspondent.

Wants Mines as Indemnity Basis.

"What proposals could Germany make at Spa?" asked the correspondent. "Schröder's answer was: 'It is my opinion and belief that most men with clear insight into affairs will agree that Germany cannot make any positive proposals until we know what our future earnings can and will be, certainly not before we know if we can keep Silesia with her valuable mineral treasures, from which industry half of Germany is feeding. If we lose Silesia our capacity for making money for the Entente will be so enormously reduced that plans made at Spa will become untenable. Besides, any proposals made by the German delegation could only be based on normal political and economic development and would be upset by any revolutionary action of the Right or Left."

Schröder hinted that he did not believe there was such normal development and that he was convinced that Europe was not yet through with Bolshevism, which he thought would find more fertile soil in France than Germany, though the latter would probably be the next victim.

"Can Germany name any sum at all which she might be able to pay if conditions remain normal?" was asked.

"The French demands," replied Schröder, "are absolutely undiscussable, not because we don't want to pay but because you cannot squeeze oil out of a stone. Lloyd George recently mentioned two milliards of pounds or forty milliards of gold marks, equal to more than 400 milliards at the present rate of exchange." Schröder shook his head despairingly, but added:

"There are German experts who believe that this sum is discussable as compensation if certain German demands are granted, and if—which I am considering quite improbable—Germany should henceforth enjoy normal conditions."

Fears Rigor from France.

"You believe that Germany will make proposals based on that calculation?" was asked.

"Yes, if Germany gets a chance at all," was the reply, "but if, as Millerand proposes now, the German delegation at Spa is to accept without discussion all the French demands regarding compensations what is the use of the German Prime Minister and other high officials going there seeing that the conference at Spa is to be only a repetition of former ones when Germany was compelled to sign with a pistol placed against her heart. Personally, I believe that no modus vivendi can be found for Germany or the whole of Europe on the basis of the Versailles Treaty, and there will be no return to sound, normal conditions throughout the world until that treaty is revised.

"For instance, the treaty provides that Germany must not pay less taxes and revenues than any of the allied and associated countries. How can you squeeze the revenues paid by the United States or England out of impoverished Germany?"

Schröder gave THE TIMES correspondent the names of the following persons selected as delegates to go to Spa: Hermann Müller, the Prime Minister; Dr. Adolph Köster, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Herr Wirth, Minister of Finance; Max Warburg, banker, and Bernhard Schröder, Under Secretary to the Minister of Commerce.

The Minister of Federal Economics, Robert Schmidt, was not quite so pessimistic. He said he hoped that common sense would prevail at Spa this time and that the highest council would take notice of the facts as they were. Schmidt would not discuss the question of compensation, but said that compensation would only be possible if Germany were permitted, first, to retain part of her mercantile fleet; second, to retain some of the docks formerly in German possession; third, if an agreement concerning regular and sufficient supply of raw products could be concluded; fourth, if some arrangement concerning the rate of exchange could be made; fifth, if credits were granted, and, sixth, if Germany received a chance to regulate her own imports and exports.

Germans Want Parley Delayed.

BRUSSELS, May 7.—It is announced in what are considered reliable circles here that the German Government will send a note to the French Government asking that the conference between representatives of the Allies and Germany at Spa, set for May 25, be postponed to June 10, after the German elections.

PARIS, May 7.—Reports that Germany will request a postponement of the meeting of Allied and German representatives at Spa from May 25 to June 10, after the German elections, are regarded in French official circles as plausible in view of the difficulty which Germany is having in getting ready for the conference.

No request for a postponement has yet been received from the Germans, but it is expected that it will come soon. The Allies are disposed not to grant a delay, because of the urgency of holding the Spa meeting and also because the League of Nations financial conference at Brussels cannot be held until after that at Spa.

The greatest importance is attached to both conferences by the Allies, French officials said today, and it is felt that solution of the problems destined to come before both meetings cannot be delayed.

Report Torpedoes Used to Shoot Whisky Into Detroit

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, May 7.—Electrically operated torpedoes loaded with whisky are being sent daily across the Detroit River from the Canadian to the American shore, a mysterious informant told Federal officers today. Without divulging his identity, he told the result of his entirely private investigations.

There are three torpedoes in use now, he said, of 10, 15 and 25 gallons capacity. They are of copper construction, with a propeller at the nose actuated by electric storage batteries. They submerge 100 feet, and require about five minutes to cross the river at a point he designated only as "east of Woodward Avenue."

A red flag on one side of the river and a white one on the other comprise targets at which the operators direct their torpedoes, he said. After being caught and emptied on the American side the torpedoes are ballasted with water and sent back. A huge torpedo of 50 gallons capacity is being constructed, he told the Federal officers.

RESENT INTERFERENCE IN IRISH AFFAIRS

Two London Papers Rebuke Congressmen—Irish Constabulary Threaten Strike for Protection.

LONDON, May 7.—Only two of this morning's newspapers comment on the memorandum sent by American Congressmen to Premier Lloyd George relative to the Irish situation, and the tone of their editorials is somewhat resentful against "outside interference" in British internal affairs.

"It is an elementary maxim of the foreign policy of most civilized nations that one state department should not interfere with the internal affairs of another nation," says the Daily Graphic, which seems to view the memorandum as a political move. "No legislator of any country has the right to imperil the good relationship existing between his nation and any other merely because he wants to attract votes to himself."

The newspaper declares Irishmen have the same redress, if wronged, that is given any other citizens of the United Kingdom, and it points to the wholesale arrest of Bolsheviki in America as analogous to the situation in Ireland.

Re-establishment of the British Bureau of Information in America, which was closed at the time of the armistice, is urged upon the Government by the Morning Post, which says it could counter anti-British agitation in the United States. Referring to the action of American Congressmen on behalf of the "Irish Republic," the newspaper says:

"Were Great Britain to pass a resolution in both houses of Parliament in favor of granting self-government to the Philippine Islands, we imagine the British Foreign Office would hear of it within twenty-four hours."

The Star's Belfast correspondent today says he learns from an authoritative source that arrangements are contemplated for a general strike of the Irish Constabulary in the event of the government being further unable to take necessary steps to protect policemen in the execution of their duty.

Fifty hungry strikers were released from the Wormwood Scrubbs Prison today.

BELFAST, May 7.—Twenty-seven hunger strikers who were removed from the jail to the hospital during the week were discharged today and departed for their homes in the South.

DUBLIN, May 7.—It is reported that the "Curfew" order in Dublin is to be rescinded at the end of the month.

Commenting on the recent resolution passed by certain members of the House of Representatives in Washington in connection with Irish prisoners, The Freeman's Journal says today:

"Helped by Dublin Castle, friends of Ireland in the United States will have no difficulty in turning the interest aroused in Ireland by the British Secret Service to good account. The Congressmen's message might be a useful reminder to Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, a Canadian."

The Independent has not commented on the resolution.

MULLINGAR, Leinster, May 7.—Two hundred laborers forced an entry into the Council Chamber today, where a discussion was in progress on the question of road repairing contracts, and demanded that direct instead of contract labor be used.

After a free fight the council complied with the laborers' demands.

MELBOURNE, May 6.—Entry into Australia of an American pamphlet entitled "Bond Certificate for the First Loan of the Elected Government of the Republic of Ireland," has been prohibited by the Federal Government.

LOYAL COALITION'S MESSAGE

Asks Lloyd George to Ignore "Impertinent Congressmen."

The Loyal Coalition, an organization with headquarters at 24 Mt. Vernon Street, Boston, made public yesterday a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George asking the British Government to disregard the "impertinent" cablegram sent by eighty-eight Congressmen as a protest against the British Government's course in Ireland. The text of the cablegram follows:

"David Lloyd George, Prime Minister of Great Britain,
"10 Downing Street, London, England.

"The Loyal Coalition, an American organization for the conservation of American ideals and traditions, with thousands of members throughout the United States and all over the world, requests the British Government to disregard absolutely the impertinent cablegram, with eighty-eight Congressmen of the United States as signatories, criticising the treatment of political prisoners in Ireland. Those Congressmen will pay at the polls for their meddlesome interference.

"The Loyal Coalition is a spontaneous association of public-spirited American citizens dedicated to the task of combating the treacherous Sinn Fein propaganda, which threatens to undermine and destroy the very foundations of this Republic.

"We desire to impress upon you that the officious and dictatorial procedure of these Congressmen does not represent in the slightest degree the attitude and sentiment of the overwhelming majority of the American people. It is the act of an assortment of unscrupulous and mediocre politicians seeking to derive personal aggrandizement by bidding for the support of the Irish vote, which is menacing for the moment because of organization.

"American public opinion is rapidly awakening on this question. We confidently predict that in the near future American national consciousness will be articulate and will speak in no uncertain terms to these alien and hyphenated propagandists, and their dupes, who are furtively and remorselessly plotting to wreck the world's peace.

Greenwood Is Re-elected.

SUNDERLAND, Eng., May 7.—Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was re-elected to Parliament today in the by-election necessitated by his recent appointment to the Irish Secretaryship. Sir Hamar received 22,813 votes as against 14,379 for V. H. Rutherford, the Labor candidate, and 5,065 for W. Rowe, Independent Liberal. At the general election in 1918 Sir Hamar, a Coalition Liberal, was returned by about 2,000 plurality over R. M. Hudson, the Unionist candidate. The Labor candidate in this election polled 9,578 votes. No Unionist opposed him in the present by-election.

BANKERS OPPOSE LOAN TO RAILROADS

Tell Senate Committee Stronger Companies Could Get Funds in Open Market.

FEAR INCREASE IN TAXES

Suggest $300,000,000 Revolving Fund Be Extended to 15 Years to Aid Weaker Roads.

CONGRESS MAY DO THIS

Cummins Indicates That That Will Probably Be the Extent of Relief at Present Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Disapproval of the railroads' request for a further loan of $500,000,000 to provide freight and passenger cars, expressed before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce today by New York bankers will probably result, according to members of the committee, in a decision by Congress against such a loan. Railroad executives who appeared before the committee yesterday said that in no other way could funds needed be raised.

The bankers suggested that, while the railroads could not raise any large part of the $610,000,000 they say they need, the stronger roads could get funds, and that the $300,000,000 Government revolving fund be extended from five years to fifteen to relieve the smaller roads.

Senator Cummins, Chairman of the committee, indicated tonight that an amendment to the Railroad act extending to fifteen years the time during which loans could be made to the roads from the revolving fund would probably be the extent of Congressional relief to the railroads. The committee will make its formal decision within a few days.

The bankers who appeared today, representing the largest financial houses in New York, said that a loan would mean an increase in taxation or a continuance of present high Federal taxes, and would thus indefinitely prolong the present sterility of the investment market by preventing the investment of money in taxable securities. Guarantees of railroad securities they opposed on the ground that such a step would seriously impair the Government's credit and would cause outstanding Government securities to depreciate.

Says Some Can Finance Themselves.

Jerome J. Hanauer, a partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who was Chairman of a committee of bankers who last year evolved the plan of financing for the United States Railroad Administration, was the first witness. After pointing out that the income tax had driven away investors, and had limited the available investment money to the small investors, Mr. Hanauer said that a number of railroads were in a position to finance their own equipment purchases by floating securities among small investors, although that would take considerable time and a high rate of interest, adding that when the pending wage and rate questions have been settled a larger number of railroads will find themselves able to do their own financing.

Mr. Hanauer suggested that an effort be made, first of all, to see whether the railroads could not avoid purchase of some equipment by enlarging terminals and resorting to other means of making more effective use of existing facilities. After that, he said, Congress could help the weaker roads by making the revolving fund available for fifteen years, and if necessary by increasing the fund somewhat.

Frederick W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co., said that the income tax had "eliminated the investing class" in the United States, and that the general public, though possessed of more money than ever before, was indulging in a period of "easy spending" which meant that nothing was being saved or invested. He said that, although railroads and other borrowers now have to pay 7½ per cent. and like high rates for money, it must be borne in mind that the dollar is now worth about half what it was and the demand is much greater than ever before.

Opposes Continuance of Taxes.

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company, told the committee that he doubted whether $300,000,000 worth of railroad securities could be floated this year, but declared an attempt should be made by the railroads to float as large a sum as possible before appealing to the Government for help. He said the imposition of further taxes, "at a time when present Federal taxes are strangling business," would be a serious step.

J. R. Swan, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; E. B. Sweezy, Vice President of the First National Bank, New York, and George Whitney, of J. P. Morgan & Co., concurred in the recommendations of the previous witnesses.

S. Davies Warfield, of Baltimore, representing the holders of railroad securities, called the committee's attention to the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission is engaged in gathering information from the railroads concerning the amounts of money needed. He suggested that Congress do nothing until all the questionnaires sent out by the commission have been returned. It would then be apparent, he said, just how much the railroads would have to obtain, and why.

Alfred P. Thom, General Counsel for the railroad executives, urged that the committee amend the law so that the Interstate Commerce Commission could not require the railroads to repay money due the Government within one and two years. On account of the present financial situation, he said, this puts a terrific strain on roads which are trying to get equipment.

FRENZIED BY BOYS, KILLS MAN, WOUNDS 3

Tailor, Infuriated by Taunts, Runs Amuck in Crowded Seward Park.

USES SHEARS AND KNIFE

Slashes at All in His Path—Pursued by Crowd and Knocked Down, Policeman Saves Him.

Out of work and morose, Phillip Cooper, a tailor, sat yesterday on a bench in Seward Park unmindful of the crowds of happy children about him. His mutterings caught the ears of a group of boys and they began to mock him. For a time the man paid no heed to them, but the cries redoubled. Suddenly Cooper, enraged, leaped to his feet, threw his hat on the ground and began to shout incoherently. Women hastily gathered up their children and ran screaming.

Cooper, still yelling, drew from his pocket a pair of cutter's shears and a large pocketknife and dashed through the park. A few minutes later one man was dead, three others, severely wounded, had been taken to Gouverneur Hospital and Cooper, raving, was in a straitjacket at Bellevue Hospital.

The man he killed by stabbing him through the heart was Morris Nimkofsky, connected with the Forward Association, 175 Broadway, and one of the founders of Forward, the Jewish daily paper. The three injured by stabbing are Louis Katz, 344 Rodney Street, Brooklyn; Morris Lubinsky of 244 East Third Street, and Samuel Lipman, 14 Jefferson Street. When Cooper finally was caught, after running to Essex and Division Streets, Policeman John J. Hopkins had to draw his revolver to prevent a crowd from beating the man to death.

After stabbing Mr. Nimkofsky, who died before he reached Beth Israel Hospital, the man ran through the park upsetting baby carriages and slashing right and left at women and children who ran around benches and trees. J. Sand of 90½ Essex Street tried three times to throw an overcoat over the man's head and overpower him, but finally stumbled and fell. Cooper was about to stab him when A. Siroicheik of 105 Essex Street rushed at the frenzied man and saved Sand.

By this time hundreds of persons had rushed to the scene. The large crowd apparently frightened Cooper, for he ran from the park to East Broadway. Here he jumped on the running obard of a passing auto and stabbed Katz, the owner and driver of the car, in the arm. Two other persons in the automobile fought Cooper off.

Continuing his way up the crowded street Cooper stabbed Lipman and Lubinsky with his shears. Then a plumber hit the tailor on the head with a file and he fell. Regaining his feet he fled, a crowd in pursuit. Then a man ran from a store and hit the fugitive on the head with a piece of lead pipe, knocking him down. The crowd started to beat and kick him. Policeman Hopkins put in a call for the reserves, then forced his way through the crowd, and drawing his revolver rescued Cooper. While waiting for the ambulance to take him to Bellevue Cooper pulled from his pocket a small looking glass and straightened his tie and smoothed his hair. He was severely scratched and bruised.

Cooper, the police learned, is 36 years old and has been living at 2,055 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx. It was said he could not obtain work because of his "sulkiness" and loud talk.

HARBOR BARGES FOR CANAL.

1,000 of Congested Craft Here Will Take Freight West.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 7.—State Superintendent of Public Works Edward S. Walsh here today released restrictions on the barge canal to permit passage of any kind of boat. This was done to relieve the congestion of westbound freight held in New York Harbor.

This means that 1,000 or more harbor barges will be sent by canal from New York to the West, carrying thousands of tons of freight that might otherwise have had to remain in New York indefinitely.

Stop Wasting Gasoline

A reproduction of Richard Spillane's editorial in the Business and Financial section of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, May 3, 1920.

"SOME persons think that what they do with their money or with what they purchase with their money is not any other person's business.

They are mistaken.

A lot of persons are buying gasoline today and using it wastefully. In so doing they are penalizing all the people, and particularly all owners of automobiles.

There are 6,000,000 passenger cars in the United States. There is a shortage of gasoline. Through gross waste this shortage is made more acute than it should be. If it is not checked the price of gasoline will be forced to a height that will compel many persons to lay up their cars.

The automobile is of great utility. It gives opportunity to many millions of persons—men, women and children—to get out into the country, to have recreation and pleasures that otherwise would be difficult for them to obtain. It is a great agency, too, in the promotion of good health. Anything that restricts its use is of public concern.

Those who have studied the subject say one-half a gallon of gasoline per car is wasted today through carelessness, through overuse of cars and through useless mileage. This means 3,000,000 gallons a day.

This has to be stopped or the price of gasoline will stop the use of tens and tens of thousands of cars. It will stop if you recognize the fact that any one who wastes gasoline is doing an injury to you whether you own a car or do not own one.

HOW does the waste of gasoline concern the person who does not own a car, might be asked. Let us see.

There are hundreds of thousands of motor trucks. They do a great work in the transportation of various commodities. There are hundreds of thousands of motor cars to be built this year. If the price of gasoline advances the cost of transporting goods will be increased and you will have to pay it in the higher prices you pay for eggs, for milk, for beef, for vegetables, for moving your household goods, for anything and everything you eat or use, for directly or indirectly it will be in the bill the general public has to pay.

A waste of one-half gallon of gasoline per passenger car per day means 1,095,000,000 gallons a year. Wow!

One gallon of gasoline will provide the energy to move a one-ton truck 15 miles, or to put it another way, it will move 15 tons of freight one mile. If the users of passenger cars would save the one-half gallon a day they waste it would equal 16,425,000,000 ton miles of haul.

Economy in gasoline means more than the general public appreciates. More oil is being used today than is being produced. That means the reserve stocks are being drawn upon. Curtailment of waste is imperative. It rests with users of gasoline to do voluntarily what otherwise they inevitably will be forced to do.

Save oil."

SAYS AMERICAN AID BLOCKED RED MOVE

Henry F. Samstag Declares Austria Would Have Accepted Soviet for Food and Supplies.

RUTHENIA STILL NEEDS HELP

Finds French Financiers Confident of Economic Recovery — England Sound and Active Commercially.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—Had it not been for the activity of American relief agencies in territories formerly belonging to Austria, Henry F. Samstag, President of Samstag & Hilder Brothers of New York, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today the Russian Soviet Government would have gained many adherents in return for supplies to keep people alive.

The agency realized that the distress and destitution in Ruthenia, Silesia and neighboring regions gave it a great opening and it started a combination of missionary and relief work to the regions at once in order to establish its political influence.

Samstag has just returned from a business trip to Czechoslovakia and sails tomorrow on the Mauretania for New York. He is loud in his praise of the work the American Relief Administration, the National American War Council and the Joint Distribution Committee for Jewish War Sufferings have accomplished in Eastern Europe. He declared there was need for still greater efforts to help the Jewish population in Ruthenia.

It is a mountainous, rocky region and potatoes, one of its principal crops, have been a failure.

Hundreds of heads of families are still prisoners. There are also many in Russia and unless help comes their wives and families must starve. On the other hand, there are many Russian prisoners still in Bohemia with no money to get home and who are unable, through ignorance of the language, to find employment.

Food and fuel are terribly scarce, he says, all through Bohemia, fifty pounds of coal per week being the allowance for a family, with one pound of flour per head. Butter and other fats are also very hard to get. There are regular meatless days, and as an illustration of prices, Mr. Samstag said he paid 400 crowns in a restaurant for a small chicken. Nevertheless, at a dinner given in Prague by Hindrich Waldes, one of the leading Bohemians, to Colonel J. P. Murphy, of the Morgan group of financers, the latter had borne testimony to the energy of the people and expressed the belief that Czechslovakia was sure to receive aid.

Mr. Samstag had a long talk with President Mabayle and said he found one good sign—the Austrian inhabitants of the new States seemed to be settling down and accepting the Czech régime. As 75 per cent. of the population was Roman Catholic, there was not much chance of religious difficulties arising, he said, but the Austrians seemed to have a grievance in the fact that in the public schools their children were forced to learn Bohemian.

In Paris Mr. Samstag had an interview with P. Georges Wild, one of the chief men of credit. Talking of economic conditions, he said:

"Just look at the history of France. It has always in the past recovered economically and it will come back now. There is a lot of talking about little things but we shall do big things. The French have been the hardest hit of all the Allies but I know the French spirit. It will prove itself equal to our hard talk of rehabilitation."

At the same time Mr. Samstag expressed the opinion to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that France had not yet learned to tax herself, her direct taxation per head being less than one-fourth of that imposed in England.

Mr. Samstag was very optimistic about the financial and economic condition in England. He had come prepared to buy up some factories if he got a good chance, but his friend, the British business man, though willing to use more capital, was not at all inclined to sell out. As an instance of the activity in commercial circles, he mentioned he had found it impossible to engage a room in any Birmingham hotel and had to make the trip there from London and back by automobile in one day.

One famous man Mr. Samstag ran across was Paderewski, at a Zurich railway station. He said he thought that the happiest days of his life had been spent in America, but when Mr. Samstag asked: "When will you come to play for us again?" his wife dragged him hastily away.

WIDOW SAYS SHONTS HID PART OF ESTATE

Believes $1,000,000 Was Invested Abroad as Precaution Under War Conditons.

SETS ASSETS AT $4,000,000

Doubts Estimate of $771,000—Court Stays Restoration of Mrs. Shonts as Administrator.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that Mrs. Milla D. Shonts could not succeed the Guaranty Trust Company as administrator of the estate of her husband, Theodore P. Shonts, pending the appeal of the ruling which set aside the decision of Surrogate Fowler in removing Mrs. Shonts. The widow will qualify if the Court of Appeals upholds the Appellate Division decision.

The application for a stay was made by John E. Berwind and De Lancey Nicoll, named in the will of Mr. Shonts to act with the trust company in administering the estate. They alleged that the estate would suffer if Mrs. Shonts were permitted to take charge.

Opposing the application, Mrs. Shonts said that both Mr. Berwind and Mr. Nicoll were friends of Mrs. Amanda B. Thomas, who was named as residuary legatee in the will. She says that in 1905 her husband made a schedule of his personal property showing that he held securities worth $2,000,000. She believes his personal property had increased to $4,000,000 at the time of his death.

Mrs. Shonts admits that when her attorney applied to the trust company for information on the value of his estate she was informed that the net value of the estate was only $514,000 and the gross estate $771,000. A list of the securities which were found by the trust company among the assets of the estate was sent to Mrs. Shonts.

Mrs. Shonts alleged in an affidavit that she had been informed that in 1914 her husband had an idea that wealthy persons should conceal some of their property on account of unsettled conditions and so that reports of the size of their estates should not become public. She believes that Mr. Shonts gave to Mr. Nicoll and Mr. Berwind Government bonds worth more than $1,000,000, which "they invested in England, France and Spain."

She declares that the Guaranty Trust Company, of which Mr. Berwind is a large stockholder and director "has made, so far as she has knowledge, no search for the missing assets, although the increasing remoteness of any transactions, if they occurred, may make it extremely difficult to locate them."

Mr. Berwind and Mr. Nicoll filed affidavits denying the allegations, and declaring that the alleged transaction in Government bonds or other property never took place.

BEST DRESSED M. P. DONS DUNGAREE TOGS

His London Tailor's Rush-Order Suit a 30-Shilling Substitute for Overalls.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 7.—The American overalls campaign against the high price of clothes had a sequel in England today in the appearance of Major Prettyman-Newman in the House of Commons in a dungaree suit. Prettyman-Newman is the Chairman of the Middle Class Union Association formed to look after the interests of the professional and clerical classes, those who in this country have been the hardest hit by the rise in the cost of living and increase of taxation.

Prettyman-Newman, who has the reputation of being one of the best dressed members of the House of Commons—his wife has the similar reputation of being one of the best garbed women in London society—said that his overalls were made by his own West End tailor.

"As I required them at short notice, and as that involved overtime, I necessarily had to pay extra," he said. "In the ordinary way, a suit like mine would cost 30 shillings, the price of the cloth being 2 shillings 6 pence a yard.

"A suit such as this is highly suitable for office use, whereas the usual attire of a clerk is not. Dungaree washes well, is just the thing for Summer wear, and, above all, is inexpensive. Men of the middle class cannot possibly afford to pay the enormous prices which are being charged for clothes in these days, and they cannot do better than follow my example.

"We hope to make the scheme popular and are taking precautions to see that, in the event of a rush for dungaree, the price of this cloth will not become prohibitive. One or two big firms have come to an understanding with us with regard to its supply and are submitting their prices, with a view to prevention of profiteering."

London's Wool Auction Closes.

LONDON, May 7.—At the closing of the wool auction sales today, 11,700 bales were offered. Fine merinos and crossbreds were 5 per cent. and occasionally 10 per cent. down, and other grades from 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. lower. America bought 5,000 bales, the home trade 95,000 and the Continent 35,000.

SEEK TO AVERT COAL FAMINE

Ohio Rail Officials Call for Joint Action by Eastern Roads.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, May 7.—Ohio railroad men have taken initial steps to bring about concerted action by railroad managers of all lines east of the Rocky Mountains to obtain relief from a prospective coal famine. They assert that, unless there is definite action now, next Winter the most acute famine in coal that the country has ever known may occur, and this even if there is a slowing up of business and industrial activity which many observers believe to be in sight.

In a general way, the plan is the limitation of the use of open top cars until coal mines are supplied 100 per cent. In speaking of the movement it is explained that 50,000,000 tons of coal were lost by reason of the miners' strike last October. The output since that time had caught up with needs when the switchmen's strike again upset production.

HARRIS HEADS MANAGERS.

Association Disapproves of Increase in Price of Theatre Tickets.

At a meeting of the Producing Managers' Association, held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor, all of the officers of the organization were re-elected for another year. These are: Sam H. Harris, President; George Broadhurst, Vice President; Ben R. Roeder, Treasurer, and L. Lawrence Weber, Secretary.

The organization also placed itself on record as disapproving of any general increase in the price of theatre tickets.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ed Wynn has been added to those who will appear at the testimonial performance to William Raymond Sill at the Globe Theatre on May 23.

Hal Forde has been engaged for the Zimbalist operetta, "Honeydew," which Joe Weber is producing.

The Misses O'Rourke and Adelphi, singers, will appear in the Ziegfeld "Nine o'Clock Revue" beginning next Monday.

BLANK CHECKS

Several times a week some out-of-town patron of McBride's sends us, with an order for theatre tickets, a check with the amount left blank for McBride's to fill in. We fill it in with the box-office price plus fifty cents—our standard time-honored service fee.

Simple enough as a business transaction. But it bespeaks confidence in our methods of business. And it gives us a chance to remind those patrons, as well as thousands of others, that every one of them owns a perpetual blank draft on the entire facilities of our service, our courtesy, and our expertness.

The more you draw upon us the better is our chance to show you the result of 46 years' persistent effort to furnish people good theatre seats where and when they want them.

Skolny Clothes

FOR YOUNG MEN AND BOYS

Since starting this column we have received many messages over the telephone, and also many letters, inquiring where Skolny Clothes can be bought.

They are for sale by the leading dealers in the principal cities of the United States—progressive retailers who are sincerely anxious to provide their customers with Ready-for-Service Clothes that represent the highest standard of quality and style.

Permit us to suggest that the next time you wish to purchase a Suit or Topcoat, just ask the salesman to show you SKOLNY'S.

This will impress him with the fact that you have Clothing appreciation and discrimination—and he will respect your taste accordingly.

Prices for Skolny Clothes are very moderate, but when judging the value of Skolny Clothes you should not consider price alone.

To be just to yourself, you must consider the price in relation to quality. Bear in mind that no extravagance of time, thought and tailoring has been spared to create perfection.

Our twenty-year-old policy of adding effort to effort in order to maintain the supremacy of Skolny Clothes was never more pronounced than it is today. This is why they are still without serious rivalry.

Isn't it something for you to know that when your choice falls upon Skolny Clothes, you secure faultless style, fit and workmanship, and that no matter in what company you find yourself, you have the feeling that if your associates measure a man's power by personal appearance, you will inspire them with confidence. Greater authorities than we have advised you to dress well. When you don Skolny Clothes you may safely count yourself well dressed.

GIANTS EMERGE VICTORS FROM PROLONGED STRUGGLE WITH BROOKLYN SUPERBAS

RED-HOT FINISH IS STAGED BY GIANTS

They Lead, Fall Behind, Draw Even, Drop Back and Then Forge Ahead, All in 11 Innings.

BEAT ROBINS AT END, 7 TO 6

Benton and Marquard Driven from Box by Sluggers in Hair-Raising Tilt at Polo Grounds.

A rip-roaring finish carried the Giants to an eleventh-inning victory over the Brooklyns at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 6. It was a seething combat which kept the crowd of 10,000 fans in Harlem until after dinnertime and left many of them in a condition close to nervous collapse. There was good playing and bad, and at times, just when it seemed likely that the fans would go to sleep, something would happen to set the stands in a blaze of excitement.

The Giants had to fight to the last ditch as they haven't fought this season to pull out ahead, for the Robins were always dangerous. The McGraw battalion had the game practically won by a count of 3 to 1 when the Robins came to the bat in the first of the ninth. Without a word of warning the Dodgers fell upon Rube Benton with deadly impact and came from behind with a rush. A fusillade of five hits swept three Brooklyn runs over the plate, and when the Giants went to take their turn at the bat in the last of the ninth Brooklyn was in the lead by 4 to 3.

In the last of the ninth Rube Marquard went to the clubhouse after he had put two men on the bases with a pass and a hit. Clarence Mitchell, who has been disturbing the Giants a good deal this season, came to the rescue, but the home team shoved over a run which tied the score.

The tenth inning was clotted with high tension, but nothing decisive happened, and then in the eleventh the riot broke out. Brooklyn went head-on into the pitching of Jess Barnes and took a two-run lead. To all practical intents and purposes the Robins had the game won right then and there.

Giants Have a Punch Left.

But wait! What is this cloud of dust in the offing? The last half of the eleventh saw the Giants rise in their might and launch a rally which knocked the Dodgers galley west. Throats went hoarse and hats filled the air during this batting insurrection. Men, women and even children who had been shivering in the coolness of approaching night glowed now in the warmth of the exhilarating stampede by means of which McGraw's lads brushed aside all opposition and rushed under the wire in front.

The thousands of sailors and their officers from the Atlantic Fleet had the time of their lives and not soon will they forget their shore leave of yesterday. The jacktars yelled and shouted with glee as the Giants went riding rough shod over the Dodgers in that final assault of a hard fought scrap.

King Lear, picked up by McGraw to fill a utility role in his unbalanced infield, was the first man to face Mitchell in the last of the eleventh. The Dodgers were in front 6 to 4. Lear, who had previously astonished the crowd with a home run belt into the bleachers, walloped a steaming three-bagger over Hi Myers's roof in centre field.

Uncle Robbie halted the game and extracted Mitchell from the box. He sent Burleigh Grimes to the mound and George Kelly made up for many of his past shortcomings by cudgeling a long three-bagger to right, sending Lear home. Kelly slapped the first ball pitched and his slam almost got away through the little alley between the grandstand and the bleachers in right field.

Third Base Over-Populated.

Opportunity grinned at Frank Snyder, but he did nothing but send a puny little grounder to Grimes and was thrown out at first. Earl Smith came forth to bat in place of Barnes and he too pushed a little hopper to Grimes. Kelly had taken a big lead off third and Grimes whipped the ball over and the whole Brooklyn infield gave chase to Kelly and tried to trap him. In the mean time Smith had galloped all the way around to third and he came into the bag at the same time that Kelly was trying to sneak his way back. Here were the two Giants perched on the same cushion, which simply can't be done according to Hoyle. Hank O'Day ruled that Kelly held the legal lease to the bag and Smith was out. George Burns was greeted by Grimes with a base on balls. Ross Young streaked a single to right and Kelly raced over the plate with the run which tied the score. On the throw-in Burns went to third and Young to second.

A boiler factory would sound like a faint sweet sonata compared with the rumpus which the crowd kicked up at this page of the romance. The men folks tumbled all over each other in the turmoil. Arthur Fletcher was at the bat. There were two gone and the winning run rested with Burns who was planted at third.

Fletcher tried to slam it, but he rolled a tantalizing little hopper to first base. Schmandt, who was playing first, thought the ball was a rattle-snake. He made two or three stabs to get it, but each time dropped it like a hot potato. During this juggling act, Fletcher raced to first and was safe. Just as soon as Burns was over the plate with the winning run, the crowd broke loose and flooded the field.

Both Managers McGraw and Robinson drew heavily on their reserves in the effort to win this game. They tried to outgeneral each other, and neither missed a chance to work all tricks of their trade. After all, it was the punch which carried the day, the punch of the three-base slams engineered by Lear and Kelly. These terrific raps, coming so unexpectedly from the bats of players who had not been reckoned upon, completely upset the equilibrium of the Brooklyn guests.

First Tally of Superbas.

Brooklyn registered its first run in the fourth. Up to that time Benton and Marquard were having a fine pitching battle. Wheat got an infield hit to Lear in the third and Myers sacrificed. Konetchy rolled a grounder to Lear, who completely overlooked the fact that Wheat was on his way from second to third. He could have turned around and retired Wheat, but instead he threw to first and retired Koney, Wheat safely digging his feet into third.

Nels jammed a single to centre, scoring Wheat. Elliott's grounder shot through Fletcher and when Statz made a wild throw returning the ball to the infield, Nels went to third and Elliott to second. At this point the Giants' infield looked as if it was shot full of holes. Marquard walked and filled the bases. Benton was cool in this distressing predicament, and Olson skied to Burns.

Lear made up for his stupid play in the fifth when he tied the score with a home run drive into the bleachers. New York took the lead in the sixth. Burns doubled to left with two down and Young walked. Fletcher's single sent Burns home and the Giants were in front. Burns doubled again in the eighth, with one out, and scored on Fletcher's single to right centre.

The ninth saw the destruction of Benton. Myers singled and Konetchy doubled. Schmandt ran for Koney. Krueger, batting for Nels, singled to right and scored Myers and Schmandt, Krueger going to second. Baird was sent in to run for Krueger. Elliott sent Baird to third with a sacrifice and Marquard fanned. Olson jammed a single to right and Baird crossed the plate with the run which put the Robins in front.

The Giants tied it in the last of the ninth. Lear walked and went to third on Kelly's single. Mitchell then relieved Marquard and Snyder fouled to Schmandt. Gonzales, batting for Benton, walked and Burns slashed a grounder to Kilduff. While Kilduff, Olson and Schmandt were trying to make a double play, they missed the second half of it on Gonzales at first and Lear scored with the tying run.

Reds Take Weird Game from Cardinals by Tally of 15 to 11.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 7.—Cincinnati defeated St. Louis, 15 to 11, in a weird exhibition here today. Schupp was removed in the first after walking five of the eight men who faced him. Fisher was taken from the box in the fifth after walking one man and allowing three hits. Neale was ordered out of the game in the second for arguing with Umpire Moran over a called strike.

TO MOVE GIANTS' OFFICES.

Club Will Locate at 15 West 44th Street About May 20.

It was announced yesterday by officials of the New York National League Baseball Club that the executive offices of the club would be moved from the Fifth Avenue Building to 15 West Forty-fourth Street about May 20. It was said that the club desired more room to conduct the volume of business it is called upon to handle.

SENATORS CUDGEL YANKEE PITCHERS

Pile Up Six Runs in First Two Innings and Finally Down Their Guests by 6 to 5.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—It is the conviction of Miller Huggins, conceived and strengthened during today's battle between the Yankees and the Senators, that what he really needs is an unlimited supply of pitchers. He used three perfectly good ones in this afternoon's imbroglio, but that wasn't enough to win. It was barely enough to enable the New Yorkers to get the short end of a 6 to 5 score.

One twirler per inning is now the ideal of Huggins. This reform will be effected as soon as he can persuade the American League moguls to allow him to recruit a regiment of moundsmen to be known as the Miller Huggins Fusiliers.

The Senators, having outbatted three guests by the goodly margin of fourteen hits to nine, may be said to have deserved the victory. However, they were lucky at that, for in the first inning, when they piled up a quartet of runs, the first four batters got messy little rollers which Dame Fortune's smile converted into singles. The Yankees made a lot of long safe drives, their total bases on hits reaching nineteen to fifteen for the local team. Joe Judge was the batting star of the day with four singles and a double in five trips to the plate.

The Yankees showed little disposition toward combativeness at the outset of the game. Ward trickled one down the third-base line and was thrown out by Ellerbe, who also took care of Peckinpaugh's liner. Shannon fielded Pipp's grounder and shot it to Judge in plenty of time.

Now came Ernie Shore into the box for a brief sojourn, but one not lacking in excitement. Judge laced the ball over Peck's way, and a wretched bound gave him a single. Shore fielded Milan's slash down toward first, and Connolly called the runner safe on a very close decision. Rice came along with an infield poke which went for the third one-base hit in a row. The bases were now as thoroughly congested as comfort would permit, and when Roth's slam took a high bound over Peck's head for still another single, Judge, having no other place available, crossed the plate. Milan completed the round trip a minute later on a sacrifice fly by Harris.

The Senators were getting the ends of their cudgels on the ball with dismal frequency, and Shore was rising in favor with the Washington fans. Ellerbe now delivered a drive to Peck, which that worthy fumbled, and Rice registered the third run. Shannon came through with the first clean hit of the session, a sharp single to left, on which Roth scored.

Thormahlen responded to Miller Huggins's distress signal, and Shore withdrew to seclusion. Picinich grounded to Ward, who threw out Ellerbe at the plate, and Snyder flied to Lewis.

With the Yankees safely boxed the Washington gang now proceeded to nail down the cover. Thormahlen survived the inning, but he never looked the same afterward. Joe Judge started it with a double to right. Milan bunted safely and Judge went to third, finishing his homeward voyage when Ward fumbled Rice's roller. Roth got an infield hit and once more the bases held all they could carry. Harris popped to Pratt. Ellerbe sent out a sacrifice fly to Bodie and Milan tallied. Peck threw out Shannon.

Thereupon, with a 6 to 1 lead, the Senators settled back for an easy canter to the winning post. They didn't threaten damage from then on save in the sixth, when Picinich and Judge got singles. However, as the Yankees appeared indisposed to start anything in the nature of an onslaught on Snyder, the status quo was maintained until the first half of the seventh, when the New Yorkers arose en masse and drove Dr. Snyder far away from there with an assault that put them only one notch to the rear of the home talent.

Pratt began it with a single to left field. Bodie did the same trick in the same territory and took second when Milan returned the ball to third too late to head off Pratt. Snyder passed Hoffman, who batted for Ruel, and the bases were full with none out.

Erickson now assumed the pitching burden for Washington. He fanned O'Doul, batting for Thormahlen, as an initial step. Ward, however, drove out a terrific blow to the left field fence, clearing the bases. Peck, catching the spirit of the occasion, tripled down the left field foul line, scoring Ward. It looked very rosy for the Yanks for a minute, but Erickson tightened up and Pipp popped to Harris, while Babe Ruth went out, Harris to Judge.

Save for Pratt's double to left in the eighth the Yankees were quiescent thereafter and the Senators, too, finding Quinn a bit of a puzzle, were forced to rest upon their laurels.

MACKMEN BEAT RED SOX.

Topple Them from Lead by 5 to 4 Victory—Perkins Bats in 3 Runs.

BOSTON, May 7.—Perkins's hits were timely and hard today, for Philadelphia against Boston, his triple in the fourth scoring two of his mates, and his single in the eighth accounting for another run. Philadelphia won, 5 to 4. Russell was hit hard in the first four innings, Karr replacing him. The visitors fielded brilliantly. The defeat sent the Red Sox from the top of the standing into second place.

SLUGGING SKEETERS WIN ANOTHER GAME

Make 16 Hits, Including 4 Doubles, and Beat Akron—Shields Gets 2 Homers.

Special to The New York Times.

AKRON, May 7.—Pitchers Finneran and Higgins of Akron were unable to check the bombardment of Jersey City batsmen and Bill Donovan's team scored an 11 to 5 victory here today. Neither of the Akron twirlers showed anything baffling to the Skeeters' sluggers who made 16 healthy wallops, including 4 doubles.

The victory was similar to that registered by Jersey on Thursday. In the first three innings they scored sufficient runs to win. Akron got to Wilhelm for 3 runs in the sixth, and for a time it looked as if the locals might even up the score, but Wilhelm disposed of the mighty Jim Thorpe at a crucial time.

Pete Shields of Akron made two home runs, scoring the rubber city's last two runs. Shield also hit a four circuit clout Thursday.

Jersey City scored twice in the first inning on Zitman's base on balls followed by singles by Bauman and Kane. Three more runs were scored in the second. Denoville singled, Stark sacrificed, Freitag walked and Wilhelm was safe on Thorpe's error. Mooers's single counted Denoville and Freitag. Wigglesworth's single scored Wilhelm.

Kane's single, Denoville's double and Webb's error on Stark's grounder scored Kane in the third. Finneran replaced Higgins at this stage. Jesey City batted around in the eighth, starting and ending with Mooers. Seven hits including two doubles and a stolen base produced five runs. Freitag was ousted by Warner in the seventh for disputing a strike.

BRAVES DEFEAT PHILLIES.

Two Homers, a Triple and Seven Doubles in Game Won by 8 to 6.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Although outbatted by Philadelphia today, Boston won its third straight victory of the series, 8 to 6. The game was featured by two home runs, a triple and seven doubles.

Powell followed up a sensational one-hand catch, robbing Stengel of a home run by driving the ball over the right-field fence himself a few minutes later.

HARRY SPARROW IS LOST TO BASEBALL

Business Manager of New York Yankees Passes Away After Three Years of Illness.

One of the best known and most popular figures in the baseball world and a man widely known in various other lines of sporting activity passed to the Great Beyond yesterday morning when Harry L. Sparrow, business manager of the New York American League Baseball Club, breathed his last. Sparrow retired at his usual hour Thursday night and death claimed him while asleep. He had been a sufferer for three years from indigestion and heart trouble and his health was further impaired during the past Winter from an attack of influenza and pneumonia at Jacksonville, Fla.

An energetic and tireless worker at everything which he undertook, Sparrow crowded much activity into his forty-five years of life. Even when ill-health took away a great part of his ruggedness Sparrow declined to lessen his labors, and his comparatively early death may be ascribed in part to his work in recent years. He insisted on being at his desk when he was not physically fit, and even the advice of his employers and closest friends to take a rest was repeatedly ignored.

When the New York American League Club was sold in 1915 by Frank J. Farrell to the present owners, Colonels Jacob Ruppert and T. L. Huston, Sparrow was recommended to them as business manager by John J. McGraw, who for years had been Sparrow's close associate and friend. The suggestion was accepted and the choice proved a wise one. From the day he took up his duties until he walked out of the office Thursday night to return no more, Sparrow gave the best of his unusual business ability, keen judgment and honesty to his work. He had much to do with the remarkable advance made by the Yankees during his years at the head of the club's business management.

Sparrow was more than a business manager in the ordinary sense of the term. He wielded an authority seldom invested in a person not a stockholder and his judgment decided many important dealings in which thousands were involved. He brought into baseball many progressive ideas and he was allowed by Colonels Ruppert and Huston to carry them out to the fullest. During the war, when Colonel Ruppert's business activities took up much of his time and Colonel Huston was in France, Sparrow took over a great part of the work usually done by the club owners and the success of his policies has been reflected in the strides made by the club.

Starred at Baseball and Football.

Harry Sparrow was born in Orange, N. J., forty-five years ago. Sports attracted him in boyhood, and while in his 'teens he starred at both baseball and football with the teams representing the Orange Field Club. His entry into the sporting life of the metropolis was about twenty-five years ago, at the Sheepshead Bay race track, where he was an employe of Harry M. Stevens. For years he was prominent among racing men until he gave up his work around the tracks to enter upon a publicity business with which he remained until he took up his duties with the Yankees.

A sunny disposition and a rare good humor attracted to him many friends, among them John McGraw. The two became almost inseparable pals, and for several years Sparrow made the Spring training trips with the Giants. When the Giants and White Sox started on their memorable trip around the worl in 1913, Sparrow agreed to serve as business manager, on the trip across the continent at McGraw's request. When the teams were about to embark at Vancouver for the journey across the Pacific, McGraw prevailed upon Sparrow to go along. Harry made the decision within an hour of sailing time, "went along with an extra collar," as he frequently expressed it, and, before the trip had really started in foreign countries he was in charge of the business end. It was his unusual ability displayed on that tour which resulted in his engagement with the Yankees a year later.

For many years Sparrow was a prominent and always welcome figure in the gay life of Broadway. He had a fine tenor voice, and laughed and sang his way through those times which the Broadwayite loves to recall. A sunny disposition stuck to him to the last, and officials of the New York Club were telling yesterday that his parting words when he left the office on Thursday night at 6 o'clock were as jovial as in the days when he enjoyed health at its best.

A Master of Details.

Once he assumed the duties of business manager of the Yankees, Sparrow went into the work with a seriousness that surprised his friends. The business details took up all his time without spoiling his good nature. Training trips, league meetings and numerous details connected with the club kept him busy most of the year. To say that no club in baseball was ever handled better from a business standpoint is not stretching the truth an iota.

Sparrow's illness in recent years dates back to the Southern trip of the Yankees in 1917. While touring Georgia with the Boston Braves the teams were compelled frequently to take food hurriedly and in small restaurants. Burdened with other duties, Sparrow hurried through a meal one evening, and two hours later collapsed at the railroad station in Albany, Ga., suffering from a severe attack of indigestion. He was taken to a hospital, where he remained for several days in a weakened condition. Since that time he never had been in robust health. He lost about fifty pounds, gray hairs appeared, and in his last three years he aged in appearance at least ten. During the last Winter he made a journey to Dover Hall, Ga., for h's health, and went to Jacksonville to prepare for the Yankees' training trip when his vacation was ended. Influenza claimed him, then came pneumonia, and for several days he hovered between life and death.

The sporting world generally and Broadway in particular will mourn the passing of Harry Sparrow. Baseball and the Yankees can ill afford to spare one so devoted to the national game.

WATERS'S PITCHING WINS FOR FORDHAM

Bronx Boxman Allows Boston College Only One Hit in 11 Innings—Score Is 2 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., May 7.—The Fordham College nine played great ball today, behind Fred Waters, Arthur Devlin's freshman pitcher, who allowed Boston College only one hit in an eleven-inning battle, which Fordham won, 2 to 0. Waters fanned nine men and only one runner reached second base for the home team during the engagement.

Fitzpatrick, Boston College's famous drop-kicker, struck out three men in a row when Fordham had two on base in the seventh, and for ten innings held his opponents down to five, scattered singles. In the eleventh, however, Fitzpatrick ticketed McLaughlin, who advanced on Buckley's sacrifice and took third on Halloran's out at first. Finn then produced a two-bagger to right, on which McLaughlin counted, and then Al Lefevre got a fine hit to left, on which Dempsey nearly made a wonderful running catch. Finn scored on this.

Waters's pitching was clean-cut and he was well handled by Cousineau.

Curves and Bingles

The flags at the Polo Ground were at half staff out of respect for the late Harry Sparrow, Secretary of the Yankees.

A few more games like that one and diplomatic relations between the inhabitants of the two boroughs will be severed.

Umpire Fyfe worked only a day, for Pete Harrison was back officiating with Umpire O'Day.

Clarence Mitchell was like the other pitcher who went to the well too often.

It doesn't matter how chilly the air is as long as the game was as hot as it was yesterday.

Jimmy Johnston did some back-up fielding at third base yesterday, and Fletcher and Doyle contributed gems to the fielding assortment.

Both managers used everybody within reach to win the game except the bat boys.

Wow, what a mob will be there today? The series now stands three victories each.

Rube Marquard was all primed to laugh at his old teammates again but the smile came off in the ninth.

LOFT'S ENTRIES AND WHITNEY TRIO ARE FAVORED BY EXPERTS IN TODAY'S KENTUCKY DERBY

WHITNEY AND LOFT ENTRIES FAVORED

Wildair, Upset, Damask, Donnacona and On Watch Quoted at 4 to 1 on Eve of Derby.

HEAVY TRACK IS CERTAIN

Wind Dries Course Somewhat, but Colder Weather Is Forecast—Record Throng at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—The forty-sixth renewal of the historic Kentucky Derby will be run here tomorrow afternoon before what promises to be the largest crowd that has ever gathered at Churchill Downs. There is every indication also that one of the finest contests ever witnessed in this turf classic will be provided, as twenty-two of the best three-year-olds in the country have been named as starters for the one-mile and a quarter test with $30,000 added and which will probably have a gross value of nearly $50,000.

It was certain tonight that the race would be run over a heavy track. The rain which fell early this morning fairly saturated the course. The wind has since dried it slightly, and if the sun comes out brightly tomorrow the track will be in somewhat better shape, but will still be heavy. The forecast is for clear and colder weather.

Of the twenty-two entries, two of which are fillies, the trio which will carry the colors of Harry Payne Whitney are tonight equal favorites with the pair which will represent George W. Loft. The Whitney colts, Wildair, Upset and Damask, and the Loft colts, Donnacona and On Watch, were last quoted at 4 to 1, with the Whitney entry slightly more in demand if for no other reason than that of greater numbers and the fact that Wildair at least is regarded as a good performer in the mud.

On the other hand, while Donnacona has been the choice right along of many shrewd horsemen it is not known just how well he will go over a heavy track. This Prince Palatine colt gave a very creditable exhibition this morning over the muddy track, and while his stable mate, On Watch, has been considered the better mud runner, it is quite possible that Donnacona will show to advantage over the track he will have to run on tomorrow.

Record Entry Named.

This is the largest field that has ever been named overnight for the Derby, but owing to the condition of the track it is probable that there will be a few scratches, reducing the number of starters to possibly seventeen or eighteen, ever to be sent away in the race.

The post positions were drawn tonight, and Herron, winner of the Cuban Derby, drew No. 1. Donnacona drew No. 8, Wildair 19, and the outside position went to Peace Pennant. This latter has been growing steadily in favor, and will probably have even greater support by the time he goes to the post, as he is partial to the heavy track.

The question of jockeys was settled today, with the exception of the boys to ride the Jefford entries. Max Hirsch, who trains the Loft horses, obtained Jockey W. J. O'Brien to ride Donnacona and N. Barrett will have the mount on On Watch. The latter has been riding On Watch in all his trials.

It is expected that the Derby will be witnessed tomorrow by fully 60,000 persons, which will set a record for attendance. Since yesterday special cars and the regular trains have been bringing hosts of visitors to see the race. Other trains with throngs of visitors are due early tomorrow. Harry Payne Whitney of New York arrived with two special cars which carried his friends from New York. Other specials have arrived from Baltimore, Chicago and New Orleans.

Grand Stand Is Enlarged.

The management at Churchill Downs has made elaborate preparations to care for the vast throng which will storm its gates. The grand stand has been extended more than 300 feet, which makes it twice as large as formerly. At the same time additional space has been made available on the lawns and when finally the inclosure has been filled it should afford a picture of a solid mass of humanity for a stretch of nearly a quarter of a mile along the rail and back in to the stands.

It is also certain that the greatest amount of money ever handled by the mutuel machines here will pass through the windows tomorrow. To take care of the speculatively inclined 405 pari-mutuel machines have been installed, which is nearly double the number ordinarily used, and a force of eighty-five cashiers will be on hand to attend to the long lines at the windows.

CAREFUL CAPTURES FIFTH RACE IN ROW

Strengthens Claim to Two-Year-Old Championship by Victory at Pimlico.

BALTIMORE, May 7.—Walter J. Salmon's fleet two-year-old filly Careful further strengthened her claim to the leadership of her division at Pimlico this afternoon by scoring her fifth straight victory in the featured purse event of the day, winning with the same ease that has characterized all her successes. Her stablemate, Step Lively, a débutante in the juvenile ranks, made it a double triumph for her owner's colors by taking the third event on the card.

Careful is one of the fastest breakers that has been seen in a long time, and today she was well on her way over the four-furlong jaunt before her two rivals, the only other starters, got going. Careful raced into a lead of six lengths. Kelsay eased her up at the end so that her margin over Dough Girl was five lengths at the finish. Our Kate was badly outrun and was last, twelve lengths back.

The Elkridge Club steeplechase was captured by Mrs. W. A. Prime's Guy Gaunt, which won handily from Blighty II. and Old Bill Bender. There were ten starters, but King Terry lost his rider and Earlocker fell at the eleventh fence.

COSTLY MARE FOALS TWINS.

Dual Birth Results from Mating of Harvester and Queen Worthy.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 7.—Twins were born to The Harvester and Queen Worthy at the Forest Park Stock Farm here today.

The Harvester is Paul Kuhn's $35,000 stallion. Queen Worthy is a $15,000 brood mare. Veterinaries say such dual births are rare.

Wins Preliminary Shoot in National Competition at Travers Island with 194.

David Wadsworth of Auburn, N. Y., won the preliminary shoot to the annual clay bird championship of America at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. The up-State nimrod led a field of 111 gunners, with a score of 194 out of a possible 200 targets. His individual strings were 20, 19, 18, 19, 20, 20, 18, 20, 20 and 20. The second high gunner was Fred Plum of Atlantic City, who finished with a card of 191.

Although Wadsworth had a comfortable lead, the shoot was exceedingly close until toward the end of the afternoon. At the end of the first 100, Stuart Wing, New York A. C.; P. Von Boeckman, Bergen Beach Gun Club; E. A. Staples, Boston A. A., and Plum were all tied with Wadsworth with cards of 96.

The "Maplewood 100" of the New York Athletic Club also was decided yesterday. It ended in a tie among G. S. Smith, Chicago; H. J. Pendergast, Phoenix, N. Y., and F. A. Siebert, New York A. C. Each had 97 out of a possible 100 targets. On the shootoff the Chicago gunner ran 25 straight and won the right to shoot in the final at Maplewood next July. Pendergast and Siebert tied for second again, each having 23.

The New York Athletic Club and the Boston A. A. had held a ten man team race during the afternoon, the Winged Foot gunners winning by 1,867 to 1,775 targets. Today they will contest the second leg of their five-man interclub championship shoot. The national championship, which also will be shot today, will start at 10 A. M. sharp, to allow all the gunners a chance to finish the full program. Yesterday the high-run prize was taken by H. J. Pendergast with a straight run of 87.

The scores of gunners turning in cards of over 180, together with the results of the team shoot, follow:

WHITE SOX REGAIN LEAD.

Gleason's Men Defeat Indians, 6 to 1, in Third Game of Series.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Chicago defeated Cleveland today in the third game of the series, 6 to 1, the game marking the sixth straight win of the season for Claude Williams. Ray Caldwell pitched effectively until the seventh, when Chicago scored four runs on four hits and two errors. Chicago had only three assists. The victory put the White Sox in first place in the American League race.

Mike Gibbons Challenges Wilson, the New Champion

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 7.—Mike Gibbons, middleweight pugilist, came out of retirement today with a challenge to Johnny Wilson of Boston, who last night wrested the middleweight championship from Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul. Gibbons seeks a match with Wilson for July 4, or after, in Minneapolis.

COLUMBIA SHELL IS SWAMPED ON RIVER

'Varsity Gets Ducking in Practice — Crews Ready for Races with Navy Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 7.—The boisterous northwester that has been kicking up the wild sea waves on the surface of the Severn for the last few days subsided early this morning, but was succeeded almost immediately by a violent breeze from the southwest that blew diagonally across the course. After having hampered both crews in their final practice spins this afternoon, the wind died down at 5 o'clock, leaving the river calm and the stage fully set for the clash between the 'Varsity, junior 'Varsity and freshman crews of Columbia and the Navy tomorrow.

One of the playful pranks of the southwest wind in the morning was an involuntary ducking for the Columbia 'Varsity eight. The New York crew braved the dangers of the deep at 10 o'clock and, after launching the shell from a Navy boathouse struck out for the course itself. While in the middle of a stretch of water formed by the cojunction of the Severn and College Creek, the Blue and White bow filled rapidly. Before Coach Jim Rice, who was following in a launch, could come to the rescue the angry waves had swept over the sides of the frail craft and overturned it. Eight oarsmen, not to mention the coxswain, were plunged into an icy bath which was concluded only when the coaching launch and a friendly fishing boat had picked up the inundated athletes.

The shell was righted and towed to shore by a launch. The 'Varsity oarsmen were none the worse for the experience, although it cut short the morning workout. The junior eight and the freshmen managed to survive the tempest, escaping with only a boatful of water.

By late afternoon, however, the wind had disappeared and the three New York crews took the water again.

The first race, the clash between the freshmen and plebe crews, will get under way at 4 o'clock or 5 o'clock New York time. The junior event and the final between the two 'Varsity eights will follow as quickly as the wind and tide will permit. If the warm, placid weather of this afternoon continues tomorrow there will be little delay between races. All three races will be for a mile and five-sixteenths.

The officials, as announced tonight, will be: Referee, Julian W. Curtis of New York; judges at finish, Lieut. Commander Rufus King, Naval Academy, and probably Morton Bogue, Columbia; time keepers, Commander Paul J. Dashiell, Naval Academy, and Charles H. Mapes, Columbia. The Columbia judge at the finish has not yet been definitely selected.

TITLE GAMES ON JUNE 13.

Glencoe A. C. Will Conduct Local Junior Meet at C. C. N. Y.

The Metropolitan A. A. U. junior outdoor track and field championships will be held under the auspices of the Glencoe A. C. at City College Stadium Sunday afternoon, June 13. This disposition of the annual athletc fixture was made last night at a meeting of the Junior Championship Committee. In its application the Glencoe A. C. disclosed a plan to donate all proceeds over and above expenses to the Olympic Games fund.

Applications were under consideration from three other sources. Stevens Field, Hoboken, N. J.; Macomb's Dam Park and the newly opened Bronx Athletic Field were considered as possible sites for the meet, but in view of the attractive location of the C. C. N. Y. stadium and the purpose back of the Glencoe A. C.'s plan for the meet the committee decided in favor of the Harlem organization.

Several changes were made in the program, which will consist of sixteen events, a decrease of one as compared with the card last year. The pole vault has been eliminated, and in the place of the two-mile walk and three-mile run events at corresponding distances, but measured according to the metric standard, have been substituted. The walking test will be at 3,000 meters, slightly less than two miles, while the running event will be at 5,000 meters, a little more than three miles. These changes were adopted at the suggestion of President Frederick W. Rubien of the local A. A. U. association, who is also secretary to the Armenian Olympic Committee. President Rubien seeks by this action to provide for the possible development of Olympic material from the ranks of juniors.

The lack of favorable facilities for the usually long drawn out pole vault event forced the officials to discard this. The competition ordinarily consumes a long period before a decision is reached, and in view of the expected heavy entry list, it was feared the event would interfere with other field tests.

Gus Leschner, who represented the Glencoe A. C. at the meeting, disclosed a plan to conduct the discus and javelin throwing events at noon on the day of the meet, so that these competitions would not interfere with the jumps or track tests. Officials of the Glencoe A. C. and C. C. N. Y. will co-operate in improving the condition of the stadium track, which is now in poor shape.

The schedule of events for junior titles follows:

100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, 5,000-meter run, 3,000-meter walk, 120-yard high hurdles race, 440-yard low hurdles race, putting 12-pound shot, running hop, step and jump, running broad jump, running high jump, throwing the discus and throwing the javelin.

KOLEHMAINEN UNATTACHED.

Veteran Finnish Runner Changes His Registration with A. A. U.

Hannes Kolehmainen, veteran Finnish runner, evidently is not thinking seriously of hanging up his running shoes yet. Kolehmainen yesterday transferred his A. A. U. registration from the Todd Shipyard A. A. to unattached and is training seriously for a prospective campaign in distance races during the outdoor season. The veteran Finn has been training quietly for several weeks and is reported in good condition.

Sandy Evans, a negro sprinter, was another who changed his registration yesterday. Evans was listed unattached with the local A. A. U., but has again affiliated with the Salem-Crescent A. C.

Seventh Regiment Tennis Plans.

The Seventh Regiment Tennis Club, at a special meeting held at the armory this week, voted unanimously to join the Metropolitan Association, taking part in the interclub team matches later in the Summer. A contest will be scheduled at Annapolis this month, and the annual match against the officers at West Point will take place as usual on Memorial Day. William Cunningham has been elected offical umpire of the club.

Harvard Beats Penn at Tennis.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 7.—Harvard College defeated the University of Pennsylvania in tennis today, 7 to 2.

NEW CHAMPION IS NATIVE NEW YORKER

Johnny Wilson, Conqueror of Mike O'Dowd, Was Born in This City 27 Years Ago.

When the news was flashed across the sporting world on Thursday night that Johnny Wilson had taken the middleweight crown from Mike O'Dowd followers of the sport outside of New England united in asking the question:

Who is Johnny Wilson?

Ring followers of Boston had no trouble identifying the new king of the middleweights as he had been active in boxing circles of the Hub for the last six years. Five of the six had failed to indicate that he was anything except a third or fourth rater. A year ago he stopped Young Ahearn, the one-time Brooklyn dancing master, but Ahearn had been on the decline for some time so that this event added only slightly to his prestige. However, it was the most notable performance of the boxer who today holds a title.

New Yorkers failed to identify him as one of their own, but that is the true story of Wilson. He was born on Second Avenue, near 106th Street, in this city, on March 23, 1893, and a few days later was baptized Giovanni Panica. The house in which the new champion first saw the light of day is next door to where Willie Jackson, contender for the lightweight crown, was born.

It was about seven years ago that Panica took up the boxing game. The sport was permitted in this State then under the Frawley law and Panica took part in several preliminary bouts. He took Johnny Wilson as his ring name, but never saw the name in head lines while a resident of New York. It was recalled yesterday that he once boxed Knockout Sweeney at the Harlem Sporting Club and received $11 for his work. His first manager was Sam Golden, a Harlem sportsman, but the two parted before Wilson left this city for Boston. Before leaving here Wilson lost to Young McGovern in a Philadelphia ring, but outpointed the Quaker City boxer in a return bout here three months later.

After going to Boston Wilson signed a contract to box under the management of Marty Kelleher, and the partnership still is in effect. Up to two years ago he boxed only infrequently, but during the last two years he has been fairly active in Bay State boxing circles. Among his victories are included decisions over Frank Carbone, Young Ahearn (twice), Augie Ratner, Tommy Robinson and George Robinson.

Wilson has made regular visits to his home in this city, and during a recent stay here he discussed a bout with O'Dowd. At the time he declared that he had seen the champion in action against Ted (Kid) Lewis and other boxers in Boston and was positive that he could outpoint the title holder. Three times last year Wilson signed for bouts with O'Dowd, but each was postponed.

The new champion is a left-hander, boxing with right hand and right foot extended, after the manner of Knockout Brown, Al McCoy and other boxers of the past. Of late years he has displayed a punching ability that was not apparent in his early days in the ring. He is said to be a bit more clever than the average southpaw, and his odd style is an asset, as few boxers can show at their best against one of this type.

Wilson can scale at 158 pounds, the middleweight figure, and he has shown enough ruggedness in his ring career to make it probable that none of the present crop of middleweights can take the title from him by a knockout. He has passed his twenty-seventh birthday and is therefore a bit late in becoming a champion.

GOLFERS IN ACTION TODAY.

Most of the Local Clubs Will Hold Inaugural Competitions.

With few exceptions, such as Baltusrol, which will delay its first tournament one more week, most of the metropolitan clubs have at last raised the bars and today will let the flood of players swarm over the courses for tournament competition. A few opened last week, and fewer still late in April, but at the majority of nearby links the greenkeepers won out in their verbal battles with club directors and obtained the extra time for putting the surfaces into first-class shape.

The Crantord Golf Club, which recently changed its name from the Union County Country Club, will hold a qualifying competition this afternoon for the annual May class prize. Eight will qualify in each class and prizes will go to the best scorers. Another Jersey club to swing into action today is the Moorestown Field Club, which will hold a handicap tournament against par. The best score against the regulation figures will win the cup. E. B. Leaming is the new Chairman of the Moorestown Golf Committee and his assistants are Dr. Emlen Stokes and Francis W. D'Olier.

Two events will call the Sleepy Hollow members to their clubhouse at Scarborough-on-Hudson today. The first round of match play for the Golf Committee cup will be contested, with all left-over tussles to be decided tomorrow. Today is also the time of the annual meeting of the Sleepy Hollow Country Club and the polls will be open from 3 to 4 o'clock for the election of nine Governors. George B. Francis is the present Secretary.

One of the golf novelties of the year will be held today at the Oakland Golf Club, Bayside, L. I. Jurists of a superior court will endeavor to show a pair of city magistrates that their ability on the links is commensurate with their legal responsibilities. As a result of a challenge hurled at one another at the Calumet Club the other night, Magistrates Joseph E. Corrigan and Charles N. Harris will meet today Chief Justice Frederic Kernochan and Associate Justice Joseph F. Moss of the Court of Special Sessions.

PRINCETON WINS AT GOLF.

Tigers Defeat Dartmouth on Roslyn Links by 6 to 3.

Dartmouth's sextet of college golfers finished their two-day invasion of the Metropolitan district yesterday by losing a team match with Princeton by 6 to 3, the same score by which Columbia defeated the Hanoverians on Thursday.

Yesterday's encounter was the first tournament competition of the Spring over the Engineers' Country Club course at Roslyn, L. I., and the young collegians pronounced the scene of the next national amateur championship in excellent shape. This course, regarded as one of the stiffest golf propositions in the United States, provided all the possibilities for high class playing, but the Tigers showed unmistakable superiority.

Led by J. Simpson Dean, Princeton showed much of the old form which won for it the intercollegiate team championship last Spring at Merion. Dean drew for an opponent Captain A. P. Boyd of Dartmouth and tucked him away in the singles match with surprising ease. The match ended on the eleventh hole with Dean 8 up and 7 to go. Richard A. Haight, who recently was promoted to a handicap of 5 on the Metropolitan list, also showed superiority over Rothchild, the No. 2 man on the Dartmouth team, and won by 5 5 and 4. Paired in the foursomes, Dean and Haight drubbed Boyd and Rothchild by 6 and 5.

The score of the singles and the summary follow:

PRINCETON.		DARTMOUTH.
Dean	1	Boyd	0
Haight	1	Rothchild	0
Douglas	1	Gunnison	0
Pulling	1	Ankenny	0
Middleton	0	Frost	1
Wintringer	0	Weatherbee	1
Total	4	Total	2

Twosomes.

Dean, Princeton, defeated Boyd, Dartmouth, 8 and 7; Haight, Princeton, defeated Rothchild, Dartmouth, 5 and 4; Douglas, Princeton, defeated Gunnison, Dartmouth, 1 up (19 holes); Pulling, Princeton, defeated Ankenny, Dartmouth, 4 and 3; Frost, Dartmouth, defeated Middleton, Princeton, 1 up; Weatherbee, Dartmouth, defeated Wintringer, Princeton, 3 and 2.

Foursomes.

Dean and Haight, Princeton, defeated Boyd and Rothchild, Dartmouth, 6 and 5; Douglas and Pulling, Princeton, defeated Gunnison and Ankenny, Dartmouth, 1 up (19 holes); Frost and Weatherbee, Dartmouth, defeated Middleton and Wintringer, Princeton, 4 and 2.

Gobert Called Foremost Stylist in Lawn Tennis

The "greatest stylist in lawn tennis today" is what English writers are calling A. H. Gobert, as a result, mainly, of the famous French player's recent victory in the world's covered court tennis championship in London. Gobert's feat in defeating such players as T. M. Mavrogordato, M. J. G. Ritchie and the 1919 champion, P. M. Davson, on successive days without the loss of a set, created a profound impression. One observer, comparing the Frenchman with previous holders of the title, who have included such world-renowned experts as H. S. Mahony, W. V. Eaves, A. W. Gore, H. L. Doherty and A. F. Wilding, declared that in all the years of the tournament he had never seen anything to excel Gobert's play. "The pace of it, the grace of it and the all-around attack were such as a lover of ball games does not often have the delight of watching. Gobert is a stylist with no superior at the present day. His service alone is enough to give the onlooker real pleasure. It combines elegance with effect and, in the pace produced with so little effort, ranks with the greatest athletic performances."

DEFEAT OF GARDNER MAKES TRIPLE TIE

STANDING IN METROPOLITAN POCKET TOURNEY.

Player.	W.	L.	H.R.	P.C.
C. E. Hurd	5	1	23	.833
G. Gardner	5	1	23	.833
H. Saltus	5	1	26	.833
C. Shongood, Jr	3	3	16	.500
A. Wickers	3	4	16	.429
H. Foss	2	5	15	.285
R. H. Jenkins	2	5	15	.285
M. C. Howard	1	6	13	.143

A three-handed tie was created last night in the pocket billiard tournament which is being played at the Broadway Billiard Academy for the metropolitan championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. Gus Gardner, who previously had won five straight games, was defeated by C. E. Hurd by a score of 100 to 54. As a result Hurd obtained a comparatively hollow are tied for the lead, each having won five games and lost one. Incidentally, each of these three has one more game to play. They will all be seen in action today and the title will either be won by Gardner or Saltus, or Gardner or Saltus will be tied for the championship with Hurd, in which case a play-off will be held on Monday night.

Hurd is scheduled to play Charles Shongood, Jr., this afternoon, and Gardner and Saltus will meet tonight. Should Hurd succeed in defeating Shongood, he is sure to figure in a play-off on Monday night against the winner of the Gardner-Saltus match. Should Hurd be beaten by Shongood then the winner of the Saltus-Gardner clash will be the new metropolitan champion.

The game last night was one of the most interesting that has been staged in the tournament. Not only was it interesting because it brought into action two players who both had chances to win the title but because it featured two players who are among the most capable of the amateur pocket billiardists in this section of the country.

Both players made high runs of 23. Gardner clicked off his cluster in the first, second and third frames, and Hurd got his in the eighth, ninth and tenth frames.

The score by frames:

C. E. Hurd—7 2 3 13 11 7 13 8 14 8 11 6. Total, 100; high run, 23; scratches, 2.

G. Gardner—7 12 11 1 3 7 1 6 0 6 3. Total, 54; high run, 23; scratches, 5.

GERBER DEFEATS RENAULD.

Scores Victory in Brooklyn Pocket Billiard Tournament.

Fred W. Gerber defeated J. Renauld in their match last night in the Brooklyn pocket billiard tournament at the Rational Recreation Academy. The score was 100 to 87, and the result was in doubt until the final ball was pocketed. After a rather poor start, Renauld finally found himself and played excellently until his last turn at the table. It was then that he fell down on an easy shot and gave Gerber a chance to win the game.

Gerber got the jump on his opponent in the early frames and soon accumulated a good lead. To such good purpose did he wield his cue during his early turns at the table that by the end of the fifth frame he was leading by a score of 53 to 17.

The score by frames:

F. W. Gerber—10 13 3 14 13 0 8 5 11 3 5 7 0 9. Total, 100; high run, 27; scratches, 4.

J. Renauld—4 1 11 0 1 14 4 9 3 11 9 7 13 1. Total, 87; high run, 15; scratches, 2.

Dartmouth Wins at the Nets.

BOSTON, May 7.—Dartmouth defeated Massachusetts Institute of Technology in tennis here today, 4 to 2. Dartmouth won three singles and a double.

VANITIE HAS FIRST TRIAL SPIN TODAY

Rapid Progress Made in Putting America's Cup Defense Candidate in Commission.

So rapidly has the work progressed of putting the America's Cup defense candidate, Vanitie, in commission that she will have her first trial spin off City Island today. Her centreboard was shipped yesterday and her mainsail will be bent this morning.

On board during the first trial spin will be George Nichols, who is in charge of the yacht, and Starling Burgess, her navigator.

Work on the Shamrock IV. is proceeding as rapidly as the combined forces of her crew and the yard hands at Jacobs' can progress and it is expected that she may be launched within the next week, after which it will not take long for her well-trained crew to make her ready for her first spin. It is expected, as a result of the changes being made to her stem and keel, as well as the possibility of her sail spread being cut down somewhat, that the time she will have to allow the defender may be cut down very materially.

This is the first time a cup challenger has been materially changed while in this country, and Charles Nicholson, her designer, is taking full advantage of his opportunity to embody such changes as he believes may give the odd-looking green craft one whit better chance to lift the coveted trophy.

RESOLUTE'S MAST STEPPED.

Sloop Will Be Given Builder's Test in Bristol Harbor Today.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., May 7.—The Resolute's mainmast with topmast combined in one stick was successfully stepped today at the Herreshoff boat shops. The craft had been launched only a week ago. So far advanced were the preparations of the yacht's racing rig that it was announced that a builder's test of the sloop with the new mast would be bade tomorrow afternoon in Bristol Harbor if the weather favors such an operation.

Although the mainmast has a considerable diameter, comparatively speaking, it is much lighter in weight than the old steel mast. A set of spreaders is stationed twenty feet below the eyes of the main shrouds.

Expert opinion has it that the new mast is the finest piece of workmanship ever turned out here.

123 TENNIS MEN ENTER.

First Open Tourney of Season Starts Today in Harlem.

With 123 tennis players entered, the first open singles tournament of the season, beginning at the Harlem Club this afternoon, promises to keep the clay courts at 136th Street and Eighth Avenue exceedingly busy for some days to come. Although the top-notchers of the game are absent from the draw this year, the event is a record-breaker for size and for the even distribution of talent throughout the brackets. In order to progress as far as possible today, Chairman Louis Bry of the Tournament Committee plans to start some of the matches at 1 o'clock, and play will be continuous all afternoon.

A challenge cup will be put in competition by the Harlem Club for the first time, to be won three times, not necessarily in succession, for permanent possession.

The complete draw follows:

Byes—Upper half: Paul Goold vs. W. Dickson Cunningham.

MORAN WINS BY KNOCKOUT.

Defeats Journee, a Frenchman, in Second Round at London.

LONDON, May 7.—Frank Moran of Pittsburgh tonight knocked out Paul Journee, a French heavyweight pugilist, in the second round of what was to have been a twenty-round bout. The fight took place in the Holborn Stadium.

Bombardier Wells on March 18 knocked out Journee, who once was a sparring partner of Georges Carpentier, in Albert Hall, London. The end came in the thirteenth round.

BAXTER WINS AT SQUASH.

Gains Crescent A. C. Title by Defeating Dingee in Straight Games.

Andrew W. Baxter, Jr., yesterday won the squash tennis championship of the Crescent Athletic Club on the new courts of its Brooklyn club house, defeating C. Westmore Dingee in the final round by scores of 15—4, 15—11, 15—6. He succeeds the veteran, Norman F. Torrance, as holder of the title, the former champion having been eliminated from the tournament in his first match by Harold Rowe. The latter was in turn defeated by Baxter in a three-game match, one of the closest in the entire event.

Yesterday's final was well fought, in spite of the straight-game decision. Dingee made some remarkable gets, and kept the ball going even when he lacked the aggressive shots to earn scores for himself. He was slow in getting started, but struck his stride in the second session, and kept on even terms with his opponent up to eleven-all.

SAYS COUNTRY PRESS FACE 'ANNIHILATION'

Head of American Press Association Asserts Half Will Not Survive Newsprint Costs.

CHARGES PLOT BY MILLS

Declares Market Has Been Cornered and That Production Is Regulated to Advance Prices.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Courtland Smith of New York, President of the American Press Association, told the Senate investigating committee today that unless there was immediate relief in the newsprint situation not half of the small country papers could survive. The country papers, he said, are forced to buy in the open market and are paying an average minimum of 17 cents a pound, while some even are paying as high as 22 cents.

Mr. Smith made the direct charge that the print paper market had been "cornered" and that the newsprint paper interests had conspired to regulate production so that prices might continue to mount. In the face of this situation, he declared, there was little hope for the small-town papers.

While other witnesses had charged that the market had been "cornered," Mr. Smith, whose association largely supplies the country press, was the first to allege a conspiracy to regulate output and price.

The long extended hearings were interrupted so that the committee might confer behind closed doors with Assistant Attorney General Ames, who was asked to recommend some way out of the troubles. Mr. Ames was asked especially to say what the Government might do toward reducing prices and what additional legislation was required.

A number of manufacturers, brokers and merchants were also heard by the committee in executive session relative to cost of production and profits.

In a general discussion of conditions Mr. Smith told the committee he thought there was as much profiteering in print paper as there was in other commodities, and that only the discovery of a substitute for wood pulp could break the spot market. He recommended an appropriation of $250,000 for pulp substitute experiments.

"The print paper situation is absolutely controlled by men who increase or decrease production according to the demand," Mr. Smith declared.

"Then you believe there is a conspiracy between the plants?" inquired Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon.

"I do," was the reply. "Many of these paper people admitted this and were fined several years ago."

Did Not Ask Palmer to Act.

Asked whether he had taken the matter up with the Attorney General, Mr. Smith said he had not, as he was aware that the Attorney General had not brought relief form high prices in other lines. He added that "the country press is of the opinion he never will."

Mr. Smith said that all newspapers were dependent on the paper interests, which "want to squeeze every penny out of them that is possible." He recommended abolition of the zone system of mail rates and also a reduction in postal rates on print paper so that small quantities of newsprint could be sent direct from the mills to the small publishers by parcel post. Under such an arrangement, he said, the small paper could establish paper mills and ship to all parts of the United States. This is impossible now, he added, because shipment by express is too costly and by freight too slow.

F. R. Moses, publisher of The Marshall (Mich.) Chronicle and representing twenty-one small dailies in Michigan, told the committee that half of those publications would be forced to suspend by Oct. 1 and all of them by Jan. 1 unless the situation were relieved. He said the papers could not buy paper for less than 14¾ cents a pound and that such a price was "confiscatory."

John A. Penton of Cleveland, who testified before the committee yesterday, presented proposals today to Postmaster General Burleson and the Federal Trade Commission for doubling the postal rate on class publications weighing more than a pound, and limiting daily papers to 24 pages, with 48 on Sunday.

The Federal Trade Commission's findings in its investigation of the newsprint paper situation were sent today to the Department of Justice. Chairman Murdock would not discuss the report further than to say he believed it embraced the details of a thorough examination by the commission's representatives. At the Department of Justice it was said the report was being studied with a view to taking such action as it warrants.

Would Limit Use of Lumber.

Arthur C. Hastings of M. G. Craig & Co., paper factors of New York, after testifying today on paper prices and manufacture before the Senate committee, said that if the use of lumber for billboards, mine props, shipping cases and railroad ties was eliminated the price of wood used in making paper pulp would be cut in half.

"Paper manufacturers," said Mr. Hastings, "greatly desire the appointment of publishers and manufacturers on the commission authorized by the Underwood resolution to take up the question of the trade in raw wood with the Canadian commission. If the present embargo on raw wood cut from crown lands in Quebec and Ontario is extended in Canada, we will have to depend more on the American supply, and the cost of paper will go further skyward.

"Few people realize how much paper is used by the newspapers of this country. Sixty thousand cords of wood are ground into pulp each year to keep THE NEW YORK TIMES supplied with paper. On the basis of ten cords to the acre, this means that 6,000 acres of timberland must be cleared each year to keep the presses of THE TIMES running."

NEWARK MAYOR ARRESTED.

Assault Is Charged by Reporter—Gillen Files Countercharge.

Mayor Charles P. Gillen of Newark was arrested yesterday on a charge of assaulting Peter J. O'Toole, Jr., a reporter for The Newark Evening News. The Mayor filed a countercharge of assault and O'Toole was arrested. Both were paroled for a hearing a week from today.

The charge and countercharge were the result of the Mayor's action Thursday in forcibly ejecting the reporter from an anteroom of the Mayor's office where the Board of School Estimate was holding a meeting. The reporter's glasses were knocked off and broken, his coat pulled over his head and his clothing disarranged. The Mayor lost a package of papers and his tie was pulled out of place. For almost a year a rule has been in force in the Mayor's office that reporters of The Evening News would not be permitted to enter.

New Fruit Liner Sails Today.

The United Fruit Company's new steamship Ulua will sail today for Havana, Colon and Port Limon, Costa Rica. To celebrate the event about 300 men prominent in marine and official circles were entertained at luncheon on the Ulua yesterday. The Ulua is a British built ship of 4,537 tons. She was fresh from her builder's yards when the Government took her for a troop ship. She has been completely refitted and has the distinction of having a bathroom with every stateroom.

FINES COMPANY $10,000 AS SUGAR PROFITEER

Judge Sentences Sharon (Pa.) Concern—$1,000 Fine Imposed on Buffalo Wholesaler.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, May 7.—The Shenamgo Valley Grocery Company of Sharon, Pa., was fined $10,000 by Federal Judge W. H. S. Thompson this afternoon in the United States District Court, when its officers, Frank Routman and Louis Sands, pleaded guilty to fifteen indictments charging violation of the Lever act.

It was the heaviest fine imposed in this district for such an offense, and is the maximum on one count. The case was worked up by special agents of the Department of Justice under R. B. Spencer, who charged that the company invoiced sugar at 10 cents a pound and then demanded and received from 2 to 6 cents a pound bonus from the purchasers.

Counsel for the defendants entered a plea of guilty on all counts. The Prosecutor appealed for the maximum sentence.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, May 7.—Stanley Lipowicz, proprietor of a large wholesale grocery, was fined $1,000 today by Judge John R. Hazel, in the Federal Court for the Western District of New York, for violating the Lever act.

He was found guilty of profiteering in sugar on evidence secured by officials under James B. Stafford, Federal Fair Price Commissioner for the State. It was charged that he bought 107,000 pounds of beet sugar in February at $11.65 per hundred and sold considerable of it as cane sugar at $17.25 per hundred. John Lebinski, sales manager for the Lipowicz Company, was also indicted on ten counts for aiding and abetting this violation. He pleaded not guilty.

State Deputy Price Commissioner Wilson traced the sugar from the Idaho Beet Sugar Company to the consumers, who paid 20 cents a pound for it.

C. M. WOOLLEY DECORATED.

Receives Cross of Legion of Honor for War Services.

Clarence M. Woolley, former Vice Chairman of the War Trade Board, received the Cross of the Legion of Honor from M. Maurice Casenave, French High Commissioner, at a dinner in his honor last night at the home of Eugene Meyer, Jr., director of the War Finance Corporation, 820 Fifth Avenue. The decoration was conferred in recognition of Mr. Woolley's services during the war. He is President of the American Radiator Company.

Among those who attended the dinner were Herbert Hoover, John D. Ryan and E. R. Stettinius, former Assistant Secretaries of War; Bernard M. Baruch, former Chairman of the War Industries Board; F. M. Peters, former counsel of the War Finance Corporation; Beaver White, former member of the War Trade Board, and F. W. McCutcheon.

M. Casenave in presenting the decoration recalled that the American Relief Committee was organized in the office of the American Radiator Company, in Paris, and that during the war the Allies received 20,000 shells a day from the company's factories.

GRABFELDER WILL FILED.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 7.—Carrying bequests of $100,000 to charitable institutions the will of the late Samuel Grabfelder, millionaire distiller and philanthropist, who died at his home, 134 State's Avenue here three weeks ago, has been admitted to probate in the office of Surrogate Abbot at Mays Landing. Although no estimate of the value of the estate was filed it is estimated to be worth between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000.

The will bequeaths $100,000 outright to his widow, Mrs. Delia Grabfelder, and creates a trust fund of $500,000, the income from which she is to receive. The residue of the estate is to be divided among his sister and a number of nieces and nephews. Among the charitable bequests are $50,000 to the National Hospital for Consumptives, Denver, Colo.; $10,000 for Jewish Hospital Association of Louisville, Ky.; $10,000 to the Cleveland Orphans Asylum, $10,000 to the Jewish Charities of Louisville, $2,000 to the Jewish Sheltering Home, Philadelphia.

NEW BLUEBEARD ACCUSER.

Sister of Man Hanged Says Watson Was Murderer.

CLEVELAND, May 7.—The ramifications of the Walter Andrew Watson case in California involving the alleged murder of five women the so-called Bluebeard claims to have married, extended to Cleveland today, involving the assertion by Mrs. Nellie Ackerman that Watson is the murderer of Mrs. Hattie McCloud, a widow, of Shelburne Falls, Mass., in 1898, for which her brother, Jack O'Neil, was convicted and hanged.

Mrs. Ackerman was a resident of Shelburne Falls until a few years ago. She charges that Watson lived there at the time of the murder of Mrs. McCloud and was then known as Newton Harvey.

She is planning to get in touch with Thomas Woolwine, Prosecutor of Los Angeles, and have Watson asked about the death of Mrs. McCloud.

LIFE TERM FOR STRANGLER.

Murderer of Michigan Girl Said He Fulfilled Her Wish.

PONTIAC, Mich., May 7.—A jury in court today found Anson Best, a Flint youth, guilty of the murder of Miss Vera Schneider, a telephone operator, whose body was found on the porch of an unoccupied house in a restricted residence district here on April 25.

Best was sentenced to life imprisonment at the Marquette Prison.

Best, according to the police, said that he strangled the girl at her own request when she told him she was tired of life.

Lawyer Pleads Guilty of Theft.

Ernest H. Ball, a lawyer, who said he lived at 161 West 136th Street, pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny, yesterday, in the King's County Court, before Judge Reuben Haskell. He had been indicted for grand larceny in diverting to his own use $200 received in settlement of a client's claim for injuries.

Brooklyn Man for Chautauqua.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., May 7.—William C. Bridgman, choirmaster of St. James's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, has been appointed choral director of the Chautauqua Institution, succeeding Alfred Hallam, it was announced here today.

Expect No Clothing Stoppage.

Manufacturing clothiers in close touch with the labor situation foresee no such difficulties as the industry faced last year at this time. While the union is reported engaged in drawing up a few demands, the local manufacturers are more strongly convinced every day that further increases are impossible under present conditions. While the public was willing to pay the bill and the manufacturers could even take a profit on the advances granted to labor, the situation was very favorable to the employes. Now that the public balks at prices and orders coming in are below normal, the clothiers do not believe the union will attempt the impossible and endeavor to force wage increases. Should such demands be made, however, the manufacturers feel at present that they could afford to close up their factories to their actual benefit.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday 7 to 7¼ per cent. for the best names
Thursday 7 to 7¼ per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Expert Shoppers Busy.

The shopping experts connected with the large store organizations are busier than they have been in a long time. Just as the wholesale salesmen could afford to "take things easy" while merchandise sold itself, so the shoppers had little to do when any price was the right price for a spendthrift public. Price slashing on a huge scale, however, now keeps these experts about as active as they ever have been. It would be incorrect, according to their reports, to describe many of the sales, and some large ones at that, as price slashing. Their investigations and comparisons are showing that many reductions are so in name only and represent merely an easy juggling of figures.

Silks Continue Dull.

The general working basis in the silk trade at the present time is to wait until the price of the raw material becomes stabilized. In the meantime, some effort is being put into the task of selling Fall silks, but without meeting a very active response from buyers. The latter are still interested in goods "at a price," and they are carrying this idea into merchandise required for future needs. Stocks of raw material carried in the local warehouses are showing some diminution, which fact, sellers believe, will remove one of the principal "bear" arguments. The part-time schedule of operation adopted by some of the mills has had, it is said, a wholesome effect on operatives in the direction of increased production. Some reductions have occurred on staple lines and others are expected to follow.

Ostrich Vogue Foreseen.

Those in close touch with fashion tendencies expect to see a vogue for ostrich develop for the coming Fall season. In connection with this it is said the large importers are preparing for a renewed interest in such goods. A different construction is placed on the printed reports of the London auction sales than would appear on the surface. The sales were small, according to some authorities, because they were mainly made for sampling purposes. It is explained, furthermore, that Paris was a small purchaser owing to the unfavorable rate of exchange and not because any fear by the French milliners over the prospects of ostrich. The sale, it was said, was originally planned for July.

Wary of Style Changes.

The best retail opinion favors delaying the purchase of Fall outer apparel until there is greater certainty regarding styles. The buyers, it is pointed out, have passed through too many regretful experiences in the past under conditions similar to those existing at the present time. In other words, there has been the tendency in the wholesale trade to introduce style changes as a sales stimulus when the demand lagged. In addition to this condition, buyers have expressed themselves willing to wait until the French style situation clears before doing any heavy buying. In the meantime, they hold themselves ready to pick up small quantities of merchandise "at a price" in order to keep their stocks filled.

Hard Coal Catching Up Slowly.

Hard coal production is recovering very slowly from the slump incidental to labor troubles on the railroads, Saward's Journal will say today. Numerous embargoes are still in effect and slow movement is the rule in all directions. The strike has left the roads in bad shape, and getting back to normal will be a matter of weeks under the most favorable conditions. So far as the local trade is concerned, a return to normal is out of the question until the harbor strike is ended. In general, the Journal will go on to say, the soft coal situation shows no signs of relaxing but, on the contrary, seems to be growing tighter than ever so far as mine shipments are concerned. Reports indicate no sustained improvement in the car supply on most roads.

Gray Goods Very Quiet.

Gray goods were very quiet in this market yesterday. Some "quick" Southern 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths sold at 25 cents, and a few sales of similar 38½-inch 60-48s were put through at 23 cents. June and July shipments of 5.50-yard sheetings were made at 17½ cents by second hands. Fine-yarn cloths continued listless, and the demand for the clothing styles was chiefly made conspicuous by its absence. Sellers were asking 40 cents for nearby 39-inch 64-104 4.20-yard sateens, with little success in getting it.

"Four Seasons" Not a Success.

At a meeting of the Millinery Chamber of Commerce yesterday the "Four Millinery Seasons" campaign which was started in the latter part of March and was the principal topic for discussion. Frederick Bode, President of the Chamber and Honorary Chairman of the "Four Seasons" Committee, who had charge of the campaign, said that the campaign was a failure owing partly to mistakes of those who had it in charge and partly to the inclement Spring and delays in transportation. "The money that we spent," said Mr. Bode, "might better have been spent in local advertising rather than a country-wide propaganda."

While the opinion expressed by Mr. Bode was concurred in by the majority of those present, it was agreed that the movement should go on and that it would finally be a success.

May Issue Second Edition.

So large has been the demand for the recently issued Fall color card of the United Waist League of America that a second edition may have to be got out. The call has come from practically every one who has anything to do with the materials which go into women's waists as well as from dyestuffs makers, chemical concerns, fashion publications, &c. Even manufacturing jewelers have sent in requests for cards, according to Executive Director M. Mosessohn, some of the inquiries stating that the jewelry makers want to adapt the bracelets they are designing for wear with short-sleeved waists to the colors which will be fashionable in these garments this Fall.

BUSINESS RECORDS

FAILURES OF THE WEEK—Bradstreet's reports 113 failures in the United States for the week, against 135 for the previous week, and 95, 211, 281 and 347 for the corresponding weeks 1919 to 1916. The New England States had 10; Middle, 37; Southern, 19; Western, 24; Far Western, 13, and Northwestern, 10. Canada had 13, against 6 for the previous week. In the United States about 82.3 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had $5,000 capital or less, and 15 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

IN TOWN.

SAMUEL MEISLER, salesman, residing at 864 Fox Street, formerly an officer of Chasanoff, Lowenthal & Meisler, Inc., manufacturing furriers, which is now in bankruptcy, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $32,438, of which $26,453 represents indorsements by petitioner on notes made by Chasanoff, Lowenthal & Meisler, Inc., and no assets. Among the creditors are George Lawyer, on judgment obtained May 17, 1918, for $4,145; Carl Dernberg & Son, $3,068; Pollack & Terker, $2,195; H. F. Wagner, $2,280, and Barney Harris, $1,000.

WILFORD C. LANE—Judge Hand has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Wilford C. Lane, lawyer, Hotel Cecil. The petition was filed by Lane Nov. 31, 1919.

CONFECTIONERS' SUPPLY LEAGUE—Judge Knox has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on April 23, 1920, against the Confectioners' Supply League, wholesale confectionery, at 169 Seventh Avenue. The corporation claims that it is solvent, but needs money to pay its debts, and has agreed to pay 100 per cent. to all creditors—10 per cent. within thirty days and balance by sale of merchandise.

SAVOIE FRENCH PASTRY SHOP, INC.—Judge Knox has appointed Thomas H. Matters receiver for Savoie French Pastry Shop, Inc., resturant and French pastry shop, at 51 and 53 East Fifty-ninth Street, in $500 bond, with orders to continue the business for ten days.

Out of Town.

ROCHESTER, May 7.—Fred Hallick has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $32,186.22 and assets $250.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Many of the Week's Changes Were in Those of Foodstuffs.

The price pendulum swung the other way in the commodities markets this week, according to Dun's list, with the result that 30 of the 55 revisions shown were upward. Last week, when there were 64 changes, only 26 were advances. A large proportion of the current week's fluctuations were confined to foodstuffs, the most interesting of which, from the consumer's point of view, were the declines that took place in several of the dairy products, principally butter.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

	This Week.	Last Week	Year Ago
Apples, com., bbl	$7.00	$6.00	$6.00
Beans., mar., c., 100lbs.	11.25	11.00	11.75
Butter, cream., ex., lb.	.59½	.67	.59½
Butter, St. D., c. to f.	.45	.50	.47
Cabbage, per bbl	2.50	3.00	4.50
Cheese, w. m., spl., lb.	.30½	.30½	.38½

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

The unsettled condition of flour prices featured the local provisions market during the week. Winter straights fell off 25 cents a barrel from the level reached by last week's advance, but a rise of 50 cents a barrel in Spring patents, in sympathy with the advance in wheat, brought it to the new high record price of $14.25 a barrel. A year ago this grade was quoted at $12.50. In the Chicago market live beef was nominally higher, and an actual advance took place in Middle Western lard. Live sheep and hogs, mess pork and short ribs all were unchanged.

The feature in the dairy products here was supplied by the sharp declines which took place in butter. The best creamery stock fell off 7½ cents a pound during the week, in addition to a decline of 9 cents a pound last week, which put it exactly at the corresponding 1919 level. State dairy butter dropped 5 cents a pound, and the best renovated stock declined 2 cents. Both of these grades are now lower than at this time last year.

Unusually sharp advances in common and fancy apples marked the week in the fresh fruits, but the dried fruits in the list were unchanged. In the vegetables choice Scotch peas were lower and the price of cabbage fell off 50 cents a barrel. Onions moved up $2 a bag to $5, against $1.50 in 1919. Choice marrow, choice pea and choice white kidney beans also went up. Formosa tea, fair, was lower, while No. 7 Rio coffee advanced. Raw sugar continued to rise, while fine granulated was nominally unchanged. In the spices a rise in nutmegs was offset by declines in black and white Singapore peppers.

A rise in wheat topped the changes in the grains list. It was accompanied by higher prices for corn, oats, rye and malting barley. Only one decline, which took place in raw linseed oil, city, was shown in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils this week. The advances numbered 10, and among them were rises in menthol, camphor, opium and bleaching powder. A drop in No. 1 country steers was the week's only change in the hides prices. The leather list was bare of changes. In the metals there were advances in aluminium and spelter and declines in antimony and tin. Platinum declined.

In the miscellaneous changes were a rise in hemp and a decline in tallow. Raw silks again had a bad week, and both Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers also declined. Burlaps eased off quite a little under the bearish effect of light trading and larger offerings. A similar effect and result were noted in the market for unfinished cotton goods, in which practically all constructions eased off during the week. Especially noticeable was the break in the so-called clothing styles.

The Reds Are Coming Strong.

The fashion world is seeing red these days, but not of the Bolshevist shade. The favored hue is the one known as "Palm Beach red," and from all indications it is coming strong. Red pumps, red hose, red dresses, red belts, red hats and red novelty handbags are all to be had here by the woman who wants them. The adoption of this particular shade of red by fashion gives the brunette maid and matron a chance to "get the bulge on" their blonde sisters, but at the same time the inability of the latter to wear it with any degree of success may, in the opinion of some buyers, militate against a general vogue for it. Most of the dresses seen here in the shade in question are of dotted swiss and similar sheer fabrics. Some of them are relieved by novel "white treatments," but many others are shown in the solid color, with white or pink underslips.

They Could Have Done It Before.

"One of the most amusing things to me about the way the public is now acting in its fight to reduce the high cost of living," said a well-posted retail dry goods man yesterday, "is the relation it bears to the sleeping Gulliver tied down by the Lilliputians. When Gulliver awoke, if I remember the story properly, he burst his bonds and went on. The public could have done the same thing long ago if it had not been asleep, and particularly was this true during the slump in the wholesale prices which followed the signing of the armistice. For that matter, the public could have prevented many of the high prices of the past few years if it had figuratively put its foot down in the beginning and had not let the newly-found prosperity of a portion of the population set the buying pace for the whole country. Furthermore, it was too easily gulled into paying high prices by 'scare stories' of shortages that either did not exist at the time, or which were artificially created."

Sluggish Dealings in Stocks Shows Decline of Speculative Interest—Grains Strong.

Speculative interest in stocks dwindled yesterday to the smallest proportions noted since the dull sessions late in March and a survey of the markets for real activity found little doing anywhere except in grain. Owing to light deliveries at primary points because of railroad transportation difficulties, both the future and spot grain markets displayed much strength. The question is being raised in quarters where the crop outlook is studied whether or not there can be much of a recession of prices even though late planting is pushed successfully, but the situation is overshadowed at the moment by the large supplies held in storage. It is likely that a closer relation exists between the security and grain markets than appears on the surface. Certainly credit is being made tight for industrial undertakings by the inability of potential grain shippers to get their product to market, and the retardation of planting by unfavorable weather is probably reacting upon traders in stocks who shape their long-range operations upon prospects of abundant or meager yields from the farms.

Industrial stocks were weak in some directions and heavy in others, the close of business finding quotations generally lower by fractions or one or two points. Short selling did not seem to play an important part in the day's dealings, but the demand was so light that moderate offerings easily depressed the steel, oil, motor and other classes of stocks. Railroad issues were inactive and failed to disclose any definite trend of either investment or speculative opinion, which was not surprising in the light of statements made before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce by local bankers. The insistence by all those who were heard on the absolute need for Government financial assistance to the carriers during the current period of investment and credit stringency was enough to emphasize strongly one vital phase of the railroad problem. Of hardly less importance was the statement that there was little hope of increasing to a substantial degree the supplies of new equipment this Summer, which necessitates greater economies in use of car space and in the handling of terminal facilities. This was another way of saying that the railroad strikes had acted to complicate a transportation situation previously brought into a difficult state by a lack of cars and their effective distribution.

Money continued easy in the local market, the call loan rate remaining at 7 per cent. Some fixed-period loans were made at 8½ per cent., but hardly to an extent large enough to denote a permanent easement of this sort of accommodation with securities as collateral. In view of the week's further liquidation of stocks, although on a scale less than the week before, today's bank statement ought to be favorable insofar as the New York banking field is concerned. It would not be surprising, however, if the Reserve Bank disclosed expansion of loans to institutions located in the interior.

Sterling exchange eased off, but there were no changes of importance in any of the European rates. Quotations on Far Eastern centres, however, declined sharply, continuing the recent trend, which has evidently reflected the downward progress of silver. The London price of the metal fell 2½ pence to 60 pence, with a break of 3¼ cents per ounce to $1.02¼ at New York. The demand from Asia for the metal has fallen to the minimum in recent weeks.

FINANCIERS FIGHT STOCK SALES TAX

SEE A BLOW AT BUSINESS

Imposition of Tax, It Is Held, Would Stop Investment of Capital in New Enterprises.

Representatives of the leading stock and commodity exchanges of the country gathered in the Governors' Room of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday afternoon to discuss means for combating the placing of a heavy tax on trading in securities and commodities. A tax of 2 cents on every $10 in transactions has been proposed in Washington as a means of raising funds for the soldier bonus. This was described as ruinous by all of the speakers, who predicted that it would be a blow at the financial structure of the country. The opinion expressed by the majority of those who addressed the gathering of some 200 persons, which included bankers and business men as well as those directly interested in the Exchange, was that a campaign of education should be undertaken to show just how iniquitous the proposed tax would be. A resolution offered by Colonel John W. Prentiss and adopted by the meeting provided that the representatives present should organize committees in their respective cities to take all proper measures for the instruction of the public in the consequences of the proposed legislation with a central committee composed of the chief executive officers of the Exchanges and Boards of Trade in the leading cities.

The resolution follows:

Resolved, That the proposed taxes upon the transfers of securities, and of cotton and of grain and of other commodities are inimicable to the interests of the nation, and

Be it further resolved, That representatives present at this meeting from each city of the United States shall organize committees in their respective cities to take all proper measures for the instruction of the public in the consequences to be apprehended from the proposed legislation.

Be it further resolved, That the chief executive officers of the exchanges and Boards of Trade in the following cities: Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Detroit, Hartford, Minneapolis, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Francisco and Washington shall constitute a central committee through which the committees organized in the several localities may co-ordinate their activities.

Financiers at the Meeting.

Among those present at the meeting were E. E. Thompson of the Washington Stock Exchange, Frederick W. Freeman of the Columbus Stock Exchange, W. E. Hutton, President of the Cincinnati Stock Exchange; Walter Monro, a member of the Brokers' Committee of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce; E. J. Foster, President of the Providence Stock Exchange; W. R. Conning, President of the Hartford Stock Exchange; Fred Countiss, former President of the Chicago Stock Exchange; J. H. Kummer, President, and C. W. L. Johnson, a Governor of the Baltimore Stock Exchange; Frederick H. Semple, President of the St. Louis Stock Exchange; S. J. White, Vice President of the New Orleans Stock Exchange; John D. Barbour, President of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange; James A. Emery, counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers; E. H. Kittredge, Secretary of the Boston Stock Exchange; Charles A. Otis of the Cleveland Stock Exchange, E. R. McCormick, Chairman of the New York Curb Market Association; W. S. Silkworth, President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York; Edward Flash, Jr., President of the New York Produce Exchange; Walter A. Neer, President of the Detroit Stock Exchange; Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company; John G. McHugh, Secretary of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, and Alfred E. Marling, former President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

William H. Remick, President of the New York Stock Exchange, showed that the proposed tax would range from $20 to $140 on the sale of 100 shares of stock; $40 on the sale of 100 bales of cotton at current quotations, and $5 on the sale of 1,000 bushels of wheat. The imposition of such a tax, he said, would produce little revenue in its final results and it would stop the investment of capital in new enterprises.

"I most firmly believe," he said, "that this tax threatens the very life of the security markets of the country. If they continue to exist it will be as places where occasional transactions take place, but as real markets, where a seller can always find a purchaser, and a purchaser can always find a seller, they will be at an end, and as I believe that real markets are essential to the prosperity of the country, I believe that anything that threatens the existence of the markets is a blow to the country's welfare."

Alfred Marling Protests.

Alfred E. Marling, who followed Mr. Remick, summed up the tax situation in terse language.

"Taxes in this country," he said, "have now reached the point where their influence is to stifle the incentive to save and put a premium on extravagance and prodigality. Now, we have real good authority for that; it is no less than Secretary Glass. This is what he says, speaking of the repeal of the excess profits tax: 'This tax encourages wasteful expenditure, puts a premium on overcapitalization and a penalty on brains, energy and enterprise, discourages new ventures and confirms old ventures in their monopolies.' Therefore I do not think I was extravagant in the statement that this tax from which we are now suffering tends to stifle and strangle business.

"The Government talks about saving and the Government prates about extravagance. Any doubt about that? You see them sending out their circulars, 'Save! Save! Save! Buy War Savings Stamps! Invest in Liberty Bonds!' and yet voting enormous sums of money.

"Now, what we want is more business and less taxation, not less business and more taxation; and that is what we are getting done now—less business and more taxation. I am glad you are waking up to it. I am awake to it, and I am hot on this subject. We want more business and less government. We want more business in government and less government in business. Just think of that.

"This bill should be vigorously opposed because it will curtail business, lessen private initiative, increase the cost of doing business, and will not produce the income expected. It is not fair. It has to be condemned because it is not producing what is expected of it, and it has to be condemned because it will finally fall on the man who wants to do business, and it will have a tendency for him to defer from so doing. On every count the thing is unjustifiable."

Sisson Denounces Fresh Taxes.

Francis H. Sisson in discussing the proposed taxation said in part:

"We have paid out as the cost of this war 35 per cent. of taxation, the largest proportion every paid in any war in the history of the world. That tax has been taken out of American business and we have reached the point of diminishing returns. If any further burdens are placed on American business they will be unable to bear the tax burden which the country needs to maintain the high cost of living at Washington, so that we can face this thing as business men. They are not going to get what they are after by the plan they are pursuing and I do not believe in the final analysis they will be able to pass such a plan, but whether they do or not it certainly is up to us to stop what we believe to be unjust.

"I am sure that the invitation has very definitely come from Washington that if the business men who see the danger will only voice their protest it will be heeded. The danger is that an organized minority may force its will on an unorganized majority and that should not be permitted to happen."

PIERCE OIL SHOWS SURPLUS

Current Assets of Corporation $20,333,680; Liabilities, $4,977,771.

The combined income and profit and loss account of the Pierce Oil Corporation and its subsidiary companies for 1919 shows a surplus, after charges and Federal taxes, amounting to $2,751,884. This was equivalent to $2.45 a share earned on the 879,138 shares of $25 par value common stock after allowances for preferred dividends. In the preceding year $3.77 a share was earned on the $19,184,849 capital stock then outstanding. The trading profit of the company was $4,308,445 last year as compared with $6,057,864 in 1918, while other income increased to $552,319 from $16,961. After depreciation, interest, Federal taxes and the like the surplus for 1919 was $2,751,884 as compared with $2,894,488 in the preceding year.

Current assets of the company on Dec. 31, 1919, were $20,333,680 and current liabilities were $4,977,771, making net working capital of more than $15,355,000. The debentures and 6 per cent. notes of the corporation have been paid in full so that it is now practically without a funded debt although half of its pipe line notes remain to be taken up as of the close of last year. Provision has been made to pay the remaining $250,000 pipe line notes off in July.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Bank Situation.

As usual, at the end of the week, there was a good deal of speculation yesterday as to what today's bank statements are likely to show. It was speculation, pure and simple, of course, for it is doubtful if any one, even among the most powerful bankers, could say with authority what changes would be reflected in today's displays. But in one particular there was what amounted to general agreement—that the local district still was extending a lot of help to other sections. It is possible, to be sure, that today's report at the Reserve Bank may show some contraction in the volume of rediscounts for other Reserve Banks, but even if it does, it will not necessarily follow that the district is not helping, for individual member banks and others are reported to have granted accommodation, and in no small degree, to their out-of-town correspondents.

The Money Market.

The call market again behaved itself in quiet, conservative fashion. The rate stood at 7 per cent. all day, and there was enough money to go around at all times. In the time money market an amount estimated at about $6,000,000 made its appearance and was placed, on sixty-day maturity, at 8½ per cent. This was the first substantial amount of time funds noted in some days and, naturally, was snapped up quickly. Money brokers say they would experience no difficulty whatever in placing a great deal more, at corresponding or even higher rates, if only it were to be had. There seems to be no fear on the part of borrowers that rates will come down within the near future; all that they are fearful of is that they will be unable to supply their requirements.

Cuban Funds.

Included in the volume of funds which now is available for stock market purposes is said to be a very fair amount of money belonging to Cuba. The island republic, reports have it, is very "high in cash," and its deposits are said to be well spread over many cities in the United States. Not all of this money goes into the stock market, furthermore, for a good deal of it is invested in bankers' acceptances and in securities.

⁂

The Bank of France.

The Bank of France seems to be having a particularly difficult time of it in getting its circulation down. From March 11 to April 1, a period of three weeks, the bank accomplished a contraction of 1,130,467,000 francs, thanks to the flotation of the French Victory loan, and there were brave hopes at that time that the contraction would go further. But since then the trend has been toward greater expansion, and this week, with a current gain of 561,745,000 francs, the contraction of the end of March virtually is wiped out. From the last low point of April 1 the expansion has amounted to 1,081,796,000 francs, of which 922,613,000 francs has come in the last two weeks.

Replogle Heavy.

Replogle Steel was reactionary in yesterday's trading. The decline amounted to 2⅝ points. There was no decided selling pressure, doubtless mainly for the fact that the shorts have had a full measure of trouble in Replogle. Covering has not been easy. Yesterday it appeared that long stock was coming on the market. The denial by Allan A. Ryan that he had any connection with the property probably contributed to this. There had been a glamour attaching to the Ryan stocks ever since the Stutz affair that invited speculative buying. Some appeared to think that another corner might be effected. This idea was dispelled, in so far as Mr. Ryan was concerned, two days ago and Replogle has ceased to display its wide swings.

Low-Priced Rails Firm.

Under the leadership of Texas & Pacific some of the low-priced railroad shares moved higher in yesterday's market with apparent ease. Sentiment regarding the rails as a whole has improved materially since the outlaw strike was broken. The carriers have indicated what the freight rate increases should be in the different classification districts, and railroad men themselves look more hopefully toward the future than for some time. The railroad shares were fairly well liquidated last Fall when it was extremely doubtful as to what the outcome would be, and underlying strength in the railroad group has been apparent when the industrial, oil and other groups have suffered in the breaks of the last few months. Constructive regulation is expected to come from the Interstate Commerce Commission with its new powers, and it is believed that necessary legislation to cover the railroad needs may be put through both Houses of Congress much more intelligently than has been the case in the past—with the exception of the present Transportation act.

No Allis-Chalmers Common Dividend.

Some disappointment was manifest in different quarters in the financial district when it was announced that the Board of Directors of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company took no dividend action on the common stock at their meeting. The stock, however, could not really be said to have reflected this, although it closed with a net loss of more than a point, as only a few hundred shares changed hands. In some quarters after the announcement was made the initial disappointment gave way to the prediction that favorable action might be expected when the board meets again next month.

Atlantic Gulf a Feature.

Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies shares were a feature throughout the day, and the issue, which before the present movement began early in the week following official announcement that the first oil from the company's Mexican properties was being loaded, became increasingly active. It closed for the day with a net gain of more than 2¼ points. Also the dispatches received in the financial district that Carranza was making his exit from turbulent Mexico may have had some effect on the premise that a new form of Government would allow for less restrictive Mexican legislation covering the foreign oil companies operating there. This undoubtedly aided in the advance of other Mexican oil stocks.

Rail Rate Increases Here and Abroad.

With the railroads of the country testifying before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce that there must be an average increase in freight rates of about 28 per cent. if a 6 per cent. return is to be earned by the carriers on their aggregate property investment a few of the rate increases abroad are of signal interest. The Railway Age presents the facts in regard to England, Italy, France, Austria, Belgium, Germany and South Africa as a contrast to what is being asked here. In England, says The Age, passenger rates were increased 50 per cent. during the war, while increases in freight rates ranging fromb 25 to 100 per cent. have been announced since the first of this year. In Italy there were increases of from 50 to 80 per cent. in passenger rates on top of an earlier increase of from 30 to 45 per cent. in freight and passenger rates. In France passenger and freight rates have been advanced between 30 and 40 per cent., with additional increases pending. Total increases in Austria have aggregated 330 per cent.; in Belgium 40 to 50 per cent.; in Germany from 700 to 800 per cent., and in South Africa 45 per cent. In the Netherlands the increase was shown to have been about 50 per cent.

TO RUN TRIAL SHIP ON NEW CUBAN LINE

Submarine Boat Corporation May Build Its Own Fleet for New Service.

WILL BRING BACK SUGAR

New Terminal Railroad Projected as Newark Bay Improvement in Great Port Scheme.

Henry R. Carse, head of the Submarine Boat Corporation, said yesterday that early next month a ship launched in the big Newark Bay Shipyard would sail for Cuba with a miscellaneous cargo. This first voyage will be an experiment, but if it is found that the ship can be operated at a fair profit, others carrying freight will be dispatched by the company through its new subsidiary, the Transmarine Corporation, which has just been incorporated with $1,000,000 capital.

"Newark Bay offers an opportunity for the development of a terminal port," said Mr. Carse. "At present the mean depth of water is 25 feet at high tide and 20 feet at low tide. The ships may leave our docks and steam to one of the oil company stations outside Newark Bay to take on fuel for the voyages.

"We have already spent a large sum in dredging, but the dredging is not difficult and the entire bay could be dredged to a depth of 31 feet at low water for $5,000,000 or $6,000,000.

"We do not intend to have the vessel return from Cuba in ballast. The movement of the Cuban sugar crop will provide several cargoes. Tonnage is badly needed on the Cuban route.

"The shipyard is situated on an accessible spot and the Atlantic Port Railway Corporation, which was organized yesterday in New Jersey as another of our subsidiary companies, will aid in facility of transit service. There is no reason why Newark Bay should not become one of the cheapest ports in the country."

Mr. Carse said that it would be possible to take freight at Newark Bay which had come all the way from Detroit by barge, and that it was possible that the company would construct the vessels which it will operate on such a route. This would be an advantage because the yard is one of the low-cost producers established by the Emergency Fleet Corporation, he said.

There will be no new financing by the company because of its new enterprise," concluded Mr. Carse. If the operation of ships proves successful the growth of the business will come out of earnings."

PALMER SCOUTS CHARGE OF ATTACK ON LABOR

Defends May Day Warning as Against Alien Reds—Confers with Keystone Democrats.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Attorney General Palmer, who was here today, said that his May Day warning against radical outrages could not be construed as an attack upon organized labor.

"It is absurd and preposterous," he declared, "but it is a curious fact that honest, 100 per cent. American labor should be put in the position of defending alien anarchists.

"Alien anarchists are the only people I am against. The alien anarchist is as much against organized labor as he is against the Government. When I say the alien anarchist stirs up strife, I make no reference to organized labor."

The Attorney General conferred here with Joseph F. Guffy of Pittsburgh, candidate for delegate at large to the San Francisco Convention, Bruce F. Sterling of Williamsport, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and other party leaders. He returned to Washington, while members of the State committee went to Harrisburg for a meeting.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Hayden, Stone & Co. have underwritten 190,000 shares of Livingston Petroleum Corporation of Delaware at $10 per share, which are to be offered for subscription to its stockholders. The corporation plans to absorb through the exchange of shares the present Livingston Oil Corporation of Delaware and the Livingston Refiners Corporation. Details of the plan are now being mailed to the stockholders of the latter companies.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Liberty Securities Corporation, all the directors were re-elected and Harrall S. Tenney, vice president of the corporation, was elected to the Board.

POST OFTEN CLASHED WITH CAMINETTI

Declares His Recommendations on Deporting Aliens Were at Odds with Evidence.

HE CRITICISES COMMITTEE

Says That in Only Two Cases Was Record Complete—Insists There Is a Paid Propaganda.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, testifying today before the House Rules Committee, declared that only forty of the hundreds of foreigners rounded up in raids by the Department of Justice in the last six months had admitted that they favored overthrow of the Government by violence.

Mr. Post appeared in his own behalf during examination of charges as to wholesale cancellations of warrants for the deportation of aliens. While he did not give the number of examinations, he said that "inmaking 5,000 arrest, Department of Justice agents found only three revolvers."

Besides declaring that he sought to follow the spirit of the law, Mr. Post said that he had not violated the letter of the law; that his every decision was made on evidence, and that legally only Secretary Wilson, or himself, was authorized to issue deportation warrants.

Recommendations of Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration, favoring deportation were unauthorized and unlawful, Mr. Post declared, adding that they "were often at variance with the evidence." The House Immigration Committee, he continued, had accepted Mr. Caminetti's decisions, and thereby "showed gross ignorance of the law," according to Mr. Post. He also declared that, of the mass of evidence presented at the investigation by the Immigration Committee, in only two cases was the complete record filed.

Mr. Post said that 263 deportations had been made among the 762 ordered during the last six months, and that lack of transportation to Russia was mainly responsible for delay. An early shipment to Odessa, he added, is planned.

Makes Charge of "Paid Propaganda."

Department of Justice agents have no legal right to examine aliens held for deportation, Mr. Post said, as that right is granted by law only to Immigration Inspectors.

Cancellation of deportation warrants was defined by the witness as "a verdict for the defendant."

Newspapers, Mr. Post charged, had not correctly informed the country of his actions, declaring that "outside" salaries paid to reporters caused them to make unfair statements.

Questioned by Chairman Campbell, the Assistant Secretary said he could "not prove a single case" of reporters being influenced in their articles regarding him.

Chairman Campbell remarked that he did not know reporters had sources of income other than from their papers, but Mr. Post said he thought this was "common knowledge."

Discussing his own action, Mr. Post declared that last March he changed the custom that had grown up in the department of permitting Mr. Caminetti to make recommendations, and that he went direct to the record to make the final decision himself. This, he argued, was the only legally authorized procedure.

At the time of the change, Mr. Post said, "scores and scores and scores" of cases had piled up in the Immigration Bureau, with the result that many aliens were being held in jail for months.

"The change was not made until political offenders were arrested," remarked Chairman Campbell.

"I understand your imputation," answered Mr. Post, adding that the House Immigration Committee, by its report in deportation cases, showed only a slight idea of the proceedings. As Assistant Secretary, he said, he had canceled hundreds of warrants for deportation on the recommendation of Mr. Caminetti and Immigration Inspectors.

6,351 Warrants in Six Months.

The total number of warrants issued against aliens from last Nov. 1 to April 24 was 6,351, Mr. Post said, adding that 370 members of the Union of Russian Workers and 455 members of the Communist Party had been ordered deported. The number of warrants canceled was placed at 1,293, including 61 Russian Workers and 1,232 Communists.

Only 263 aliens actually have been deported, Mr. Post told the committee, explaining that lack of shipping facilities had delayed removal of many Russians.

In considering proceedings against alleged members of the Communist Party the witness said he had not been keen to order their deportation unless proof of membership was clear. He also declared that he had tried to give the aliens a fair trial.

Mr. Post entered into a long review of the evidence in the case of Thomas Truss of Baltimore, an alien arrested as a member of the Communist Party, whose deportation warrant was canceled by the Assistant Secretary. He declared the evidence showed that Truss was a Socialist and was among those who quit that party because of a dispute among the members. Before formal organization of the Communist Party, Mr. Post said, Truss agreed to join it, but later withdrew the agreement after reading the party charter.

The Assistant Secretary explained that he reviewed Truss's case at length because his action in it had been freely criticised. He added that this case was typical of those in which he had canceled deportation warrants.

The committee adjourned for the day before the witness had completed his statement, and he will be heard again tomorrow.

Another "Best Week" in Dry Goods.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods has been considerably in excess of the corresponding week a year ago and of any previous year. Orders from salesmen on the road, both for immediate and future delivery, were also much ahead. There were somewhat fewer customers in the house. Collections continue satisfactory."

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Trade reviews in current surveys of business conditions find that the slowing down process increased during the past week. The long-continued buoyancy is less manifest and price reductions in wholesale and retail lines are making their appearance. Contraction of forward ordering is noticeable, and as a result curtailment of production has been forced in some lines.

R. G. Dun & Co. say in part:

"Added evidence of slackening of business activities appears in this week's dispatches, and abatement of demands from one cause or another is being more clearly reflected in a movement toward price deflation. The recent change of conditions, which is also manifesting itself in retail offerings of goods at price reductions, has partly resulted from weather and labor conditions, but is more largely the outcome of consumers' disinclination or inability to indefinitely meet the extreme prices, and to the growing practice of economy and retrenchment."

Bradstreet's says:

"A further tapering off of trade and industrial activities is reportable this week. Retail trade, especially in leading lines of wearing apparel, and collections, seem to be least favorably situated, ranking only about fair, while wholesale and jobbing trade is also quieter and there is a noticeable slowing of the pace in manufacturing and industry."

An Illustration of

Efficient Industrial Plant Management

AT the conclusion of the first year of business this House advertised in public press the broad principles on which it conducts its business.

The first principle was stated to be "major emphasis on the selection and character of the management."

The first original flotation of Lawrence Chamberlain & Company was a $1,000,000 8% Cumulative Convertible preferred stock issue.

Following is comparative statement of income under old and new management:

Old Management

1916—$227,488.34 1917—$232,129.84 1918—$446,424.54

New Management from April 15, 1919

Earnings under new management in 1919 (taking into consideration a shut down of the plant for three months owing to labor trouble) were, after taxes, at the rate per annum of $600,000.

Earnings for the first quarter of 1920 (before Federal Taxes) show an annual rate of $761,116, or $41.00 per share for common stock, into which the preferred stock is convertible.

Position of current account, March 31, 1920

Current Assets - - $1,200,000.00
Current Liabilities - - 138,199.00

WEATHER REPORTS DOMINATE COTTON

Prices Go Up 25 to 30 Points in Morning, but Break Nearly 100 in Afternoon.

OTHER FACTORS ARE FELT

Brokers Anticipate Tendency of Present Situation Will Bring Spots to Market.

The almost complete control the weather is exercising over the cotton market was illustrated yesterday. In the forenoon prices went up 25 to 30 points on reports of continuation of bad and wet weather in parts of the belt where hot and dry weather is needed. In the afternoon, when the bureau reported showers over Western and Northern Texas, where rains have been badly needed for some weeks, prices broke nearly 100 points from the early tops.

Other factors, however, are beginning to have weight with the big trade interests. There is the campaign against the high cost of living, for one thing, and the dawning realization that the forces of natural law are very likely to assert themselves in the near future on the side of the bears. The Federal Reserve Banks in the South have been displaying diminishing reserve ratios for several weeks past and private reports from bankers in the belt indicate that the credit situation there is far from what it should be.

It is expected that if this situation continues in the direction it has been going recently a lot of spot cotton will be brought to the market. Reports of resales of spots by New England mill interests are gaining substantiation, and brokers say there is a chance that prices for futures soon will begin to feel the pinch. Spots here were down 40 points yesterday to 41.10c for middling. This is lower than at any time since the middle of March, and compares with 43.25c reached on March 23 and again on April 16. The decline is not great, but there are conservative people in the trade who think it significant.

Yesterday's exports were the largest for any day of the week, amounting to 16,404 bales, all of which went to the Continent. For the full week the total was 71,477 bales, the smallest for any week this Spring. The exporters still adhere to the idea that they will improve next month, however, and are not greatly concerning themselves over present reductions.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

TO CONTEST SAYLES WILL.

Widow of Man Who Died Here Files Appeal at Pawtucket.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 7.—Mrs. Mary D. A. Sayles, whose husband, Frank A. Sayles, died recently in New York, today filed with the Pawtucket Probate Court a notice of appeal from the probate of her husband's will. She recites that on March 31, 1920, the court approved and admitted to probate "six written instruments, purporting to be the last will and testament of the said Frank A. Sayles." The notice of appeal was filed by Richard B. Comstock of Comstock & Canning of this city, counsel for Mrs. Sayles.

The will, filed March 15, bequeaths the homestead on East Avenue, Pawtucket, to the widow during her life, with an annuity of $50,000, which may be increased to $100,000. The principal part of the estate is given in trust to Charles O. Read, James R. MacColl and Kenneth F. Wood to pay the annuities. They are to pay to each of the testator's four daughters not exceeding $30,000 a year, up to the age of 25; not exceeding $40,000 a year between the ages of 25 and 30, and $50,000 a year between the ages of 30 and 35.

The appeal will probably come up for consideration next Wednesday.

NO SHIPPING BOARD GRANT.

House Refuses Appropriation—Revenue by Sales Continues.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Efforts to substitute a direct appropriation to the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation, for the present method of drawing against receipts from sales of properties, were defeated today in the House.

An amendment to the sundry civil bill, carrying a flat appropriation of $197,500,000 was voted down.

Representative Byrnes, Democrat, of Tennessee, urging adoption of the amendment, said the present policy might result in forced sale of ships at a sacrifice in prices.

Chairman Good of the Appropriations Committee replied that ships owned by the board ought to be sold now, when market conditions were favorable.

REPORTS TIRELESS WHEEL.

Belgian Claims to Have Eliminated Source of Automobile Troubles.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 7.—An automobile wheel to be used without pneumatic tires has been patented by a Belgian. The wheel is said to have all the elasticity of ordinary tires, even on the worst roads and is reported guaranteed to last three and a half years, only the outer band of rubber needing replacing and at a little cost.

The wheel consists mainly of alternate rings of rubber, aluminum and wood and does not weigh more than ordinary wheels. A large factory will be started within a few weeks in Belgium for the manufacture of wheels adapted to seven different makes of automobiles.

CONCERT TO AID HOSPITAL.

Benefit in Metropolitan Tonight for Post-Graduate Endowment.

It is expected by the Endowment Fund Committee of the Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital that the concert tonight in the Metropolitan Opera House will net the fund $10,000. This will increase the total to more than $1,250,000.

The artists who are giving their services are Mme. Helen Stanley, prima donna soprano; Guilio Crimi, the Metropolitan Opera tenor; Rudolph Ganz, pianist, and Sasha Culbertson, concert violinist. Mr. Grimi and Mme. Stanley will sing the Vogliatomi duet from "Madame Butterfly."

ASK COURT TO QUASH COAL INDICTMENTS

Counsel for 125 Miners and Operators Assert Findings Are Unconstitutional and Inoperative.

FAIL TO SHOW LAW BREACH

Judge Anderson Previously Had Denied Plea in Abatement—Simms Quizzed on Error.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—Motions to quash the indictment against 125 bituminous coal miners and operators of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania were filed in the Federal Court here this afternoon by Charles Evans Hughes, chief counsel for the indicted miners, and Samuel D. Miller and James A. Bingham, of counsel for the operators.

The motions attack the constitutionality of the sections of the Lever Food Control act on which the indictments are based, and assert that these sections are inoperative since they relate to the fuel industry.

Sections 4, 9 and 26 and the amendment to Section 4 of the Lever act, both the miners' counsel and the operators' lawyers asserted, are in contradiction to the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution, in that they deprive persons of their liberty and property without due process of law, and of the Sixth Amendment, in that they cause criminal prosecution without informing the accused persons of the nature of the charges against them.

The indictments are defective and insufficient, the motions assert, because they "purport to relate to a period during which the President of the United States, under Section 25 of the act of Congress of Aug. 10, 1917, exercised powers of regulation confided in him, and that during that period said statutory provisions of Sections 4, 9 and 26 were inoperative and were intended to be inoperative and the obligations and duties of those engaged in the bituminous coal industry were determined by rules made by the President under the authority conferred on him by Congress."

Each of the counts of the indictment, the motions assert, fails to charge an offense under any law of the United States, with the certainty required by law. The indictments were ambiguous, redundant, uncertain, vague and indefinite, it is declared. The motions in each case reiterated the plea in abatement which was overruled by Judge A. B. Anderson soon after noon.

The greater part of the session was taken up with arguments on the plea in abatement, which deal with the technical rights of trial Judges in their instructions to juries. Later Dan W. Simms, Special United States District Attorney, was placed on the witness stand and questioned by Mr. Hughes as to the manner in which the special Grand July that investigated the coal situation last Winter had been informed concerning the error regarding the statement attributed to John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America by a member of Congress. The motions to quash the indictments were then introduced and arguments were begun by Mr. Hughes.

The trial will be resumed tomorrow at 10 A. M.

R. L. MORAN SURRENDERS.

Accused of Diverting Trust Company Funds to Paramount Motors.

Investigation of the $98,000 defalcation in the Long Island City branch of the American Trust Company widened yesterday when Robert L. Moran of Great Neck, L. I., former assistant manager, surrendered to District Attorney Denis O'Leary and was held in $10,000 by Justice Edward Lazansky of the Supreme Court. Bail was furnished by John Hendrickson, a rifle shot, and Henry Muff, a North Beach hotel keeper.

Moran was charged specifically with having received a deposit of $17,500 belonging to St. John's Hospital and crediting it to the Paramount Motors Corporation, with offices at 265 West Sixty-fourth Street. According to the information obtained during the investigation, Moran was interested in that company, and District Attorney O'Leary stated that he had reason to believe that at least $40,000 of the trust company's money went to this corporation, which was organized a year ago.

During the day, William H. Eldridge, arrested on Thursday, appeared before Justice Lazansky and asked, through Dana Wallace, his attorney, for a reduction in his $25,000 bail. Justice Lazansky reduced the bail to $20,000, which was furnished by a surety company.

Arrest Priests as Thieves in Italy.

FLORENCE, Italy, May 6.—Two priests were arrested here today on the charge of having stolen a bust by Antonio Canova, the celebrated Italian sculptor, ; an altar by Luca della Robbia, the fifteenth century sculptor, and other art treasures from the Abbey of Arcevia. Copies of the original treasures were substituted by the thieves. The police have recovered the altar.

$200,000.
SCHOOL DISTRICT OF CITY OF WILLIAMSPORT, PA.
4¾ PER CENT. BONDS.

On May 19, 1920, at 4 P. M., in the Board Room of the Board of School Directors of the City of Williamsport, Pa., the Finance Committee of the said Board of School Directors will receive and open sealed proposals for the purchase of $200,000 of the 4¾ per cent. bonds of the School District of Williamsport, Pa.

Of the above:
$25,000 will be due and payable on June 1, 1925.
$31,000 will be due and payable on June 1, 1930.
$38,000 will be due and payable on June 1, 1935.
$48,000 will be due and payable on June 1, 1940.
$58,000 will be due and payable on June 1, 1945.

All of said bonds are of the denomination of $1,000.

All of said bonds will bear date June 1, 1920, and will be payable as to maturity as above stated, and bear interest to maturity at the rate of 4¾ per cent. per annum, free from all Pennsylvania State taxes (other than succession or inheritance tax), payable on the first day of June and December in each year.

The assessed valuation of the property of the said School District, as shown by the Loan Statement filed, is $21,101,190. The total bonded indebtedness of the School District, including the above issue of bonds, is $740,000.

All of the said bonds are issued for the purpose of the erection, construction and equipment of two new school buildings in the said School District; one on the Wayne Avenue site, Newberry, Pa.; the other to replace the Curtin School Building on Market Street, Williamsport, Pa., and this issue of bonds has been duly authorized by the voters of the School District of the City of Williamsport, Pa.

The opinions of Messrs. Reading & Allen, of Williamsport, Pa., and of Townsend, Elliott & Munson, of Philadelphia, Pa., as to the legality of this issue of bonds will be on file with the Board of School Directors of the School District of Williamsport.

The sealed envelope containing the proposal or proposals for the purchase of said bonds should be addressed to Ottis M. Keefer, Chairman of Finance Committee, Board of School Directors, 229 West Third Street, Williamsport, Pa.

It is expected that the bonds will be prepared and executed and ready for delivery on or about June 1, 1920.

The Board reserves the right to reject all proposals.

A certified check for two per cent. of the amount of the bid will be required from all bidders.

By order of the Board of School Directors of the School District of Williamsport, Pa.
OTTIS M. KEEFER,
Chairman of Finance Committee.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH STEEL COMPANY, UNION ARCADE BUILDING, PITTSBURGH, PENN.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a resolution of the Board of Directors, passed at their meeting held May 3rd, 1920, all Directors voting therefor, a meeting and election of the stockholders of the Company was ordered to be held at the office of the Company, 700 Union Arcade, Pittsburgh, Pa., on July 20th, 1920, commencing at 11 o'clock A. M., to vote for and against a proposed increase of the Capital Stock of the Company from $17,500,000, consisting of $10,500,000 of Preferred Stock and $7,000,000 of Common Stock, to $24,500,000, by the issue of 70,000 additional shares of Common Stock of the par value of $100 per share. No stock transferred after May 20th, 1920, will be entitled to vote at this meeting. In case lawful consent is given by the stockholders at such election to make such increase of Capital Stock, the vote of the stockholders will be taken at said meeting for and against the declaration and issue of said 70,000 shares of increased Common Stock as a stock dividend out of the accrued surplus profits of the Company to the holders of Common Stock, each holder of Common Stock to receive an additional share of such Common Stock, fully paid up to par or $100 for each share of such Common Stock held by him.

THEATRICAL MEN FIGHT BUILDING BAN

Quinn's Ordinance Would Create Monopoly and Raise Price of Tickets, They Say.

OPPOSE CURB ON PROJECTS

Edward Margolies Tells Committee He Has Contracts to Build Seven Theatres.

Opposition by theatrical managers to the ordinance introduced by Alderman William F. Quinn providing that no theatre or motion-picture theatre to provide for the erection of which dwellings, apartment houses or tenement houses have to be torn down shall be granted a license within the next five years was expressed yesterday at a hearing before the General Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen in the City Hall.

J. A. Driscoll, representing Sam H. Harris, opposed the ordinance and said that Mr. Harris had plans under way for the construction of a theatre in West Forty-fifth Street.

"If you stop this project the land will lie idle," he said. "If you pass the ordinance you will create a monopoly in the theatrical business.

"You will also increase the price of theatre tickets, for which there is now a greater demand than there is a supply. If you refuse to issue licenses for new theatres the prices of tickets are sure to go up."

Mr. Driscoll said he doubted if the ordinance was legal so far as existing contracts for the erection of new theatres are concerned. He said that Mr. Harris was only one of several managers who contemplated new theatre construction. Edward Margolies and Ralph Douglas, representing A. L. Erlanger, Charles B. Dillingham and Florenz Ziegfeld, also opposed the ordinance. Mr. Margolies stated that he had contracts to build seven theatres.

Alderman Quinn said he was willing to have the ordinance amended so that it would not apply to any existing building contracts. The committee will consider the matter later at an executive session.

Tenants Crowd Courtrooms.

Crowds of tenants and their friends crowded nearly every Municipal Court yesterday as the result of rent disputes. In the Sixth District Court, Eighty-eighth Street and Third Avenue, the crowd was so large that police reserves from the East Eighty-seventh Street station, in command of Sergeant Charles Baxter, had to be sent to preserve order among the jostling litigants. Justice Marks found about 450 litigants awaiting him and about a thousand other persons crowded in the courtroom. In the Eighth District Court, East 121st Street and Sylvan Place, more than one thousand were present.

The case of Mrs. May Ludwig, who lives in a house at 61 East 108th Street, owned by James Garvey, who sought possession of the apartment in order that he and his family might move in, aroused the sympathy of the Court. Justice Marks assured Mrs. Ludwig, who has her parents to care for, that she would receive ample time to move. Justice Marks dismissed the dispossess proceedings brought by Isadore Marmoor against Ida Taverina, 20 years old, who lives with her father at 323 East Sixty-second Street. Marmoor began the action when Miss Taverina deducted $3.50, which she had expended for repairs to the kitchen stove, from last month's rent.

Justice William A. Morris of the Second District Court, the Bronx, told Philip Becker, owner of the house at 2,141 Prospect Avenue, that if he wanted to increase rents more than 25 per cent. he must prove that the increase was not exorbitant.

"If you take that view, it is confiscation of my property," retorted Becker.

Justice Morris replied that he would send Becker to the county jail unless he apologized. Becker did apologize, but later made a second remark, objectionable to the Court, which caused Justice Morris to say:

"If you make one more disrespectful remark, it will be the county jail."

Justice Morris then decided that the tenants should continue another year at the same rent they paid for the year just ended.

Another dispute heard was one between tenants of 333 Brook Avenue and the landlord. The tenants testified that their rent had already been raised 100 per cent. and objected to additional increases of 20 and 40 per cent. Justice Morris advised a conference for the purpose of agreement and said that none of the tenants would be dispossessed without a period of grace.

Most of the Municipal Court Justices refused to sanction any rent increases of more than 25 per cent. Justice Genung of the Seventh District Court had one case where the rent was increased from $38 to $60 a month and fixed the rent at $47.

CALLS AMERICAN FOOD POOR

Duchess of Clermont-Tonnerre Says We Bolt Our Insipid Dishes.

PARIS, May 7.—American food, as served in restaurants in that country, did not favorably impress the Duchess of Clermont-Tonnerre, who visited the United States last Autumn and has written a book on her trip. Americans do not look on eating seriously enough, she indicates, and are trying to "simplify the performance." The only American foods that appear to have made an appeal to the Duchess were red bananas, California apples and oranges and "hams of Virginia."

"One must admit," she says in her book, "that food in America is not good. To a Frenchman, the word 'meal' cannot be applied to the bolting down of a club sandwich in five or six bites while standing before a luncheon bar. The necessity of eating seems to have become for Americans a sort of monotonous and obligatory annoyance, and they are bending all endeavors toward simplifying the performance."

The Duchess says "she is unable to comprehend why an American should require less time for his whole luncheon than one of her countrymen needs merely to scan the wine list," and continues:

"American butter is poor and American cheese cannot be eaten. American chickens are emaciated and scrawny, and one has the feeling that it is a cruelty to put a knife into them. All American dishes have passed through cold storage and are insipid."

CLOTHES' COST IN COURT.

Canadian Tribunal to Decide If Retailers Must Reduce Prices.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 7.—The Supreme Court of Canada was asked today to determine whether the Board of Commerce has power to order retail clothiers of Ottawa to sell their goods at a reasonable profit. The court has been asked to judge whether such an order, which has not been served on the clothiers, can be enforced through the machinery of the provincial civil courts.

W. N. Tilley, representing the Manufacturers' Association and other organizations, argued that the Canadian Parliament had no power to compel the disposition of property within a province for the benefit of the whole country or to prevent the holding of property for a rise in prices.

RAISES OWN FARE ON I. R. T.

Pittsburgher Sends $2.50 to "Cover Loss" on His Five-Cent Rides.

A check for $2.50 has been received by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company from P. B. Maloy of 714 Grandview Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., who explained in an accompanying letter that it was intended to cover the loss sustained by the company in carrying him about this city at a 5-cent fare. Mr. Maloy says he feels morally bound to make good the loss and furnish evidence of good-will. He likewise explains that during his visit here, which covered a period of three weeks in April, he became convinced that the rate of fare gives no adequate return for the capital invested.

Frank Hedley replied, thanking Mr. Maloy and agreeing that a 5-cent fare was insufficient.

Mr. Maloy's check was turned over to the Interborough's Sunshine Fund and will be used for the welfare of the employes.

ARMY TO SELL OVERALLS.

2,000,000 Suits in War Department Offer Announced by Upshaw.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Two million suits of overalls are to be sold immediately by the War Department, it was announced today by Representative Upshaw of Georgia, a proponent of the "wear overalls" movement.

Mr. Upshaw, in his announcement, denied that he and Senator Dial of South Carolina, another wearer of the blue denim, were "designing politicians attempting to boost the price of cotton."

"The slight rise in the price of overalls is offset by the fall in the prices of clothing," said he.

OPERATORS ACQUIRE $1,250,000 LOFTS

A TWELVE-STORY BUILDING

Textile-Supply Manufacturer Purchases $65,000 Walker Street Property for His Occupancy.

Speculative interest in business properties was evidenced yesterday on the sale of a $1,250,000 loft building in the old drygoods centre, which passed into the control of an operating company.

Winter Realties Inc., Benjamin Winter, President, purchased from the Thompson-Starrett Construction Company, Louis J. Horwitz, President, 692-4 Broadway to 384 to 388 Lafayette Street, being the southerly block front of Fourth Street from Broadway to Lafayette Street, a twelve-story store and loft building with three passenger and two freight elevators, on plot 45 feet 4 inches on Broadway, 275 feet on Fourth Street and 74 feet on Lafayette Street, containing an area of 15,400 square feet per floor. This building contains all modern fireproof appliances with 100 per cent. sprinklers.

It was erected in 1910 by the Thompson-Starrett Company in conjunction with the land owners, and was such a splendid investment that the Thompson-Starrett Company bought out the entire interests. This building is occupied by tenants such as Bachrach Sons Company, which occupies the Broadway store; Albert Robertson & Co., which occupies the Lafayette Street store; Cohen-Goldman & Co., clothing manufacturers, which occupies six and one-half floors; Coleman Tailoring Company, occupying two floors, and Harris Suspender Company.

The property was held at $1,250,000 and all leases expire February, 1921 and 192°. The brokers in the transaction were Leopold and Herbert Weil, Henry I. Cooper and M. Cohn & Co.

A Purchase for Occupancy.

Harry K. Grigg and Edward H. Peck resold the six-story loft building 25 Walker Street on a lot 25 by 106 feet.

The purchaser is James F. Hurley, who bought the property for Charles A. Johnson & Co., textile manufacturing supplies, now located at 55 and 57 Franklin Street.

The Charles F. Noyes Company, which negotiated the sale, also arranged the cancellation of leases in the building, and Charles A. Johnson & Co. will immediately make extensive improvements, occupying the major portion of the building and subletting the space they do not need.

The building is one of the best buildings of its type in the district, with electric elevator, steam heat and other improvements. The property was valued at $65,000 and was sold on a cash basis. This property, together with 24-26 White Street, was purchased by Peck & Griggs in February from Abram M. Clonney through the same brokers.

Other Business Deals.

Tankoos, Smith & Co. sold for Benjamin Endee to a client for improvement the property 691 Eleventh Avenue, 21 by 10, between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets.

William Cruikshank's Sons sold for the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, as trustee, to Thomaselli Brothers 590 and 592 Greenwich Street, a two-story building, 25.1 by 72.2.

William H. Whiting & Co. sold for the Gleason estate the five-story building 209 Water Street, on a plot 23.5 by 70.11, near Fulton Street.

The Charles F. Noyes Company leased for A. Augustus Healy to the Nicholas Power Company, Edward Earle, President, the ten-story Healy Building, at 88 to 90 Gold Street and 1 to 5 Ferry Street, for twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of about $1,200,000, including taxes and other charges. The leasing company is one of the largest manufacturers of moving picture apparatus in the country and already occupies six floors in the building.

Harlem Apartment Deal.

George W. Brettell sold for Searles Babbitt to Mrs. Bristol 100 East 123d Street, southeast corner of Park Avenue, a four-story flat, on a lot 20 by 100. The seller acquired the property through the same broker thirty years ago.

Brokers in Shubert Lease.

J. B. English and Albert B. Ashforth were the brokers in the lease of the southwest corner of Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street to Jacob J. Shubert.

NEW CO-OPERATIVE PLAN.

Hotel Wentworth to be Leased on Novel Basis.

The Calvin Operating Company, Hugo Nathan, President, has taken over from the Hotel Wentworth Company its lease on the Hotel Wentworth, at 59 to 61 West Forty-sixth Street, which has still fourteen years to run. The hotel is twelve stories in height, on a plot 50 by 100, and contains 132 rooms.

At the offices of the Calvin Company yesterday it was announced that a new plan of co-operative tenancy would be attempted. Apartments, to be chosen by subscribers, are to be sold to them for the full term of fourteen years from May 1, 1920, at a price equal to four times the annual rent at 1919 rates. That is, each subscriber to the plan will be entitled, on payment of four years' rent in installments, at 1919 rates, to occupy his apartment, fully furnished, with full hotel service and equipment for the next fourteen years, without any further rent or other charges except a monthly service charge of $10 per room.

Estate Sells Half Block.

Oscar D. & Herbert V. Dike sold for the estate of Lizzie M. Dike, deceased, Alice M. Dike, sole surviving executor, the one-half block front on Eighth Avenue, beginning at the southeast corner of 115th Street, and known as 2,120-2-4-6-8 Eighth Avenue, five five-story flats with stores, to a client who intends to improve and hold as an investment.

Plan Automobile Building.

The seven four-story buildings at 1,981 to 1,987 Broadway and 103 to 107 West Sixty-seventh Street have been leased for twenty-one years with two renewals by Adolph Picken as a site for a building to house the Hamilton Motors Company, controlled by him. He sold them last November to Charles L. Bernheimer, from whom he has secured a lease.

BUY HOSPITAL SITE.

West Side Dispensary to Rebuild Adjoining Property.

The West Side Dispensary and Hospital located at 328 West Forty-second Street has purchased the adjoining property at 326 as a site for a lying-in hospital.

The property which consists of a four-story apartment house on a lot 25 by 100 feet was sold by Mary Schaefer who has held title for a number of years. It was held at about $50,000.

According to Alfred Mentz, Superintendent of the Dispensary, who has been in charge for the past twenty years, the property just purchased will be rebuilt next Fall at a cost of between $50,000 and $100,000. The officers of the Dispensary which was established about thirty-five years ago is J. P. Cohen, President, and Barnark Karsch, Secretary.

DWELLING VALUES CONTINUE TO RISE

Broker Estimates Unusual Call for Space Has Advanced Prices 30 Per Cent.

DEMAND WELL MAINTAINED

Practically All Sections of the City Contribute to Sustained Buying Movement.

Private dwellings continue to be an active feature of the realty market and prices are climbing rapidly. One East Side real estate broker who has disposed of a large number of high class dwellings since the first of the year estimates that values of this class of real estate have increased between 25 and 30 per cent. during the past twelve months.

During the war dwellings went begging for tenants and many were foreclosed and sold at public auction for figures far under their assessed valuation.

Among yesterday's transactions was the sale by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum and Fisher & Irving I. Lewine of the four-story and basement house at 102 West Eighty-sixth Street, on lot 20 by 106.10, adjoining the southwest corner of Columbus Avenue. The buyer is an investor. The sellers acquired the property from Arthur Curtiss James. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers.

The four-story dwelling at 520 Madison Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Fifty-fourth Street, has been sold by Emily Childs. It occupies a lot 20 by 95, and had been held at $85,000. The new owners, it is said, will alter the property for business use.

Joseph P. Day sold for Mrs. A. Costello to Mrs. Mary Blasse the four-story and basement dwelling, 17.10 by 100, at 355 West Fifty-sixth Street.

James H. Cruikshank has resold 274 West 127th Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, 18 by 100, to Fanny Walsh. Harry Sugarman was the broker.

J. Treacy Farley of William J. Roome & Co. sold 141 East Fifty-sixth Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 19 by 100.5. The purchaser, J. Nelson Steele, Jr., will make extensive alterations and will occupy as his residence.

The Everett M. Seixas Company sold for Maurice V. Freund the three-story and basement dwelling, 219 East Forty-eighth Street, 12.8 by 100.5.

Alfred J. Rooney of the Wood, Dolson Company, Inc., sold for Charles Frehner the three-story and basement dwelling at 584 West 183d Street, 15 by 100, to the Richard J. McNally Post of the American Legion. After extensive alterations it will be occupied as a clubhouse.

Ennis & Sinnot sold 34 West Ninety-fifth Street, a three-story dwelling, 18 by 100, to Peter Reilly. James J. Etchingham was the broker.

The Rev. Dr. George H. Wallace sold the residence at 60 East Ninety-second Street to a client of William B. May & Co.

Mrs. Josephine Lang sold the dwelling 145 East Thirty-eighth Street.

The A. H. Corning estate sold 152 East 128th Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, 18.9 by 99.11.

Joseph P. Day sold for Ula Bruns and L. E. Fever the four-story residence, 16.8 by 102, at 51 West Eighty-second Street, to James Curran.

Realty Market Notes.

The Building Managers' and Owners' Association of New York will hold its last monthly evening dinner meeting of the season on Wednesday, May 12, 1920, at 6:30 P. M., at the Advertising Club, 47 East Twenty-fifth Street. Apartment house problems will be discussed, as well as other matters of vital interest to all. The apartment house committee will continue to hold the Friday luncheons at the Murray Hill Hotel.

The house reported as 38 West Ninth Street, sold by Pease & Elliman, for R. J. Hare Powel, was 38 West Ninety-seventh Street.

Albert B. Ashforth states that the buyer of 16 East Fiftieth Street is a client of his office and not Saks & Co., as recently reported.

On Staten Island.

Cornelius G. Kolff sold to Robert Magruder, President of the Johnson Shipbuilding Corporation, vacant plot 171 by 152, corner of Van Pelt Avenue and the tracks of the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railroad.

Moffatt & Schwab sold for Mrs. Margaret Van Derzee the large house and plot of land on the corner of Westervelt and Benziger Avenues, St. George, to Thomas H. Harper. Mr. Harper is to occupy the house at the expiration of the present lease.

Sales in Brooklyn.

B. J. Sforza sold for Luigi Colucci to Frank Faruolo, for occupancy, the two-story, two-family dwelling, with garage, on plot 25 by 100, at 1,331 71st Street.

Bulkley & Horton Co. sold 781 Prospect Place, between Nostrand and Rogers Avenues, two-family dwelling; lot 20 by 10; for Margaret Brechtlein to a client for occupancy.

F. C. Sauter Agency sold the three-story dwelling at 759 Union Street for C. E. McAndrews to Catherine Hill.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

Commissioner Whalen Adds to Downtown Office Space.

Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, has converted the third floor of the Whitehall Terminal of the Staten Island Ferries to office uses, and has secured tenants whose payments to the City aggregate $9,410.

The fourth floor, somewhat smaller in area, is to be similarly improved, making the total rent roll for the "head house" of the ferry terminal $15,000 a year. In order to make these floors available for office purposes, an iron stairway has been erected from the upper level of the ferry terminal to the "head house," in which partitions have been erected, subdividing the floors.

The rental secured averages $1.20 a square foot, which is believed to be a record price for "walk-up" offices. The third floor is sixty-six steps above the street level, and the fourth floor is eighty-two steps above the street level. The tenants on the third floor are the Sandy Hook Pilots Association, William F. Tribble, Compass Adjuster, The Stanwood Towing Company, The Frank E. Morse Co. (Lime and Cement), A. E. Post & Co. (Marine Insurance), Boera Bros. (Importers).

Leo Schloss leased for the Theodore Klein Construction Company, to the Perfect Body Corporation, H. F. Holbrook, President, a subsidiary of the Singer Motor Car Company, the one story building on Madison Avenue, between 130th to 137th Streets, covering an area of 40,000 square feet.

Spear & Co. leased the entire building at 412-414 Lafayette Street, containing 14,000 square feet to the Federal Motor Freight Corporation of Philadelphia.

Lewis L. Rosenthal Co. leased for a long term of years the entire building at 360 West 118th Street to Dr. Anna Bauerberg. Morris Taylor was associated as broker.

Charles B. Van Valen leased for Thomas B. Hall the five-story building, No. 118 Pearl Street, directly in front of the Hanover Square Elevated Station. The lessors are Robertson and Sons, shoe repairiers, who will remodel and occupy part of the building.

White-Goodman leased the building at 270 West Broadway to E. Mezzadri, Inc., importers and wholesale dealers in Italian groceries and olive oils. This lease is for a long term.

Long Island Deals.

Baker Crowell, Inc., sold the residence of Mrs. Ethel Wodehouse, near West Shore Road, Great Neck, L. I., comprising four acres, a residence, garage and barn, to Daniel H. Burdett of Manhattan.

John F. Scott sold for Mrs. J. H. Scanlan her house on Cedarhurst Avenue, Cedarhurst, to Albert D. Farwell. The property contains more than an acre of land, on which there is a residence and garage.

Walsh & Farrell sold for Louis Goldstein his residence and garage at Long Beach, to Charles A. de Saulles of Manhattan.

Leasing Big Apartments.

Negotiations are reported pending for the leasing of Hague Court, a seven-story apartment house at the southwest corner of Morningside Drive and 118th Street, on a plot 100 by 125. The property is owned by the Major Realty Company and the lease is for a long term of years. The house is close to Columbia University which has recently acquired several neighborhood apartment properties for use as dormitories.

Frieda Hart leased to Samuel Bernstein, for a term of years, at about $14,000 a year, the six-story apartment house at 1,025 Lexington Avenue, northeast corner of Seventy-third Street. Louis Block & Co. were the brokers.

Architects Will Build.

Severance & Van Alen, architects, leased for forty-two years the three four-story dwellings at the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Forty-first Street, 60 by 126, from Mrs. John W. Smyth. On the site they will erect next Fall a sixteen-story office building, part of which will be for their own occupancy. The firm is now housed at 111 East Fortieth Street. John Bannon was the broker.

Object to Bungalows.

An injunction was issued by Justice Fawcett in the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday restraining James A. McCarthy, of Belle Harbor, L. I., from erecting bungalows there. Belle Harbor residents have established certain building restrictions. Application for the injunction was made by the Misses Catherine and Matilda Ward of Belle Harbor. They were acting for residents.

NEW BRONX HOME

For Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Adolph G. Hupfel, Jr., Chairman of the Building Committee for the Bronx Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, has purchased the plot 96 by 134, at the southwest corner of Park Av. and 160th St. from the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, a subsidiary of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. Plans are being prepared for a 3-story building.

Other Bronx deals yesterday affected miscellaneous kinds of holdings. George Price sold for Victoria Bitterman the five story apartment No. 790 East 158th St.; also for Louis O. Van Doren the dwelling No. 297 Alexander Avenue; and for F. C. Winter the three family dwelling No. 667 Jefferson Place.

S. H. Frankenheim sold for the C. R. M. Realty Company, to William and Charlotte Buhler, the three-story dwelling at 439 East 141st Street, on lot 19 by 100.

Cahn & Cahn sold to Mary T. Colby, 301 East 206th Street, a two-family detached house on lot 25 by 100. Morton Green was the broker.

E. Osborne Smith, Inc., sold for Emma Dowe, the private dwelling at 1,011 Grand Concourse, to an investor.

Walter E. Brown sold for William Rankin, the vacant plot at the northeast corner of Grant Avenue and 165th Street, to a client for improvement with stores.

In Westchester County.

Mrs. C. M. Murdoch and Arthur S. Hawley sold for Daniel O'Connell his attractive property on Woodbine Avenue, near the Larchmont Yacht Club, to H. E. Brunner of Larchmont.

Fish & Marvin sold for the Pelham Manor Homes Company of Yonkers a Colonial house now under construction in Roosevelt Heights at Pelham Manor to Sydney M. Kodama of Pelham. The property was held at $30,000; also sold for Mrs. Lillian C. Anderson of New York City her house in Pelhamwood to William J. Moore. The property was held at $18,000.

Prince & Ripley were the brokers in the sale of the residence of Mrs. Edna B. Collins, at 40 Ridgeview Avenue, White Plains, N. Y., to a client; also for Wilbur S. Wright, his estate in the Belle Haven section of Greenwich, Conn., to Mrs. Kate Higginson of New York City.

Wilson's Point

Picture in your mind the most beautiful spot you have ever seen, with Long Island Sound at your front door, and you will have a little idea of Wilson's Point. The natural beauty of this large estate leaves little for man to do.

Wilson's Point offers you everything ideal for a shore front home:—Fine sandy bathing beach—safe anchorage for boats of all types—schools—churches—golf clubs—tennis courts readily accessible—fine automobile roads leading through the picturesque Connecticut country. Five minutes to the station and one hour to New York.

Careful restrictions to insure the permanence of a high class home place, surrounded with magnificent old forest trees and plenty of room for gardens, flowers, etc.

Wilson's Point is the last large estate with over a mile of water front, available for the man with the small farm idea and for those who want a shore front home—pre-development prices make it a most attractive purchase. Plottages will be from an acre up.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Pressure has fallen considerably in the extreme West and to a lesser extent east of the Mississippi River. It is highest over the west portions of the Dakotas and Nebraska.

There were showers in the Southern States, except the Carolinas, in the lower Ohio, the middle Mississippi and the lower Missouri valleys, the plains States, the central Rocky Mountain region and the Southwest States as far as New Mexico. Elsewhere the weather was generally fair.

Temperatures remain high west of the Rocky Mountains and moderately low in the South, while in the Northwest they have risen considerably.

Unsettled showery weather will continue Saturday and Sunday in the Southern States, while to the northward the weather will be generally fair.

Temperature changes will not be important.

FORECAST

Western New York—Generally fair Saturday, little change in temperature.

Eastern New York and Southern New England—Fair Saturday and Sunday.

Northern New England—Partly cloudy Saturday.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday, little change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

MARINE WORKERS CHARGE CONSPIRACY

Allege That Railroads Are in Agreement to Defeat the Eight Hour Day Rule.

BIG PAY TO STRIKEBREAKERS

As High as $1,000 a Month Given Tug Captains, They Tell I. C. C. Members.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Representatives of the striking harbor workers at New York charged before the Interstate Commerce Commission today that railroad companies operating lighterage and ferry service in New York Harbor had entered into a conspiracy to evade the eight-hour law and were paying strikebreakers extra large wages in order to down the unions. The commission was asked to interpose in the situation.

Interstate Commerce Commissioners Meyer, Aitchison and Eastman received the delegation, which was introduced by Congressman John J. Eagan of Weehawken, N. J. The delegation consisted of Thomas B. Healey, President, and Captain William A. Maher, Vice President and Secretary of the Marine Workers' Affiliation of the Port of New York, with William Boyce, Albert Harvey, Captain Abel Day, Captain Grant Campbell and Bert Todd of the Ocean Association of Engineers.

Captain Maher asserted that the railroad companies had conspired to transfer ownership of their harbor craft to independent companies beyond the jurisdiction of the Intrestate Commerce Commission, with the object of evading the eight-hour law and to profiteer on shippers and the public.

It was pointed out in the course of the hearing that the situation in New York Harbor was interfering with foreign and domestic commerce, and causing a grave freight shortage throughout the country. Affidavits were submitted to support the charge.

Charges "Dummy" Transfers.

Captain Mayer charged that the Erie Railroad Company transferred seven tugboats, operated under the agreement guaranteeing the eight-hour day to crews, to the Phoenix Transit Company, a new independent concern. The President of the Phoenix concern, he said, was Charles R. Stewart, formerly Marine Superintendent for the Erie Railroad Company, who was appointed consulting engineer of the company on March 1 by President Underwood. Upon the transfer of the boats, Captain Mayer charged, the eight-hour agreement was annulled and orders given to operate the boats on the twelve-hour schedule.

"This strike was made general because of threats by railroad marine managers that return of the roads to private ownership meant the end of the eight-hour day, for which we have struggled for years, Mayer said.

"The public should be vitally interested in the sale of these boats, aside from the interference with traffic it entails. The railroad companies are restricted to a lighterage charge of 60 cents a ton by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Transfer of the boats to dummy companies permits owners of the boats to gouge shippers for rates as high as $4.50 and $5 a ton. Such charges are now being made.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission is directly interested in the question, inasmuch as the costs of operation are running into millions of dollars more as a result of the strike than ordinarily they would be. Strikebreakers are being employed at fabulous salaries, hundreds of armed guards are on the payrolls as high as $15 a day, and thousands of dollars a day are being spent in the operation of automobiles to convey strikebreakers to and from their work, to say nothing of thousands being spent for food, clothing, cigars and other perquisites to the strikebreakers."

Affidavits were submitted to show that strikebreaking engineers are being employed for $1,000 and more a month. Frank F. Durkin, member of the United Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots No. 1, made affidavit that he answered an advertisement for tug Captains at $25 a day of eight hours and time and a half for overtime; that he was employed by Kelly's Detective Agency, 131 West Thirty-ninth Street, New York, and put to work on the tug Intrepid by J. H. Kirkpatrick, Superintendent at the Eastern District Terminal, Brooklyn; that he worked eleven hours and was paid $39.04, and that this rate, for twelve hours a day, twenty-six days a month, would total $1,162.72. In addition he swore that the company offered board and lodging, underwear, shoes and tobacco.

According to the delegation, the rate for Captains when the strike began, on April 1, was $7.28 for a day of eight hours.

Captain J. E. Barby made affidavit he was hired as tugboat Captain by the New York Central Railroad at $15 per day of eight hours, with board, lodging, cigars and tobacco. He had armed guards at all times and an automobile when on land, he said, and one armed guard, if he requested it, to sleep in his home each night. According to the affidavit he worked from April 16 to April 22 as an employe of the detective agency, and from the 23d to the 27th, inclusive, for the New York Central, a total of 121 hours, and received $256.62, or at that rate of $557.88 per month of twenty-six days of eight hours each, exclusive of the board, lodging, clothing, tobacco, guards, automobiles which were furnished him.

Frank J. Kennedy, member Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association No. 33, New York, declared in an affidavit that he was offered $12 a day as an engineer by Cohen's Detective Agency, 137 West Thirty-third Street, New York, and would be furnished with board and lodging, with privilege of sleeping in a Pullman car in the railroad yards.

Kennedy also swore that at the United States Government Employment Agency, Cooper Square, New York, he applied for work, was directed to a back room, talked with a Mr. McBride and a Mr. Pollock, and was sent to the offices of companies hiring men to break the harbor strike. As a result of this, he said, he was offered by Harry L. Joyce, Marine Manager, Jersey Central Railroad, $12 per day as a strikebreaker.

The Commissioners took the charges under advisement.

Secretary Seward's Grand Nephew.

George O. Seward, whose name appeared in The Times on Wednesday, in connection with a divorce decree granted his wife, Helen C., by Vice Chancellor Backes, of Newark, is not a grandson of William H. Seward, Secretary of State under President Lincoln, as mentioned in the account of the case. He is a grand nephew, being a descendant of a brother of the Secretary of State. Lawyers in the case gave the information that he was a grandson, but relatives corrected the error.

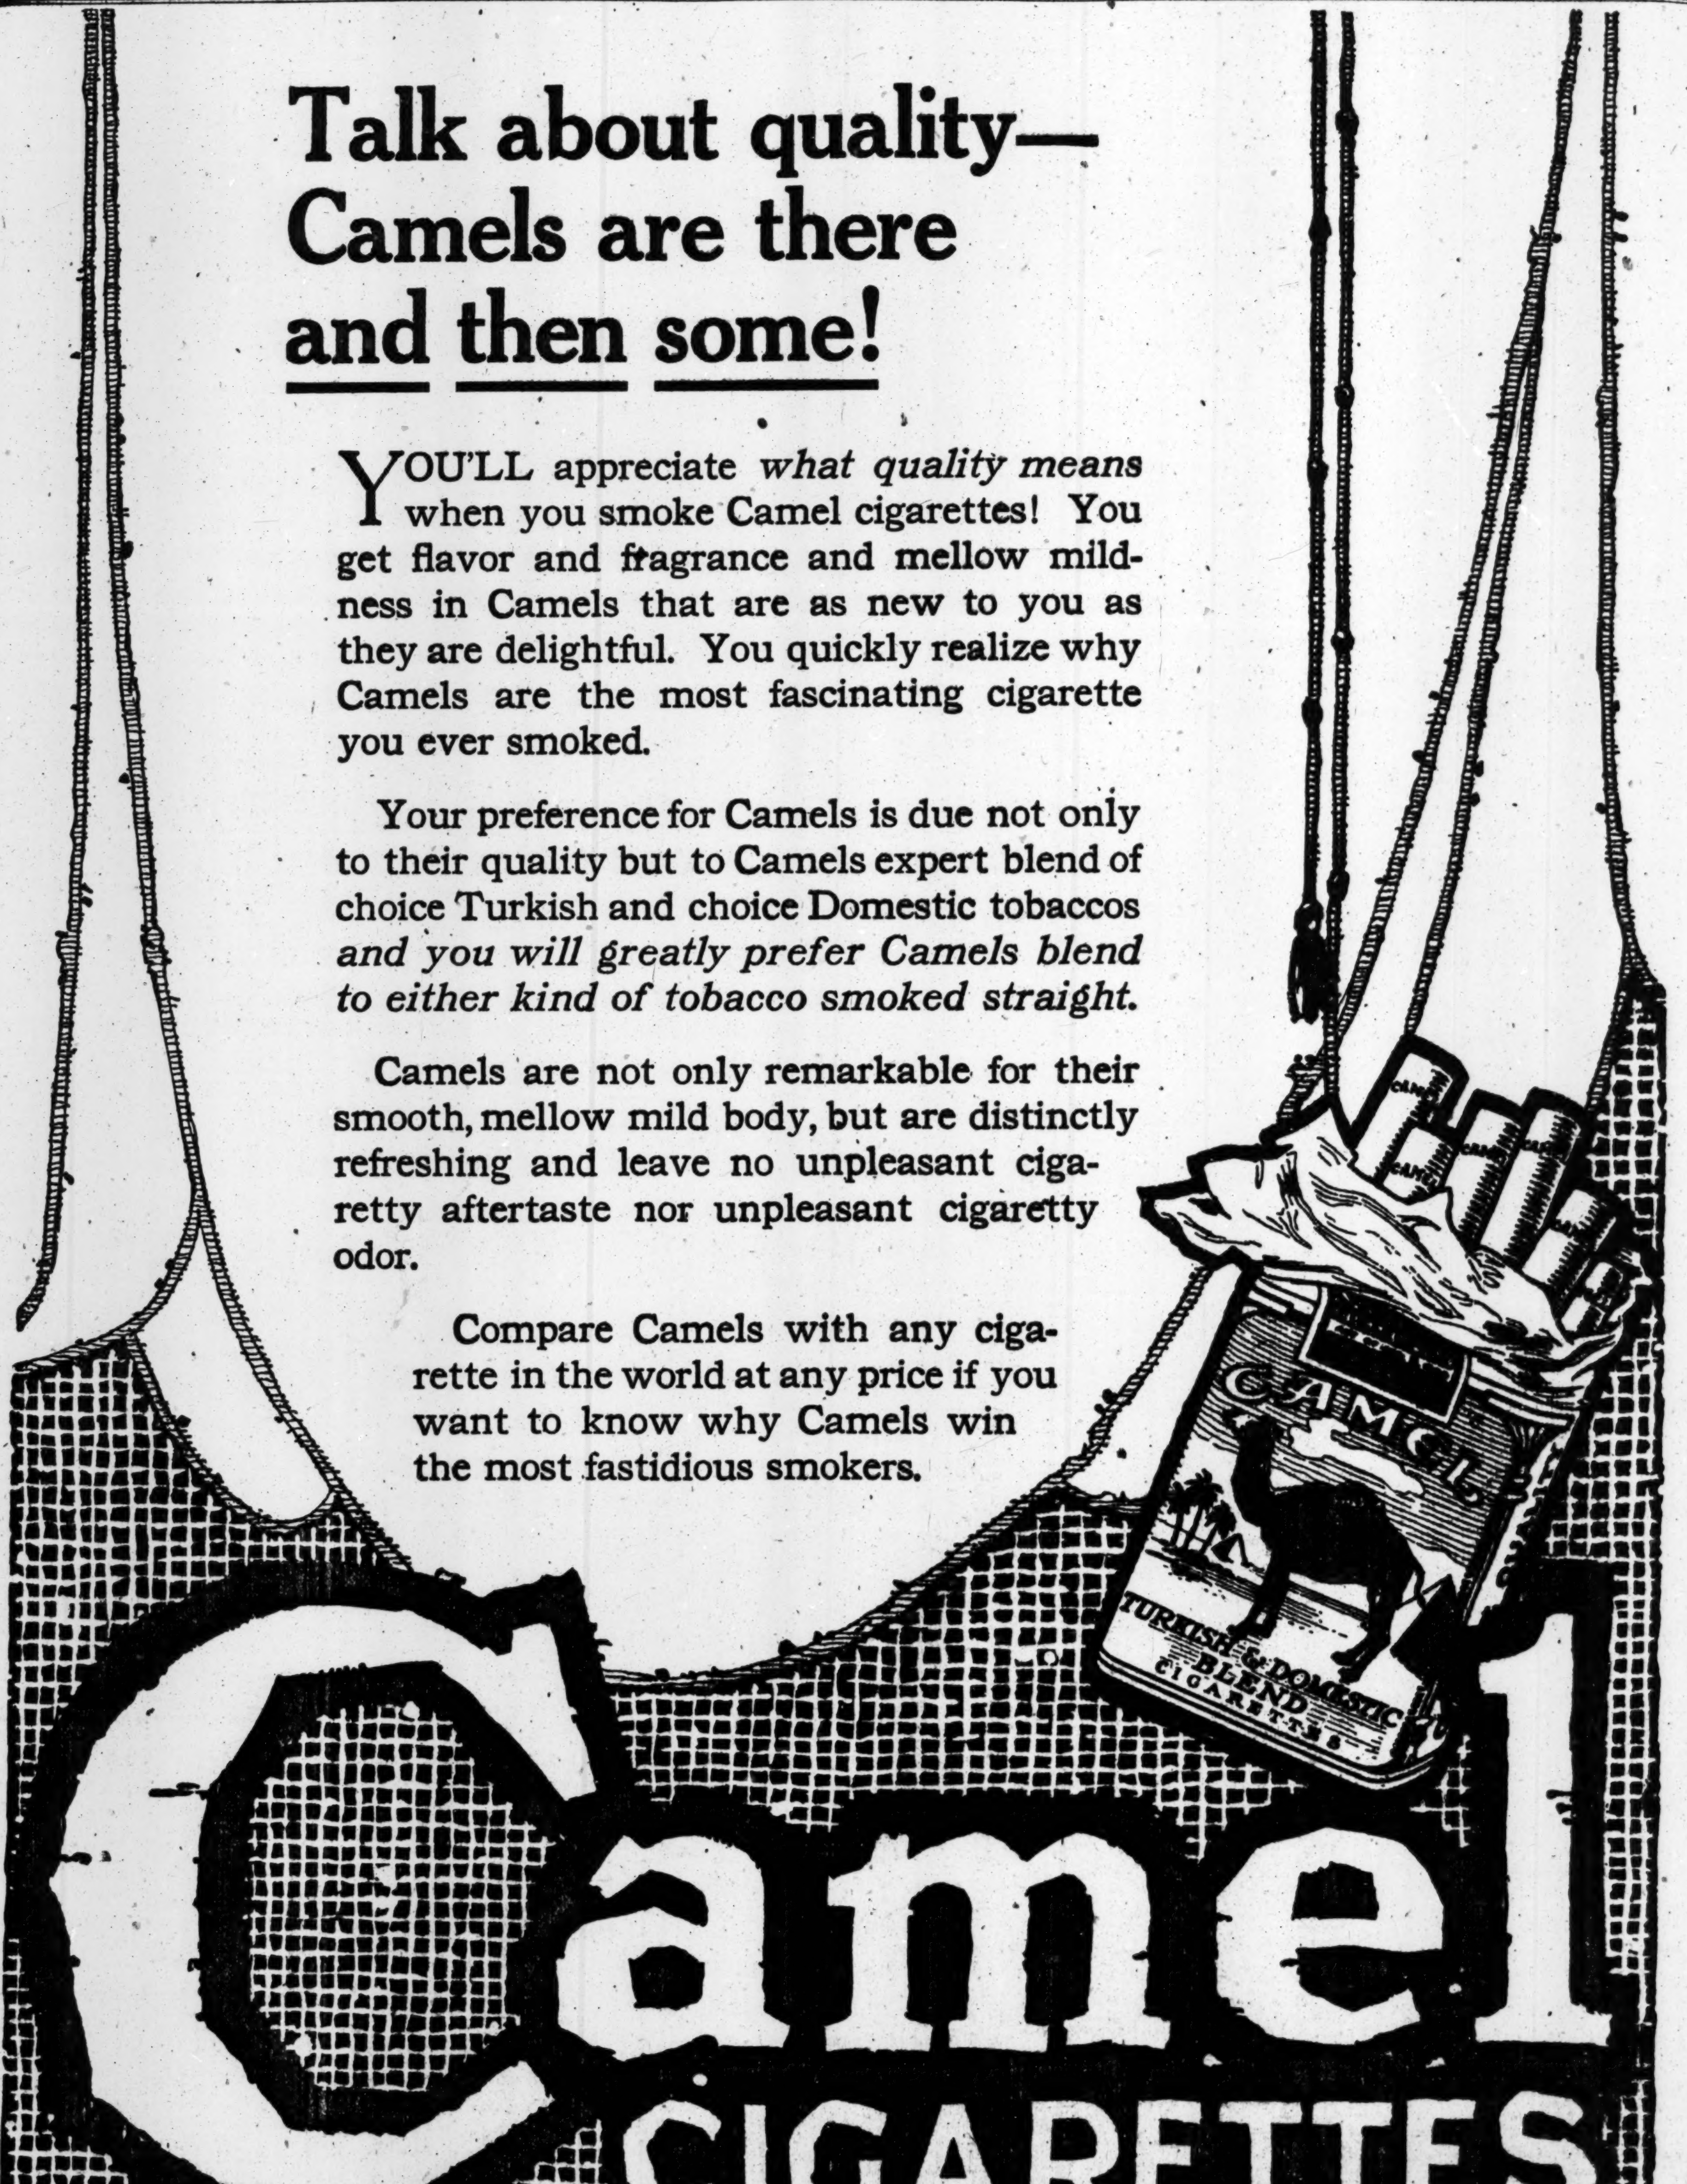
Talk about quality— Camels are there and then some!

YOU'LL appreciate what quality means when you smoke Camel cigarettes! You get flavor and fragrance and mellow mildness in Camels that are as new to you as they are delightful. You quickly realize why Camels are the most fascinating cigarette you ever smoked.

Your preference for Camels is due not only to their quality but to Camels expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos and you will greatly prefer Camels blend to either kind of tobacco smoked straight.

Camels are not only remarkable for their smooth, mellow mild body, but are distinctly refreshing and leave no unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste nor unpleasant cigaretty odor.

Compare Camels with any cigarette in the world at any price if you want to know why Camels win the most fastidious smokers.



Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes; or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.
